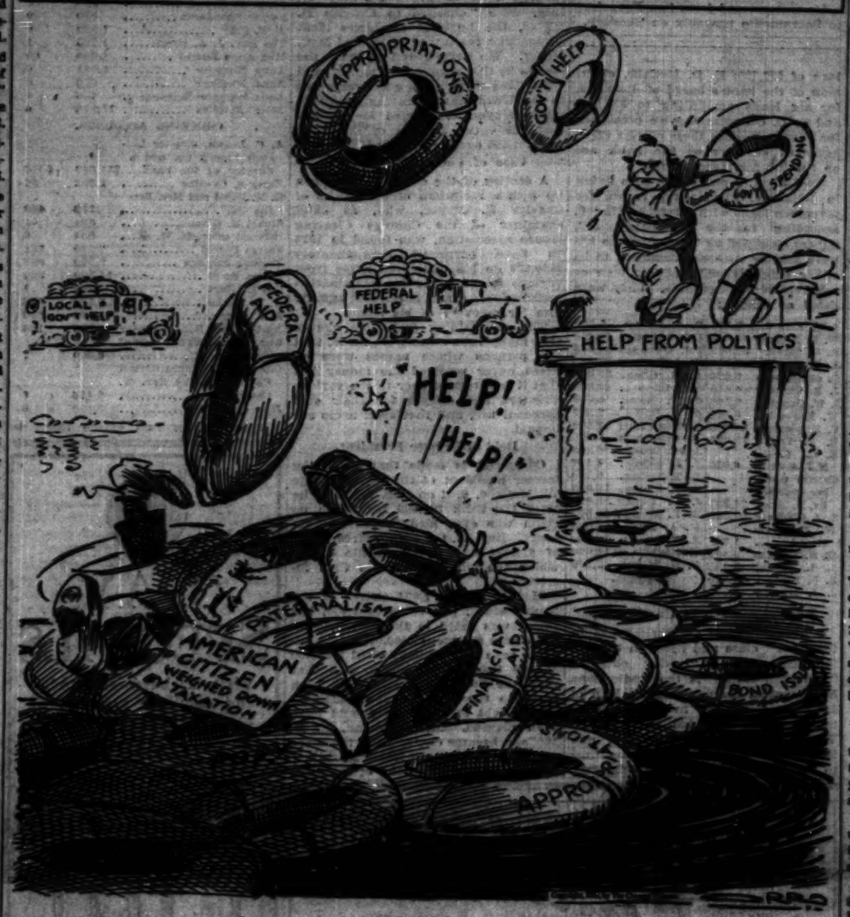
Japan Whips Chinese; Takes Tsitsihar

A VICTIM OF TOO MUCH HELP



ARMIES BATTLE ENTIRE DAY IN 15° BELOW ZERO

Nanking Army Flees in Wild Disorder.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBIN, Manchuria, Nov. 18.—The Japanese army is within the walls of Tsitsihar tonight.

Japan is almost complete master of north as well as south Manchuria.

Its troops have taken Anganchi and Tsitsihar railway station, located several miles below the main city. They have driven far into the territory long bossed by soviet Russia as its "sphere of influence." They are astride and beyond the Chinese Eastern railway, half of which is owned by soviet Russia.

Battle in 15 Below Zero.

To convince China and the world that it intended to keep its grip on this railway, soviet Russia hardly two years ago waged an "unofficial war" against the Chinese.

The Chinese army of 30,000 or more men is fleeing north and northeast, leaving behind a ghastly trail of dead and wounded.

Such are the results of one of the greatest battles fought in the Far East since the Russo-Japanese war in 1904. The battle has been raging for more than 16 hours. Much of it was fought in a blinding snow and sand storm and in temperatures ranging down to 15 degrees below zero.

Casualties Put at 2,000.

The battle has taken a heavy toll of life. Japanese reports say the Chinese lost 300 dead and 2,000 wounded, and the Japanese 49 dead and 99 wounded.

With all the skill, precision and deadliness of modern military science, the little army of Japan—probably not more than 3,000 to 4,000 men—struck in the darkness early this morning. The Chinese forces, heavily entrenched north of the Nonni river, held for a time. They replied vigorously with their artillery, some twenty guns of 3 and 7-inch caliber.

Cavalry swung into action on both sides. The horsemen of Nippon found a hole in the Chinese lines and the infantry pressed forward under protection of a terrific barrage from the Japanese guns and bombs from planes, which, defying the blizzard, swept low over the Chinese lines.

Chinese Retreat a Stampede.

With their center pierced, the Chinese began to retreat—orderly at first, then disorderly, finally utter rout. The last vestiges of armed Chinese authority in northern Manchuria crumpled as the soldiers of the once vaunted army of Gen. Ma Chan-shan ran or crowded into trains, headed for points far away from Japanese bullets and shells and bombs. As they fled, Japanese airmen showered the Chinese troops with bombs or strafed them with machine gun fire.

The story of the battle as it came in here in dribbets during the day from Chinese sources was dramatic, even though probably largely one sided—that is Chinese sided. A few messages from Japanese sources reached here by way of Mukden but the story of this battle, as seen by Japanese eyes, must be told from other sources. . .

Japanese Open Offensive.

The Japanese opened a general offensive at 4 o'clock this morning. Gen. Ma's cavalry had been threatening the right flank of the Japanese army under command of Lieut. Gen. Jiro Tamon, and a severe skirmish was fought in that sector on Sunday in which the Chinese claimed a victory. It seems certain that the Chinese succeeded in pressing back part of the Japanese line and threatened to get behind it. The Chinese had also conducted a number of raids on the Japanese lines.

The battle opened with a heavy bombardment by Japanese guns all along the front. Harbin received first word of the battle when asked to relay a message from Gen. Ma to Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, president and generalissimo of the Nanking government of China. The message said:

"Japanese troops started a general offensive at 4 a. m. today with heavy artillery and six air bombers. Please

Tokio States Peace Terms; More Rights!

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Japan might present her terms or a settlement of the Manchurian dispute, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate, in response to the demand yesterday by Aristide Briand that the Tokio government clarify just what it means by the "five fundamental principles" which it has insisted China recognize, included four specific points and a long string of vague demands in his exposé before the league of nations council.

One of the Japanese demands is recognition of the treaty of 1915 which China insists was forced upon her. The United States also has never recognized this treaty. Other Japanese demands, besides that asking for protection of Japanese nationals are recognition of Japanese rights over the province of Liaotung (Fengtien), the right to control the railroad between Changchun and Port Arthur and similar rights on the railroad between Kainei and Kirin.

Some league officials said the Japanese demands, if granted, would be tantamount to making Manchuria a political and economic protectorate of Japan.

League Shrugs at Battle.

"It is not official."

That was the reaction of the league council today when press dispatches announced that Tsitsihar had been captured, placing the capital of the last of the three Manchurian provinces in Japanese hands. In the eyes of the league the battle has officially not yet taken place.

The council made a similar languid reply when Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese representative, presented a note demanding that the council abandon the ineffectual methods hitherto followed and take immediate action. The note is interpreted to mean a demand to invoke article 15 of the league covenant, which provides sanctions to enforce the council's ruling.

Dawes Calls in Matsudaira.

Ambassador Dawes, American observer, was also notified today of the fall of Tsitsihar. He immediately summoned his friend, Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador to London, for a conference. What Matsudaira told him is not known. In view of the fact that Japan had formally promised Washington that Tsitsihar would not be occupied and that this pledge is said to have been reiterated by Matsudaira in the last two days, the interview may have been interesting.

Today's secret council meeting was a long drawn out affair. Yoshizawa had been summoned to appear at 4 o'clock to give his explanation. A half-hour went by but there was no Japanese ambassador. At 4:30 o'clock a telephone call from the Japanese delegation conveyed his excellency's apologies, and promised that he would be there at 5 o'clock. At 5:30 he appeared.

Meantime Dr. Sze, who had been told to appear at 5:45 o'clock, cooled his heels in an antechamber, smiling in oriental sweetness as the minutes ticked by. It began to look as if a Japanese filibuster would keep the Chinese from lodging a protest that night.

League Puts Him Off.

Dr. Sze began by saying he had an important communication from Manchuria to transmit. Whether he broke the news of the taking of Tsitsihar, it was impossible to determine. However, it is known that he had an official telegram dated a few hours before the capture, stating that the Japanese forces were only ten miles from the city and that Gen. Ma's army had been routed. That was sufficient basis for protest.

Despite the clear implication that the only course left is the invoking of article 15—which means that the league can warn Japan to withdraw her forces, and on her refusal can invoke the corrolary article 16, whereby Japan is automatically considered to have committed an act of war against all members of the league—the council made no serious answer to Dr. Sze's ultimatum. It merely promised that it would be considered later.

Battle Called "Unimportant."

By this time the league mouthpieces were prepared to produce the unofficial reaction requested by newspaper men. They admitted the occupation of Tsitsihar would certainly create an unfortunate impression at this time and that it was a highly regrettable occurrence. At the same time, they could not see how it would seriously affect the negotiations, considering that it happened so far away and that everybody understood it was just an inevitable consequence of having a couple of armies with real guns facing each other away out in the wilds where strict supervision was impossible.

SHERIFF FORCED TO ACT AFTER HOURS OF DELAY

Mystery Company Is Exposed in Court.

Robert A. Bain, younger son of John Bain, was sentenced to serve ten days in the county jail by Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg late yesterday afternoon on a charge of contempt growing out of his testimony in the hearing on the twelve closed Bain banks. He was given into the custody of the sheriff at 4 o'clock on a peremptory oral order. However, the records show he was not put in the jail until shortly before midnight last night.

The delay was due to the hesitation of Sheriff William Meyering to imprison young Bain without a written mittimus, his explanation being that by doing so he might subject himself to a suit for damages for false imprisonment. Sheriff Meyering reversed his decision late last night, however, after a conference with his attorney, William J. Fahrney, and after Judge Feinberg, acquainted with the delay, announced that he would hold the sheriff to account if he failed to obey his verbal order.

Ordered Sent to Jail.

Young Bain's sentence for contempt followed several warnings by Judge Feinberg against evasive replies in his testimony, and he was turned over to the custody of Deputy Sheriff Lee Freeman. The court's oral instructions were to deliver him to Sheriff Meyering and tell the sheriff to lock him in jail. Judge Feinberg announced that he would issue no written mittimus because he wanted to prepare an appeal-proof order which would be ready in the morning.

Attorney H. W. Lippincott, counsel for the Bains, appealed for bail, but the court told him to make the demand in the morning when the formal commitment order would be issued.

Bain was take to the sheriff's office in the county building and remained in the anterooms in custody of Deputies Russell J. O'Brien and John O'Keefe, awaiting, it was explained, the arrival of the written mittimus. Later Attorney Lippincott appeared and insisted that in the absence of the formal order Bain should be kept in a hotel overnight. Sheriff Meyering then announced that he would consult his lawyer.

Holds Sheriff Responsible.

Meanwhile Judge Feinberg was advised of the situation. He was asked if contempt action might follow failure to incarcerate Bain.

"The sheriff will have to answer for failure to obey the order of the court," he replied.

At 10 o'clock, Sheriff Meyering and Attorney Fahrney arrived at his private office. Assistant Sheriff Wright later went downstairs. Outside waited young Bain. He appeared downcast. He said he did not know what was going to happen, that a few months ago, the family was on the crest of fortune, then everything was swept away.

Meanwhile, the sheriff and his lawyer departed by a secret exit. At 11 o'clock Bain was taken away and placed in an automobile. Wright was seen outside the county building. He announced that the sheriff had decided to obey the judge's order and to take Bain to jail.

Young Bain on Stand.

Young Bain had been on the stand during the morning and afternoon sessions. At the latter session he was under prolonged questioning regarding his connection and that of his family with the South Side Agency and Loan corporation at 7851 South Ashland avenue. Pressed by the judge for an answer young Bain finally admitted that he, his brother, John H. Bain, and his father, John Bain, were the actual organizers of the corporation and not "assistant managers" as previously contended.

Grand Jury Quiz Today.

While the inquiry in Judge Feinberg's court occupied the spotlight in the Bain bank investigation yesterday, the grand jury is scheduled to swing into action today. All the directors and officials of the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank have been subpoenaed to appear and explain some of the unusual transactions which have been uncovered.

Some of the disclosures in Judge Feinberg's court yesterday were:

1. In July, 1931, Bain took 77 shares of Harris Trust company stock from the Lewa company which he controlled and sold them for $32,725. What he did with the money remained a secret. The sale was made more than a month after all the Bain banks failed.

2. Judge Feinberg hinted in his

MOCK ARREST BY ROOKIE COP ENDS IN DEATH OF PAL

Frank J. Kolgraff, 25 years old, rookie policeman attached to the Gresham station, was in the Cafeteria, a haberdashery at 6200 South Halsted street, last night, indulging in a mock quarrel with a former school chum, Ben Schmarak, 24 years old, 6149 South Carpenter street.

"You're under arrest," Kolgraff chuckled, clutching the automatic in his pocket and advancing on Schmarak. "Put 'em up. I'm a police officer."

As Schmarak raised his hands, smiling, the pistol was discharged, sending a bullet through his left arm and into his side. He was taken to the Englewood hospital, where he died early this morning.

Kolgraff was one of 472 probationary patrolmen ordered stricken from the pay roll last Jan. 1. He was en route to headquarters on Jan. 2 to hand over his star and pistol when he saw a robber holding up a restaurant and captured him, whereupon Acting Commissioner Alcock retained him in the service.

May Be No World's End, Savants Told

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 18.—(AP)—New mathematics indicating that the universe may possibly go on living forever was presented to the National Academy of Sciences at Yale university today.

The scientific idea for years has been that inevitably creation is bound some day to freeze up, a form of universal death, not only for earthly life, but for all forms of energy.

The new mathematics was explained by Dr. Richard Chase Tolman of California Institute of Technology, one of the best known mathematicians in the world, and one of the men with whom Einstein conferred a year ago.

The old "heat death" theory is based on the undeniable facts that matter is rapidly being converted into heat, light and the other forms of radiation, and the thermodynamic laws which seem to prevent a reversal of this running down hill process.

May Renew Its Youth.

Dr. Tolman has created some mathematical "models" of creation in which this seemingly impossible reversal takes place. He treats these models as partly analogous to actual facts, each differing from present known realities in some significant respect.

If radiation, that is, light and heat, start converting themselves back into solid matter, the universe which now is running down, can some day again renew its youth. In one model Dr. Tolman finds this mathematically possible, provided matter charges into radiation fast enough to maintain a certain necessary equilibrium or balance.

Other models which show possibilities of rebuilding an aging universe are produced by applying the principles of relativity to thermodynamics.

Yale Men Need 5 Meals a Day.

Under the new thermodynamic principles thus created the old law of conservation of energy, which seems to require that the universe shall ultimately freeze up, works differently.

Three meals a day is not sufficient for the young men who attend Yale—five is nearer their requirement—Dr. Tandell Henderson of Yale commented on feeding experiments. Babies, he explained, need meals about every two hours, and it may well be that the habit of restricting youth to three regular meals begins too young.

George O. Squier of Washington said that equipment to carry radio programs over electric light wires to homes is ready for practical use.

The known history of mammalian animals on the Pacific coast is pushed back 20,000,000 years by bones found in Ventura county, Cal., reported Dr. Chester Stock of the California Institute of Technology.

FOOD PRICES DROP 17 PER CENT IN YEAR, U. S. SURVEY SHOWS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Retail prices of food on Oct. 15 averaged 17.5 per cent lower than on the same date a year ago, and one-third of one per cent lower than on the same date in the previous month, according to figures issued today by the bureau of labor statistics. The bureau's weighted index numbers, with average prices in 1913 as 100 were 144.5 for Oct. 15, 1930, 119.4 for Sept. 15, 1931, and 119.1 for October, 1931.

During the month period food prices in Detroit and Springfield, Ill., decreased 2 per cent, the largest decrease reported. Prices in Chicago were 2 per cent lower on Oct. 15 than on the same date in the preceding month.

Decreased food prices were shown in all of the reporting cities during the year period from October, 1930, to October, 1931. Springfield, Ill., again led the list with an average decrease of 24 per cent. Prices in Chicago declined 16 per cent during the twelve month period.

OHIO HICCOUGH VICTIM SAID TO BE IMPROVING

questioning of Robert Bain that he believed the banker's son had destroyed certain important papers which would have helped to reveal where some of Bain's assets lie.

3. The mysterious $18,434 deposit by John Bain in the Continental Illinois bank on July 8, 1931, was explained. The banker had sold 175 shares of Chase National bank of New York for $13,335; 17 shares of National City bank of New York for $1,474, and 25 shares of New York Trust company for $3,625 in order to get the total of $18,434. He took the stock from the Lewis company, replacing it with his personal note, according to the evidence.

The proceeds of the sale were used to pay an obligation to the Foreman State bank in liquidation.

4. Attorney Roy Massena, partner of former Senator Charles S. Deneen, brought into court securities valued at more than $10,000 which had been sent to him by Bain on July 21, 1931. The lawyer said he made no claim to the securities and the judge ordered them impounded.

5. On June 6, 1931, Bain transferred 443 shares of Foreman State bank stock to one J. L. Raddatz, a bank clerk, who admittedly acted only as a figurehead in the deal. Who got the shares from Raddatz remained a mystery. On June 8 the Foreman bank was taken over by the First National bank and on June 9 the Bain banks closed.

Judge Questions Young Bain.

Robert Bain was in trouble in the court from the moment he first took the witness stand at the morning session.

"On Tuesday, Nov. 10, you went through papers in a steel filing cabinet at the South Shore Agency and Loan corporation, did you not?" inquired Judge Feinberg.

"I was looking for a paper——" began young Bain.

Q.—Don't spar with me. Answer the question. Did you take out any papers from that cabinet? A.—I took out certain papers, yes, sir. [The cabinet was seized that night by the sheriff. The prior visit of young Bain to the cabinet had not been hitherto revealed.]

Q.—What did you do with them? A.—Temporarily, I put them on my father's desk.

Q.—Now, give this some careful thought. You found a file of the Lewis company there, did you not? A.—No, sir.

Quizzed on Brokerage Accounts.

Q.—You found brokerage accounts from June to September. And a number of other papers? Did you remove any other papers than those you have since produced in court? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you destroy any papers? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you deliver any papers to any one? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you give orders to any one to destroy some canceled checks? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You're sure of everything you've told me? A.—Yes, sir.

Recalled at the afternoon session, Robert Bain again aroused the temper of the court. He was questioned at length about a property called the More Coal Company of Tennessee, holding a tract of timber land which had not hitherto been disclosed as an asset of John Bain, Inc. The witness said the land was worth nothing and therefore had not been mentioned in previous testimony.

"Mr. Robert Bain," the judge said, slowly, "I warn you right now that I have had enough of this sort of thing. If you drive me to strong measures, I can take them. I am entitled to answers freely and frankly made here and I am determined to have them."

Quizzed on Loan Company.

Young Bain said mildly that he would try to answer all questions. But he was soon enshrouded again in an argument involving his connection with the South Side Agency and Loan corporation. After first insisting that he was only an "assistant manager" of the corporation and that Gammonlay was president, the witness finally admitted that he paid $100 to Richard L. Crawford, secretary of the corporation, at the time it was organized.

The witness was vague about the reason for the $100 payment, insisting that it was not for stock in the company. He finally became confused and said:

"I gave Crawford the $100. He put it in his pocket. I don't know what he did with it."

A few more questions and the young man admitted that he and his brother, John H. Bain, and his father were the organizers and not merely the "assistant managers" of the loan company.

"You wish to retract your previous statement, then?" the judge asked.

"Yes," was the answer.

"I am going to hold you in contempt of court," said the judge. "You have admitted swearing falsely. You are sentenced to jail for ten days."

Another Son Is Witness.

John H. Bain, the next witness, told readily of the formation of the South Side Agency and Loan corporation.

"There's no secret about it, your honor," he told the judge earnestly.

"There's no secret now, perhaps," responded the judge, grimly. "The three of you, your brother and you and your father, own that company."

"And Robert knew it, too," said the judge.

"I think he was confused," said John H. Bain in apology for his brother.

The witness was questioned briefly about one Nina Rutsay. The identity of the woman was not brought out. The witness denied that she had at any time held title to property for John Bain.

Austin J. Lindstrom, cashier of the Foreman State bank in liquidation, told of Bain's deals in Foreman bank stock. After telling of the transfer of 443 shares to Raddatz three days before the banks closed, he was instructed to examine the bank records in an effort to determine to whom the stocks had passed from Raddatz and to return to the court hearing today.

Witness Causes Laughs.

The courtroom crowd got many laughs when James Gammonlay, the "$30 president" of the South Side Agency and Loan corporation, told of its organization last September. Gammonlay was formerly chief bookkeeper for John Bain. The books of the corporation were impounded by order of Judge Feinberg yesterday.

"Now, what is your interest in the South Side Agency and Loan corporation?" asked Judge Feinberg.

"I own ten shares," replied Gammonlay.

"This is the unusual corporation with three assistant managers," commented the judge. "How did you come to buy the stock?"

"Richard Crawford asked me to come in," was the reply.

Q.—Have you any income? Are you on the pay roll? A.—No.

Q.—Are you an officer. A. (almost in a whisper)—I am the president.

The gust of laughter which came from the crowd, consisting largely of Bain bank depositors, caused Judge Feinberg to issue a warning that he would clear the courtroom if any further disturbance were made.

The witness then revealed that he had bought ten shares in the loan corporation by giving his note for $30 and had been given two shares in addition "as a present" by Crawford.

Q.—As a matter of fact, that business belongs to the Bains, doesn't it? A.—Possibly so.

Q.—Don't you know it. A.—I may say, yes.

More questioning disclosed that outside of Gammonlay's $100 interest and a $100 interest owned by Crawford, the secretary, the three Bains owned the company. The remainder of the $1,000 capital stock is owned by the Bains.

Miss Anna Eunson, personal secretary of John Bain, was also a witness for a few minutes. She said she now remembered another piece of property which should be listed as an asset of the banker. This property appeared on the books as "Trgh'macolinne," presumably the name of a Scottish or Welsh property, she said. The judge ordered an investigation of this clew.

SCOTTISH ISLANDERS RECALL BAIN GIFTS TO HIS NATIVE TOWN

[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

STORNOWAY, Scotland, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—News of the difficulties of John Bain, whose twelve banks failed in Chicago several months ago, holds the interest of this small northern island town, Bain's birthplace.

The people remember him well as the emigrant boy who went to America as a plumber, became a financier, and never forgot his old home town. Until recently Bain visited here regularly every two years, and he is personally recalled, as well as his benefactions, a number of which still remain in physical evidence.

Bain was always known as the Stornoway boy who made good, and furnished many a lively topic of discussion, for life here is remote from the outside world. Stornoway is situated on the east coast of the island of Lewis, and is the chief and largest town of the Outer Hebrides.

Inquiry here today disclosed Bain's reasons for emigrating to America, and also his gifts to the people. Bain is the son of a local contractor, and took up the trade of plumbing. He journeyed across the ocean where he worked at his trade for several years before venturing into the real estate business, and then into banking.

Bain left four brothers, his mother, and a sister here. Two of the brothers, Louis and Angus, are moderately successful. Louis is acting vice consul for Denmark, and Angus is a timber merchant. Louis is a former provost, or mayor, of Stornoway.

Bain always remembered his family. His mother received a regular allowance for many years, and even the old people of the town were given modest pensions from his purse.

Bain's larger gifts were to the municipality. During the world war, the town hall burned. Bain contributed $15,000 towards its reconstruction. He attended the opening of the new building 1929, and at that time pledged the town a fire engine to prevent the hall's destruction again. He kept his word, giving a new engine costing $7,500.

Bain's biggest gift in his home town was $25,000, to the Lewis hospital. Once he made an offer to give $500 to install showers in the Stornoway Golf club, but the offer was declined because of the shortage of water during the summer.

BANK IS VICTIM OF POLITICIANS, DEPOSITORS SAY

Former City Hall Regime Under Fire in Suit.

Names prominent in the former city administration appeared yesterday in a list of those designated as "pets" of the closed Lake View State bank presented by a large group of depositors who filed suit asking an accounting. The bank, which was at 3179 North Clark street, was closed by the state on Sept. 22, 1930.

Attorney Morton Jacobson, representing 232 depositors, declared the bank was looted of more than $3,000,000 of its $6,300,000 deposits and in his bill he names many persons politically affiliated with the old city hall crowd.

In the list of debtors against whom the bill charges, no effort to collect has been made is the name of ex-Mayor William Hale Thompson. Attorney Jacobson has called upon William H. Beckman, receiver for the bank and in 1928 a defeated city hall candidate for Republican committeeman of the 44th ward, to add him in forcing repayments.

$1,188,359 Bad Loans Charged.

The bill for an accounting charges that $1,188,359 in loans were "wrongfully made" to the "pets." Many of those named as borrowers are politicians. Some are officers and directors of the bank, including the president, William O. J. Hattstaedt, who was president of the trustees of the police pension fund under the former city administration.

The bill charges that favored persons, including politicians, received gifts from the bank in the form of charging off their debts, and among those named in this classification is Thompson. The bill lists those to whom, it is charged, unusually large loans were made on real estate and those who drew large sums from the bank just before it was closed.

Political "Pets" Listed.

Among the political figures during the old city hall régime in the list of the bank's pets are:

Henry H. Maier, listed for six loans totaling $35,000. Maier, known as "Doc," promoted banquets for those appointed by the former mayor to powerful offices. He collected money from city employes and from persons doing business with the city for automobiles to be given to the former mayor's appointees. Maier committed suicide last spring.

Sam Gessler, listed as borrower of $2,944. He is a cigar dealer, a former member of the Lincoln park board under ex-Gov. Small, and a close friend of the ex-mayor.

Fred Mann, on the list for $4,000. He was the owner of the Rainbo Gardens and a member of the former mayor's "kitchen cabinet." He committed suicide in the days of the decline of the administration.

Al Mann, son of Fred, $2,150. He was appointed to the boxing commission by Gov. Small.

Math O. Biesius, $16,400. He was an important cog in city hall affairs and campaign secretary.

George Crowley, $14,000. He is a Democrat and former secretary of Lincoln park. He is Biesius' partner. They were associated with the ex-mayor in the operation of a radio station to which the bank depositors' complaint gives considerable attention.

President Hattstaedt is listed for a loan of $12,790; E. D. McCabe, chairman of the bank's board of directors, for six loans amounting to $34,000; and O. D. Granstrand, vice president, for $8,040. Besides these officers three assistant cashiers of the bank are on the list for lesser loans.

Fred Buck, a real estate man living in Wilmette, was on the record for seventeen loans with a total of $78,000, according to the depositors' bill. Others classified as "pets" in the bill were said by Attorney Jacobson to be either neighborhood business men or relatives of bank officials. They were listed as follows:

W. F. Behrens	43,048	D.C. O'Connell	10,000

Radiophone Loans Uncollected.

Among business enterprises put in the "pet" class and listed in the bill for accounting as having obtained "wrongful loans" is the Radiophone Broadcasting company with a loan of $22,350. A chapter in the bill says this company operated radio station WHT in the Wrigley building and that it increased its loans from time to time without giving any collateral.

The notes were signed by William Hale Thompson, George E. Carlson and "Doc" Maier. Carlson once was a commissioner of gas and electricity under the former mayor. He was tried and acquitted on graft charges. The city has a claim against him.

In 1928 the Radiophone Broadcasting company owed $89,977 to the Lake View State bank. Regarding this the bill for accounting says: "From the books and records available we are unable to discover that the payment of these loans was ever made, or that any attempt was ever made to enforce the collection, but that on Dec. 28, 1928, the sum of $39,700 of this loan was charged off the books of the bank, without any record of the sum ever having been paid." Other charge-offs for the company are also listed in the bill.

Loans to Bank Directors.

In the list of bank directors who were borrowers were:

C. R. Boyle	$ 7,750	T. Johnson	$ 5,000
A. C. Brown	3,302	E.J.Lindsten	3,200
C. A. Carlson	136,500	F. S. Wankle	1,987
F. P. Hauber	27,850

The petitioners relate that beginning about April 15, 1926, the bank, with the authority of the board of directors and officers, authorized loans that on July 17, 1928, were listed as follows:

Ward Manufacturing company	$17,100
Husted McC. Meyer	34,800

These three loans, the bill for accounting says, are included in loans totaling $143,900 which on July 17, 1928, were "charged to Charles H. Meyer, the husband of Jessie McC. Meyer, and the father of Husted McC. Meyer. We believe and so state the fact to be that none of the money paid out on the three loans was ever given to the Ward Manufacturing company, Jessie Meyer, or Husted Meyer, but that the entire amount of the loans was turned over to Charles H. Meyer."

Case of Charles H. Meyer.

A section of the complaint is taken up with a recitation of the affairs of Charles H. Meyer, who, as chief examiner of the Chicago Clearing House association, was found in 1928 to have borrowed approximately $400,000 on his unsecured notes from various banks under his examination jurisdiction. A suit is pending against him for recovery of his loans.

The complaining depositors charge that many fake loans were made, that the persons whose names were on notes never received the money but that it was turned over to the various directors and officers for their own personal use, and that such loans are unpaid.

Debt of Former President.

Complaint is made that when the former president of the bank, George W. McCabe, died on Feb. 29, 1928, he owed the bank $36,600 for which no claim was ever filed in the Probate court. Instead, the bill declares, loans of $78,884 were made to his estate, which the bill charges was then insolvent.

McCabe owned 2,024 shares of the bank's stock, par value $202,400, but which was listed in the inventory of the estate as worth $400,000. The petition says that McCabe owed $429,000 at the time of his death, and that therefore no loans should have been made to the estate and a collection of the debt to the bank should have been pressed. McCabe's son, E. D. McCabe, became chairman of the board of the bank after the father's death.

W. F. Van Benkirk [1927]	$ 1,775
W. F. Van Benkirk [1928]	5,000
J. P. Cleary Constr. Co. [1928]	7,000
Radiophone Broadcast. Co. [1928]	39,700
Radiophone Broadcast. Co. [1928]	2,888

Charles H. Meyer, et al. [1928]	100,000
Fish Fans' club, bonds [1928]	5,000
C. H. Meyer, atty.'s fees [1928]	5,000
J. R. S. Crowder [1928]	5,800
George L. Manning [1928]	6,000

Preston Moine [1926]	400
Preston Moine [1926]	200
Frank Mortaugh [1926]	2,417

It is alleged in the bill for accounting that the officers and directors, with full knowledge of the condition of the bank just preceding its close, caused their friends and relatives to withdraw their deposits. The list appearing in the court record shows the following withdrawals on the last four days the bank was open, together with the amounts left on deposit:

After listing real estate loans in which the amount of the loan is nearly the full value or in excess of the full value of the property, the bill says that on April 10, 1930, a real estate loan was made to Frank A. Joerger, assistant cashier of the bank, but that he acted only as a "dummy" and that some one else got the money while Joerger received a letter stating that the bank would never sue him to recover that loan.

There were 20,000 depositors in the Lake View State bank and an effort was made to reorganize it soon after it was closed by the state auditor. Many of the depositors agreed to allow 50 per cent of their funds to be used for an indefinite period in aiding the reorganization, but the plan failed. Since then the state's attorney's office has been making an investigation of the bank's affairs.

Three Capone Gangsters Are Granted Prison Stays

Martin Accardo, Leo Shaffer, and John Mattice, Capone gangsters, who were sentenced by Federal Judge John P. Barnes to four and one-half years in the penitentiary for violation of the prohibition law, were granted stays of execution yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. Bail, however, was denied, and the three will be held in the county jail until their appeals are decided. The Appellate court refused bail on the plea of Assistant United States Attorney Edward A. Fisher that the men were desperate characters who might harm witnesses who testified against them at their trial.

ANDI CONFERS ITH HOOVER ON ES OF WORLD

ported to Be in Accord on Arms Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Sitting in comfortable chairs in the Lincoln study at the White House President Hoover and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, chatted in informal fashion for two and one-half hours today on worldwide naval and disarmament problems. Following this neighborly conference, which was participated in by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, it was stated that accord had been reached on a number of subjects under discussion. Mr. Stimson declined, however, to take newspaper men into his confidence as to those points on which representatives of the nations had been in agreement.

Exchange Points of View.

Apparently all that was accomplished was that the President and the secretary of state were made acquainted with Italy's point of view on the questions of mutual interest to the big. Grandi learned of the American attitude on these questions. In some quarters close to the Grandi party the view was expressed that a mutual understanding had been reached providing for coöperation in certain lines in the immediate future, such as the move for limitation of armaments.

The conversation was entirely informal, no agenda or program was followed by either side. No written memoranda were exchanged. All indications were that neither the President nor Sig. Grandi expected to reach an agreement which would be announced to the world at the conclusion of the Italian minister's visit. There probably will be another conversation between President Hoover and Sig. Grandi tomorrow.

Assess Debts Discussed.

Early after Sig. Grandi arrived at the White House at 9:15 he advised the President of Italy's depressed economic condition. Possible steps for improving world conditions were discussed and it was assumed the President advised his visitor that the American action on war debt reductions would be the same as it was a month ago when Premier Laval of France was in Washington. That position is that after reexamination has been made of Germany's capacity to pay it will be President Hoover's problem to tell his congress to revive the debt war debt commission preparatory to permitting some of the allies to receive additional parts of their debts.

In view of President Hoover and Secretary Stimson's stand on armaments reductions it is said to have much in common. The Hoover administration thus far is said to be daunted by the Sino-Chinese war and still openly hopes for further reductions can be effected in the world's armies and navies. Sig. Grandi has expressed similar views.

In some quarters the view was expressed today that the Hoover-Grandi conversations may be followed by an abandonment by the United States of its traditional stand in support of large battleships armed with seven inch guns.

Believe Battleships Up.

It is considered highly probable that during the conversations between American officials and Sig. Grandi the question of reducing the size of future battleships came up, and it became known today that Great Britain, Italy and France all but agreed formally a few months ago to unite to work for a reduction of battleship tonnage below 35,000 tons. Only failure of Italy and France to reach an agreement on naval limitation, which would have made possible their entrance into the three power London limitation pact, prevented such a step.

Great Britain, then actively working to bring the two powers together, agreed to put into writing her promise to continue working for smaller battleships and the abandoning of the 16 inch turret gun in favor of a 12 inch gun, in event the two powers could be allayed. Before these negotiations were over Great Britain had assured the United States of her promise to make separate agreements with both Italy and France on the battleship reduction move. This correspondence never has been made public.

The United States, up to the present, has been staunchly opposed to decreasing the tonnage of battleships or of substituting smaller guns for the powerful weapons used today on these capital ships. Britain has worked for several years in an attempt to line up powers to bring pressure upon this country in this connection. She so far succeeded that the tentative Italian-French agreement bound both powers to construct 23,333 ton 12 inch gun battleships in the future.

The Hoover administration has been anxious to bring about an agreement between Italy and France on naval limitation so as to prevent any possibility these two powers would build to the point where Great Britain would invoke the so-called escape clause and build above the London treaty tonnage levels. Britain's policy is to maintain a fleet as large as both of the powers.

Grandi Chats with Lindy and Dines at White House

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Signor Dino Grandi, great guest of honor this evening at the White House dinner table, rejoiced this afternoon at Secretary of Treasury Mellon's luncheon table because he, Italy's foreign minister, was chatting with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, whom he characterized as "that great national idol of America."

COL. LINDBERGH.

Col. Lindbergh, arriving in Washington in a borrowed plane, motored up to Secretary Mellon's apartment just in time for after luncheon coffee. He talked with Grandi, called at the Stimsons, and was off again for Miami in double quick time. This made his surprise visit assume the proportions of a mystery.

Stimson Proves Obliging.

But the solution was simple: Signor Grandi, cheated by fog of an airplane ride up from New York with Lindy as a pilot, was full of his disappointment that first night when he dined with Secretary of State Stimson. Stimson, anxious to oblige the distinguished guest, promised to do what he could to bring the Italian and American together. Accordingly, there were telegrams and telephone calls. The best Lindbergh could do was to hop out of a plane at Bolling field at a quarter past two.

Young Hugh S. Cumming Jr., whose father is head of the United States public health service, and who is himself a member of the state department, was waiting in a White House automobile; and the two men hurried off to the Mellon apartment. Grandi was delighted, he said, with the meeting.

So was Signora Grandi, who was at the luncheon and who told how she was going to tell her six year old son, Franco, that she had met the aviator.

Telephones Her Children.

As a matter of fact, Signora Grandi, who is getting pretty weary, would brighten up, at any moment in today's busy program, when any one mentioned her two children. Early this morning she had telephoned the youngsters. Franco's voice had come across the trans-oceanic lines pretty well. But four year old Simonetta's baby soprano was so high and excited that the nurse had to take the phone.

Signora Grandi sent love and "lots of little kisses from daddy"; promised presents; urged them to be good and mind the nurse, and said they'd be home Dec. 6.

When she put down the receiver at the end of the $36 worth of three minute conversation, she turned to a friend at the suite at the Mayflower hotel and said:

"It makes me sad to hear their voices. I'll not ring them up again. I want to be here with my husband and I want to be with them."

Entertained at Embassy.

Late this afternoon the Grandis went to the Italian embassy to be guests of honor at a reception of the American-Italian society of Washington. Signora Grandi, in the black that she affects with such great success, wandered about the drawing rooms with Ambassador De Martino, admiring the paintings, admiring the photographs of the king and queen, admiring the photograph of Mussolini.

This evening they were honor guests at the White House. There they met Cabinet Members Stimson, Mellon, Hurley, Mitchell, Brown, Adams, Wilbur, and Lamont. There they met Senators Moses and Borah and their wives. Mrs. Borah has already called Signora Grandi "the most charming visitor to Washington in a long time."

Guests at Luncheon

Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann, were guests of honor at a luncheon of the Chicago Association of Commerce in the Hotel La Salle yesterday. The visitors beamed and shook hands all around and the Vice President was full of optimism about the recovery of trade conditions.

The guests are on their way east after a sojourn in Hollywood. They had to catch a train for Washington at 1:30 o'clock, so they departed after luncheon without hearing speeches on crime fighting and the Secret Six.

At the station a 35 pound turkey, presented to President Hoover by P. A. Bryant of Stockton, Cal., was being put aboard the Liberty limited of the Pennsylvania.

DEMOCRAT ASKS SCHOOL NAME IN HONOR OF TAFT

Political party lines were forgotten for a moment yesterday at a meeting of school board members. The committee on school administration was considering a name for a high school which is to be built at Bryn Mawr and Natoma avenues. After hearing the plea of a delegation from Norwood Park, Mrs. W. S. Heffernan, trustee, said: "As a good Democrat I move the school be named for William Howard Taft, a distinguished citizen and a Republican."

"As a mediocre Republican," said Trustee Caldwell, "I second that motion."

"As an American citizen the chair entertains the motion," said Chairman English. "Call the roll." The "ayes" were unanimous.

2 BANDITS SLAIN IN STORE; 60 DIE SO FAR IN 1931

Killed Trying to Rob Fur Dealers.

One bandit was shot to death and another was mortally wounded yesterday when they were surprised by a special policeman and a detective squad as they were robbing the fur shop of Labes & Newmark, Inc., 444 West 63d street. The two deaths raised the total of bandits killed by police and citizens to 60 since Jan. 1. Thirty-four bandits have been killed by policemen and 26 by citizens.

FRANK EBERTSCH.

"It was a good job," Mayor Cermak said in commenting on the slayings. "We can't have too much of that." Commissioner of Police Allman added: "I appreciate the fact that the officers did good work."

Both Victims Have Records.

The slain robbers were George Meyers, 25 years old, who was killed at the scene, and Roy Blackburne, alias Driblin, 40 years old, 724 Roscoe street, who died in the Bridewell hospital several hours after the shooting. Both had criminal records, Meyers having served a term in the Joliet penitentiary. Blackburne had been arrested in Michigan, Minnesota and Washington over a period of 17 years.

As the bandits entered the store Edward Labes, owner of the shop, stepped on an American District Telegraph burglar alarm button. The bandits herded Labes and Mrs. Mamie McNeill, 11908 South Union street, and Michael Marks, 1107 South Lawndale avenue, employés, into a rear room after Labes told them his weapon was in his desk in this room.

The robbers dashed toward the desk when Frank Ebertsch, an A. D. T. policeman, who started for the shop when the alarm flashed in the company's office at 233 West 63d street, shattered the glass of the front door and burst into the rear room. He ordered the bandits to drop their weapons. Blackburne made a move toward Ebertsch, who fired a bullet into the bandit's abdomen.

Police Enter at Rear.

Policeman Michael Trainor, whose squad Ebertsch had met as he was answering the alarm, came through the rear of the shop. Trainor fired five shots at the second bandit. Police believe a third bandit, who had remained at the wheel of an automobile, escaped when he heard the gunfire.

Blackburne was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where he died. His widow, Mrs. Helen Blackburne, identified his body in the county morgue she was questioned and released when she said she did not know her husband was a robber. A double inquest was set for this morning by Frank Walsh, newly appointed coroner.

Commissioner Allman reviewed recent slayings of bandits in praising Lieut. Trainor. On Nov. 9 Policeman Marvin Holden shot and killed Robert Zabel, 24 years old, as he was fleeing after an unsuccessful attempt to rob a tailor shop. On Nov. 6 Joseph Burke, 26 years old, was fatally wounded by Policeman Walter Ludke.

In a pistol battle on Sept. 29 three policemen outshot five bandits, killing Rudolph Kvacik, 27 years old, and Charles Jarusaitis, 22 years old, and wounding another bandit. Sergt. John O'Malley and Patrolmen John O'Brien and William Walsh surprised the five bandits as they were leaving a grocery store at 901 Sedgwick street in which they had held up six persons. In the same period three robbers were killed by citizens.

NOTORIETY OF GANGS SPURS CHICAGOANS' CHARITY—HUTCHINS

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—"A large part of the basis of the success of Chicago's present effort to secure money for relief purposes is Chicago's bad name," said President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, speaking today before welfare and relief campaign workers here.

"I don't recommend the acquisition of a bad name as a requisite to charity," he added, "but there is no doubt that our feeling of local pride—or shall I say local shame—has induced my fellow citizens to show the world that Chicago can and will do its part."

The total pledged so far in Philadelphia's campaign for $9,000,000 rose to $5,203,272.

Confesses Helping Poison Her Husband and Daughter

Pekin, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. Allis Mason, 50, confessed late today to Tazewell county officials that she "had a hand" in the poisoning of her husband, John, 53, and her daughter, Mildred, 23. The husband died a year ago and the daughter only last August.

MRS. NETTIE MASON.

Despite her attempts to put a major portion of the blame on others, Sheriff James J. Crosby and State's Attorney Louis Dunkelberg remained skeptical, and announced they would require substantial corroborative evidence from outside sources before they would believe Mrs. Mason's version of the deaths. Mrs. Mason is now being held on a capias from a coroner's jury which earlier declared that her daughter died of arsenic poisoning and recommended that she be held to the grand jury for murder.

As a result of Mrs. Mason's story one of three or four detailed during the day, deputies went to Emden and took Dr. E. M. Barringer into custody for questioning. The physician signed the death certificates for John and Mildred Mason, assigning natural causes for their deaths. Officials said they doubted he was involved in the case for the simple reason Mrs. Mason has named other men who proved themselves innocent of suspicion.

In the confession, in which she admits the double poisoning, Mrs. Mason states that she obtained poison capsules from the doctor. She offered no motive for poisoning her husband. In the case of the daughter the supposed motive was that she suspected the daughter "knew too much" about Mason's death. Mrs. Mason collected $1,000 on insurance policies from each case.

Sheriff Crosby said tonight that while Mrs. Mason admitted she "had a hand" in the poisonings, he was inclined to discredit the details of her story. The other "confessions" do not agree at all with the latest, he said. In an earlier story Mrs. Mason named Harold Reese, a son-in-law, as an accomplice. Reese was exonerated. Then she named the physician. Authorities are virtually satisfied he will be exonerated likewise.

The inquiry into the Mason deaths began in October because of the suspicions of neighbors.

GIRL TESTIFIES AGAINST SPRAGUE IN SLAYING TRIAL

Broker Armed to Repel Police, She Says.

F. Guy Sprague, grain broker, had a gun ready for policeman who might try to break up his party, according to a girl witness who testified for the state yesterday in Sprague's trial for the slaying of Policeman Patrick J. Gallagher. The shooting of Gallagher occurred early in the morning of April 14 at the party, which was held in the Windsor-Wilson apartment hotel, 915 Wilson avenue.

F. GUY SPRAGUE. (Tribune Photo.)

Sprague's trial is being conducted before Judge George Fred Rush in the Criminal court. The witness is Miss Julia Pierce, 23 years old, of Christiansburg, Va. She testified that she was visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Massie, at 2762 Hampden court, when Sprague went to their apartment and invited them to his party at the hotel.

Tells of Policeman's Visit.

Massie and Miss Pierce went to the party, the young woman said. After complaints of other hotel guests on the noise they were making had resulted in a visit of warning by Policeman Gallagher and Carl Johnson to the Sprague apartment on the third floor, some members of the party adjourned to the apartment of Miss Vernice Collins on the second floor, according to Miss Pierce.

After a time, Miss Pierce said, she and Massie went back upstairs. Sprague met them at the door of his apartment with a revolver in his hand, she testified.

"O, I thought you were the coppers coming back to bother me," Sprague said, according to Miss Pierce. The witness said she did not see the shooting of Policeman Gallagher because her back was turned, but that she saw man trying to wrest the gun from Sprague's hand.

Sprague's Neighbors Testify.

Dr. James Munn and George C. Hooper, insurance underwriter, who lived in apartments near Sprague's, testified that they saw a revolver in Sprague's hand after the two fatal shots were fired. They also described the party, which, they said, had continued for hours with great hilarity.

Miss Collins, into whose apartment Sprague's guests flocked after the first visit of the policemen, is missing, according to Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and Tom Johnson, who are prosecuting the case. The prosecutors expect to conclude their evidence today.

Night Riders Formed to Bomb and Burn Cattle, Witnesses Say in Lantz Inquiry

Twelve farmers of Will and Kendall counties, all members of the Pure Milk association, were questioned by State's Attorney Hjalmar Rehn at Joliet yesterday concerning the incendiary fire which last Friday destroyed the dairy herd of Isaac Lantz, Plainfield independent dairyman who quit the association last March. Lants has since been retailing his milk in Aurora. Forty-three head of cattle died in the fire. The quiz brought out the following charges:

1. That upon Lantz's invasion of the Aurora market, members of the Aurora local of the Pure Milk association held several mass meetings after one of which, witnesses said, two bands of night riders were organized to bomb or apply a torch to the Lantz barns and to the barns of another independent, John Tillottson of Yorkville.

Started on Their Mission.

2. That the two gangs set out on their mission one night last August and were turned back by receipt of word that Lants and Tillottson were awaiting their arrival with shotguns.

3. That Congressman Frank R. Reid of Aurora, attorney for the association, had employed private detectives prior to the fire to "investigate" Lantz.

Bernard Myers, Will county dairyman and secretary-treasurer of the Aurora local, was one of the principal witnesses. Myers admitted hearing threats uttered against Lantz and Willottson at a meeting of the local in Aurora last August.

He said the meeting had been called to organize a strike and establish picketing against an Aurora milk dealer who had been accused of short weighting the association members. The Lantz case, he said, came up incidentally. The officers of the local, he averred, had cautioned against violence.

Regarding Congressman Reid, Myers admitted that Reid had employed the detective agency last June. He failed to remember what agency had been hired, or the fee that had been paid. He said that he, as treasurer of the local, had made out no checks to any detective agency, and "assumed" that Reid had employed the detectives on his own initiative.

Prosecutor Rehn and Deputy State Fire Marshal P. E. Bertram, collaborating with the prosecutor, pressed Myers as to the object of employing the detectives. Myers, the prosecutor said, appeared vague on that point, but finally hazarded the opinion that the purpose was to establish Lantz's financial condition in order to determine how long he could continue his independent operations.

Other witnesses questioned were Seth Wheeler, Kendall county, a director of the Aurora local; John Herren, Kendall county; Myron Haas, past president of the Aurora local; Frank Shoger, Aurora township; Edward Harvey, William O'Connell, and Albert Shiffer, all living near Wolf's Crossing, Kendall county.

Many Heard of Threats.

"The gist of their testimony," Mr. Rehn said, "was that all had heard threats to destroy Lantz's property. Several are prepared to swear that members of the association made such threats and were prepared to burn or blow up the Lants barns or put him out of business by any means possible.

"We have secured sworn statements concerning a massmeeting last August, following which two bands, with about eighty men in each band, met to carry out the threats. One band, composing farmers from the vicinity of the Lantz farm, started out to burn the Tillottson place. The other, comprising neighbors of Tillottson, were out to get Lantz. Both bands broke up when a courier brought word that the farmers had been forewarned and were awaiting them with shotguns."

Mr. Rehn said he had not yet decided whether to summon Don C. Geyer of Chicago, $12,000 a year general manager of the Pure Milk association, and W. C. McQueen of Elgin, president. Geyer is also a director of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' association, the country-wide organization of dairymen's cooperatives.

In the latter capacity Geyer has recently been active in the downstate milk war, making speeches to the organized dairymen against whom two federal judges have issued injunctions to stop their campaign of rifle sniping, barn burning and milk dumping to enforce a boycott against the Pevely Dairy company of St. Louis. A. L. Krahl, former Antioch clergyman and now publicity director for the Pure Milk association, has been assisting Geyer downstate.

As a director of the national cooperative organization Geyer is reputed to carry considerable influence with the federal farm board. He and the other directors constitute a body which the farm board has empowered to pass on all applications by dairymen's cooperatives for farm board loans.

Has $227,730 Yearly Income.

Records of the Pure Milk association disclose no applications for farm board money by that group. The association's annual statement of Dec. 31, 1930, shows a yearly income of $227,730 from dues paid by members. Of this sum $39,129 went for executive salaries and expenses.

Since the last annual statement the association's income is estimated to have increased one-third, as a result of a dues increase levied upon the 18,400 members. It was in protest against the dues increase that Isaac Lantz and his brother, Carlos, quit the association.

CASTAWAY ON COCOS ISLAND VISITS CHICAGO

Gordon Brawner, 21 years old, of Springfield, Ill., who was marooned for six months with two other men on the uninhabited island of Cocos, a dot in the Pacific ocean 550 miles from Balboa, visited in Chicago yesterday on his way home. The husky youth, who gained 26 pounds on a diet of coconuts and fish, has already lost 10 pounds since and his companions were rescued from the island by the American gunboat Sacramento on Oct. 27. He, with Paul Stachwick of Huron, S. D., and Elmer J. Pallister of San Diego, Cal., were cast on the island when their yawl, West Wind, sank in a storm in April.

U. S. LOOKS INTO DENVER KILLING BY DRY AGENT

State-Wide Protest Forces Action.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The federal inquiry into the slaying of 26 year old Milford G. Smith of Englewood, a suburb, by Federal Prohibition Agent Henry Dierks over possession of three ounces of wine got under way tonight with two special investigators questioning witnesses of the struggle.

The government acted only after state-wide protests to President Hoover and Colorado's congressional delegation stirred the prohibition department into action.

John F. Vivian, prohibition administrator for this district, has not made a move to determine the facts of the case, preferring to take the word of his agents against sworn statements of Englewood officials and citizens.

Inquiry Is Secret.

The inquiry tonight was secret, with State's Attorney Joe L. E. Stone, who will prosecute Dierks on a murder charge, attending for the state. P. A. Shirley and Sam H. Scott are the special investigators working for the government, which has shielded Dierks at every opportunity.

Among the witnesses who were questioned were Police Chief Jack Russell of Englewood, Miss Victoria Johnson, sweetheart of Smith, to whom she was to have been married three days after the day on which he was slain; Miss Margaret Clark, an eyewitness to the attack; Alyie Green, the youth's uncle, who was threatened by a federal prohibition agent when he refused to sign a false statement of what had occurred, and Leonard Carpenter, owner of the restaurant in which the attack occurred.

Arapahoe county officials tonight expressed themselves as confident that the result of the investigation will be the suspension of Dierks.

State Wants to Try Case.

District Attorney Stone said tonight that he will file in federal District court tomorrow a petition to have the case transferred back to the Arapahoe county District court, from which it was taken after a writ to that effect had been issued by Federal Judge J. Foster Symes.

Announcement was made in Washington that no record of Dierks' "boy slapping" activities has even been made there. Dierks is accused of slapping a handcuffed prisoner with his revolver. Later the youth was freed of a liquor violation charge by a directed verdict in federal court.

Neither do Washington records contain mention of Dierks' trouble in Boulder, Colo., in 1925, when as a stool pigeon he gathered evidence against a number of private citizens who later were acquitted. Protests made to Administrator Vivian there were dismissed without investigation as to their merit.

BIG MIDWEST LIQUOR SYNDICATE CHARGED IN PEORIA TRIAL

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 18.—(AP)—The government centered its attack in the tri-city liquor conspiracy trial today on those of the twenty-nine co-defendants who are charged with having been partners in a huge midwest liquor syndicate over a three year period. Three of the defendants —Nick Coin, Mike Talarico, and Isadore Lucchesi, all of Davenport, Ia.—were pointed out by witnesses.

United States District Attorney Frank K. Lemon began a line of questioning which he said would connect the three with a huge distillery raided near Rock Island. Four Rock Island county officials testified that Lucchesi and Talarico had been arrested in liquor raids, convicted and fined.

The court admitted their testimony "for the present," and the government set about attempting to prove a conspiracy to supply Iowa and northern Illinois towns with liquor, particularly the tri-cities.

Reeves Claims Drys Attempt to Ban Priest from Radio

Letters were sent to a chain of radio stations yesterday by Col. Ira L. Reeves, midwest head of the Crusaders, protesting against an attempt to bar the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit from the air. According to information received by the Crusaders, dry organizations started a movement against Father Coughlin after he came to the defense of members of the American Legion.

The Rev. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist board of temperance, prohibition, and public morals in Washington, D. C., had termed the conduct of Legionnaires during the national convention in Detroit as disgraceful. This precipitated a nation-wide discussion and Father Coughlin in radio talks denied the charges against the Legionnaires.

Charges Intimidation Attempt.

"It has come to our attention that so-called drys and reform organizations are attempting to bar Father Charles E. Coughlin from the air," said the Reeves letter. "This is in line with their general policy of intimidation and of suppressing anything American.

"This letter is being written on behalf of the membership of the Crusaders in the west central division, numbering several hundred thousand. I am sure that any concession you make to the drys in their demands for suppressing Father Coughlin would be greatly resented by this entire membership as well as by millions of people who are in sympathy with the purposes of the Crusader organization.

Attacks Fanatical Drys.

"You may be interested to know that the writer of this letter is a Methodist, a teetotaler and a dry prohibition administrator. He also wishes to state that many thousands of members of Protestant churches belong to the Crusaders, all of whom are heartily in sympathy with Father Coughlin's sermons that pertain to the Volstead act and the 18th amendment.

"It is only the fanatical drys, the dryatics, who are endeavoring to force down the throats of millions of American citizens a law which is not based on good morals nor temperance but simply fetish. You will make a great mistake if you accede to the demands of those who are making every effort to destroy the American principles of government as established by our forefathers."

Divorce Perjury Charge Against Modjeski Dropped

Reno, Nev., Nov. 18.—(Special.)—The Nevada Bar association has dropped perjury charges against Ralph Modjeski, noted bridge engineer, and son of the famous Miss Helena Modjeska, late Polish actress.

ROOSEVELT AND AL SMITH MEET LIKE OLD PALS

Governor Receives Reporter in Bed.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The much heralded conference between Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith took place in the Roosevelt town house at noon today.

Gov. Roosevelt, who in 1924 labeled Smith "the happy warrior," was just on the point of leaving for Warm Springs, Ga., for a three week vacation. He told inquirers "We discussed the financial affairs of the state."

Mr. Smith upon arriving at the Roosevelt home announced to the press that he had "come to get something to eat." The former governor left two hours and twenty-five minutes later, and when accosted by reporters removed his brown derby, tapped his forehead and said, "We discussed the financial affairs of the state."

"No politics?" he was asked.

"Politics were out the window," said Mr. Smith.

A Love Feast, It Seems.

It was "Al and Frank" whenever one was mentioned the other, and Gov. Roosevelt laughingly remarked, "It is odd that Al told you the same thing I did." At the conclusion of the conference both men appeared in jovial humor, despite the current reports that they are at odds politically. Gov. Roosevelt left New York without one word about national politics, but it is known that serious political discussions were held during the day. The governor began his morning with an interview with THE TRIBUNE reporter. He talked pleasantly while breakfasting in bed, but would not discuss what he intends to do in 1932, or what he thinks the Democratic party should do in 1932.

"Too Busy" to Talk.

The Roosevelt name is the most prominently mentioned of all the Democratic presidential aspirants, but the governor does not think the time is ripe to discuss such matters.

"I am too busy with the many affairs of the state to talk about national affairs," said Gov. Roosevelt in explanation of his silence.

"But later," he was asked, "you may have something to say?"

"Come up to Albany to see me next year," countered the governor.

Owen D. Young, another presidential possibility, was among the callers at the Roosevelt home this afternoon. He said he was there to discuss "state banking affairs."

The meeting with Mr. Smith was at the invitation of Gov. Roosevelt and comes only a few weeks after their fight over the reforestation amendment to the state constitution, in which Mr. Roosevelt triumphed over the "Happy Warrior."

Prohibition the Most Question.

It has been intimated that prohibition might have been discussed today as Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, another Democratic presidential possibility came to town the other day and talked on that subject with both Mr. Smith and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee. Gov. Ritchie is an rner Receives Reporter in Bed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—a much heralded conference between Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gov. Alfred E. Smith took place in the Roosevelt town house at today.

Roosevelt, who in 1924 labeled "the happy warrior," was just on the point of leaving for Warm Gov., for a three week vacation. He told inquirers "We discussed financial affairs of the state."

Smith upon arriving at the home announced to the that he had "come to get something to eat." The former governor for two hours and twenty-five minutes, and when accosted by reporters removed his brown derby, shook his head and said, "We discussed the financial affairs of the politics?" he was asked.

politics were out the window," Mr. Smith.

A Love Feast, It Seems.

"Al and Frank" whenever one was mentioned the other, and Roosevelt laughingly remarked, "I told that Al told you the same thing." At the conclusion of conference both men appeared in good humor, despite the current report that they are at odds politically.

Roosevelt left New York without a word about national politics, but it is known that serious political questions were held during the day. The governor began his morning with an interview with THE TRIBUNE reporter. He talked pleasantly while breakfasting in bed, but would not disclose what he intends to do in 1932, or what he thinks the Democratic party should do in 1932.

"Too Busy" to Talk.

The Roosevelt name is the most frequently mentioned of all the Democratic presidential aspirants, but the governor does not think the time is ripe to discuss such matters.

"I am too busy with the many affairs of the state to talk about national affairs," said Gov. Roosevelt in explanation of his silence.

"But now," he was asked, "you must have something to say?"

"Come up to Albany to see me next week," countered the governor.

Owen D. Young, another presidential possibility, was among the callers at the Roosevelt home this afternoon. It is said he was there to discuss "state matters."

Breakfasting with Mr. Smith was at the invitation of Gov. Roosevelt and was only a few weeks after their joint fight for reforestation amendment to state constitution, in which Mr. Smith triumphed over the "Happy Warrior."

Prohibition the Most Question.

It has been intimated that prohibition might have been discussed today as Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, another Democratic presidential possibility came to town the other day and talked on that subject with both Mr. Smith and John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee. Gov. Ritchie is an outspoken wet, as is Mr. Smith, and it has been repeatedly stated that Mr. Smith, as titular leader of the party, will demand a definite wet plank.

Unless Gov. Roosevelt decides to become more outspoken in his views on prohibition, he may have to measure his strength against that of the former governor before the Democratic convention, political observers say. Roosevelt supporters insist the governor already is strong enough politically to dictate his own plank.

A Governor at Breakfast.

A lone policeman was on sentry duty at the front steps of Gov. Roosevelt's house in East 65th street when THE TRIBUNE reporter called in response to an invitation to "come and talk to me while I have my breakfast in bed."

A Negro butler opened the door. It was just 8 o'clock, but there were signs of activity throughout the house. Two secretaries were busy making up the governor's schedule for the day. A servant trundled a tray filled with food into the service elevator and a couple of minutes later the reporter was ushered into the governor's bedchamber on the third floor.

Gov. Roosevelt was sitting up in bed making good headway with a heaping plate of pancakes.

A Husky Governor.

The governor is a big man. Sitting before his breakfast tray he looked as fit as an athlete and his doctor has said that he "is as strong as Jack Dempsey."

A wheel chair at the foot of the bed looked strangely out of place but infantile paralysis in 1921 made such conveyances necessary. Mr. Roosevelt has partly overcome his handicap and walks a little with the aid of a cane.

On the bedside table was an ash tray half filled with cigaret stubs, evidence that the governor had been reading the night before.

A tall young fellow came into the room to say good morning. He was Elliott Roosevelt, one of the governor's five children.

"You had better come back to lunch, son," said the governor, "Al will be here and you know he is entertaining."

The governor talked on all manner of pleasantries, from "two mule" farms in Georgia—he owns a Georgia farm—to how it came about that a Roosevelt should be a Democrat. Gov. Roosevelt is a sixth cousin of the Theodore Roosevelt who moved from Albany to the White House under the Republican banner.

"Nearly all of them used to be Democrats," said the governor, "all except T. R.'s father; he was the only Republican of his generation. My formative period came along during McKinley's time and naturally I was a Democrat like those before me. Theodore Roosevelt had politics in his mind from his school days. I am sure he took a look at New York City during his time and decided his best opportunities would be to go after offices as a Republican."

In the conversation Gov. Roosevelt revealed that he reads ten newspapers every morning and keeps a detective thriller and a biography by his bed for night reading—in fact, "reads everything."

LEWIS DIRECTS GUNS AT SMITH AND ROOSEVELT

Republican Revolt Flares Against Fess.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—What was construed in some quarters as an effort to forestall any patching up of the differences between Gov. Roosevelt of New York and the Smith-Raskob wing of the Democratic party in New York was contained in a statement issued today by Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois through the Democratic national committee.

Specifying no names and appearing on the surface as a call for the espousal of principles rather than of factional policies, the Illinois senator's pronouncement was read with some mystification.

Scanned against a background of Senator Lewis' recent declaration in favor of Governor Elect A. Harry Moore of New Jersey as a Democratic candidate for the presidency and Mayor Cermak's appeal for a really wet candidate, the statement was taken by many to be a further repudiation of Roosevelt and a warning to former Gov. Smith and Chairman Raskob to steer clear of an alliance with the New York governor.

Warns Against "Bargains."

Professing to see a nation-wide demand for the return of the Democratic party to power, Senator Lewis' statement went on:

"But the Democracy can lose the confidence of the public by giving the people to see that its leaders are making bargains with each other to uplift one set of candidates, overthrow another or to exalt selected policies for platform principles and defeat the demand of others.

"I read the suggestion as to harmony meetings and conferences for adoption of principles for the platform under the theory of 'avoiding a fight' as to candidates or policies of platform. I hope these proposed mechanisms will all fail. This is no time to impress the people that there is a movement afoot to create canned candidates and baked principles, particularly, coming from a single geography of our nation, which the great body of Democracy has under suspicion in its professed 'interest for the people.'

Wants Issues Fought Out.

"I hope there will be a fight by the Democracy in every state of the Union on principles such as the Democracy of that state feels necessary to the welfare of its people. Also a fight on candidates that call for examination of their standing in the present and their principles of the past, as the test of what they will be in the future.

"Then when the national convention meets, the people of our whole nation will have seen that every man has had a voice and every principle a hearing, and whatever the convention does is the true expression of Democracy."

The feeling that the nomination of President Hoover by the Republicans is a foregone conclusion, in which the people will have no voice, gives the Democratic party its chance to win the popular vote, said Senator Lewis. But the Democrats will forfeit this advantage, he declared, if they agree beforehand to fix on one particular candidate. Should the Democrats do this, he predicted, another Populist party and another Bull Moose party would spring up.

Public Demands Change.

The voters, said Senator Lewis, are in no mood to "endure any measures or mysterious movement that looks like a plan to shut the people off from expression and to reinstate the present policies of government under whatever President or whatever party may be chosen."

"Speaking for the western Democracy," he said, "I announce that it stands for an unqualified Americanism. It will not tolerate the further taxing of the home masses to poverty and the continuing bankruptcy of our treasury to serve the conspiracy of international financial magnates who use American industry and American money to enrich themselves with the bonds of foreign nations to help the industry of Europe and crush the industry and prosperity of America.

"The people of America are calling to the administration now in power to 'get out'; and are crying to Democracy 'beware.'"

Britten Takes After Fess.

Meanwhile factional troubles were disturbing the Republican ranks with another Illinoisian, Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago, striking back at Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican National committee, for having refused the recent request of former Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York that the Republican party endorse a referendum on the repeal of the 18th amendment.

"When Senator Fess says that he will use his influence to prevent the Republican party from committing the fatal blunder of asking for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment,' he is talking as a director and officer of the Anti-Saloon league and not as the representative of the Republican party," said Mr. Britten.

"In plain justice to thousands of Republican office holders all over the United States who have little or no sympathy with the silly Volstead law, Senator Fess should resign from his position as chairman of the national committee or he should resign from the directorship of the Anti-Saloon league and refrain from being its spokesman.

"I emphatically protest against being placed in a position of apology to my constituents for the personal narrow minded intolerance of the presumed spokesman of the Republican party."

MRS. PINCHOT QUITS AS DIRECTOR OF G. O. P. WOMEN'S COUNCIL

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot today announced her resignation from the board of directors of the Pennsylvania council of Republican women in protest against "the overloading of the board with organization Republican members."

Mrs. Pinchot helped to organize this group eight years ago during her husband's first term as governor.

In a letter to Mrs. Hannah M. Durham, Allentown, chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Pinchot said the organization was created with the idea that independent and organization Republican women would be given equal representation on the board.

"For the first five or six years such a balance was scrupulously kept," she said. "Since then the situation has changed. Year by year the board has become increasingly representative of the organization point of view."

She said that she was not resigning as a member of the council.

TAKE SALOON AND MIX WELL WITH RELIGION, BISHOP TELLS CLERGY.

ADELAIDE, Australia, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Saloons should be conducted "in an atmosphere of religion to cultivate a spirit of temperance," Dr. Richard Thomas, Anglican bishop of Willochra, south Australia, told an important clerical gathering here today.

"More harm is often done by overeating than by overdrinking," Dr. Thomas continued. "Temperance, not prohibition, is needed.

"The tea and coffee sold in some restaurants and cafés is definitely of bad quality and they probably do more harm than intoxicating drinks."

Drop Kidnaping Charges; Two Witnesses Missing

Charges of kidnaping and assault to kill against John Connors, 24 years old, and John Gill, 25 years old, alleged labor sluggers, were dropped yesterday in the Felony court when the prosecution announced its inability to locate witnesses. Charles Noller, 4621 North Albany avenue, and Lloyd Schneider, 4133 Barry avenue, Irish setters, alleged victims, went on a "fishing trip which was not to be concluded until the case is disposed of," the police say they were told at the homes of the men.

notify the league of nations to have the fighting stopped."

Loses Faith in League.

A few minutes later Gen. Ma must have decided that the league could not get around in time to stop any fighting, because he ordered his artillery to begin replying to the Japanese guns. Japanese airmen immediately attacked the Chinese gun positions. Gen. Ma had only one aircraft gun, which was not effective.

Harbin was thrown into wild excitement a few hours later by a despatch from the front stating that Gen. Ma's troops had evacuated their front line positions and had fallen back to trenches previously prepared and paralleling the Chinese Eastern railway, adjacent to Anganchi.

Then came word that the Chinese troops had retreated to Anganchi at noon and that the Japanese were expected to attack Anganchi before 2 o'clock.

Plane Bomb Tsitsihar.

The despatch said extreme confusion existed in Anganchi, with Japanese planes dropping bombs about the station and in the railway yards. Other Japanese planes flew to Tsitsihar, 30 miles north, and dropped bombs in the vicinity of the provincial headquarters of Gen. Ma.

A number of American correspondents who had purchased tickets and expected to proceed to Tsitsihar this afternoon received a message from George Hanson, American consul at Harbin, who was in Tsitsihar just a few minutes before the train's departure. It said:

"Japanese offensive started at four this morning making situation on Nonni river most serious. As conditions are unsettled and dangerous both at Anganchi and at Tsitsihar station, it is not believed advisable for foreigners to proceed beyond the limits of the Chinese Eastern railway zone. The seriousness of the situation is confirmed by both Chinese and Japanese circles."

Chinese Try to Hold Out.

At 4 o'clock a report from railway sources at Anganchi reached here. It said part of the front lines of the Chinese were still holding out against Japanese attacks but that most of the troops had dropped back to a line behind the Chinese Eastern railway tracks.

The message said the Japanese offensive included one division of infantry, with twelve tanks, 27 planes, mostly bombers, and ninety pieces of artillery. The fierce Mongolian snow and sand storm was still raging, making fighting very difficult, the message stated.

A few minutes later a report from Chinese sources, which could not be confirmed, said the Japanese advance had been temporarily halted by the collapse of the newly repaired bridge across the Nonni river while a military train was crossing it. Several cars, loaded with troops, were reported to have fallen in the river.

Troops Lay Pontoon Bridge.

Under artillery fire, Japanese troops soon started laying a pontoon bridge across the stream, according to a Chinese dispatch.

As the Japanese advance continued on past Anganchi, Japanese planes flew over Tsitsihar announcing that the Japanese intended to occupy the city and promising not to molest the civilian population or damage property in the event that the Chinese submitted and did not interfere with Japan's troops.

The city was reported to have been occupied by the Japanese army at 8 p. m.

Put Casualties at Thousands.

TOKIO, Nov. 19.—[Thursday.]—(AP)—Japanese casualties in the fighting south of Tsitsihar yesterday totaled 300 and Chinese losses were 800 dead and 2,000 wounded, according to a dispatch to the newspaper Jiji Shimpo.

A Taonan dispatch to the newspaper Asahi said a hospital train from Anganchi passed through the city and on it were sixty wounded Japanese soldiers and the bodies of 49 others.

The Asahi's correspondent at the front flew over the battlefield in an airplane, he said, and saw "countless dead and wounded Chinese." The ground was pitted with bomb holes from the Japanese air attack and was covered with the wreckage of light artillery, dead horses and overturned ammunition carts.

Fear was expressed today that the occupation of Tsitsihar would bring soviet Russia actively into the Manchurian conflict.

The Japanese government, it was said, has no intention of remaining permanently in Tsitsihar or Anganchi. The occupation was described as a temporary military measure.

JAPAN WINS NORTH MANCHURIA

By its capture of Tsitsihar and Anganchi yesterday, Japan destroyed the last vestiges of Chinese government control in Manchuria. It also invaded the soviet Russian sphere of influence in northern Manchuria.

Following the treaty of Portsmouth, which ended the Russian-Japanese war, Japan and Russia acquired spheres of influence in Manchuria, due to their railway interests. China, in recent years, has sought to offset Japan's influence by building competing railways and this was one of the causes of the controversy which finally led Japan on Sept. 18 last to begin its seizure of Manchuria in order to end the rule of Chang Hsueh-liang, the young war lord, an ally of the Nationalist government of China.

JAPAN BLAMES SOVIET RAILWAY FOR HOSTILITIES

Sends Protest Note to Moscow.

TOKIO, Nov. 19 (Thursday).—(AP)—Japan has notified the soviet government of its intention to hold the Chinese Eastern railway "partly responsible" for hostilities in Manchuria because it transported Chinese troops.

The Japanese note was in reply to a reminder recently from Maxim Litvinov, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, that Japan had assured Russia soviet interests in Manchuria would be protected. The soviet government informed Tokio of reports that the Japanese high command planned to cut the Chinese Eastern railway near Tsitsihar.

Japan Blames China.

Japan's reply, sent to Moscow yesterday before the Japanese advance against the Chinese began in the Nonni river area, said that if hostilities broke out the Japanese government "would hold the Chinese Eastern railway partly responsible as having transported Chinese troops."

Responsibility for the Nonni outbreak rested with the Chinese, the reply to Litvinoff emphasized, as it had been established that after the clash of Nov. 5, Gen. Ma's troops were reinforced from Hailar and other points by means of transportation over the Chinese eastern railway.

Guarantees Every Precaution.

Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister, assured the soviet commissar that in event Japanese should be compelled to advance on the railway they would take every precaution not to interfere with its operation, "providing the Chinese do not utilize the Chinese Eastern railway for military purposes."

Hijackers Kidnap Driver, Steal 171 Women's Coats

A truck bearing 171 women's coats valued at $3,400 was hijacked late last night by three bandits at Kilbourn avenue and Lake street. The driver, Maurice Rappaport, 9422 North Irving avenue, who says he is a representative of the Graceline Coat company of New York, told Fillmore street police that the robbers kidnaped him at the same time, releasing him at Larrabee street and North avenue. They took from him $234 and a ring worth $250, he said.

TOKIO WAR CHIEF TELLS WHY JAPAN IS INVADING CHINA

Insists Nanking Tramples on Her Treaties.

(Minister of War Jiro Minami of Japan has written the following article explaining the Japanese position in the Manchurian conflict. It follows a similar story yesterday by Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, ousted Manchurian governor, giving the Chinese version.)

BY JIRO MINAMI.
(Japanese Minister of War.)
[Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.]

TOKIO, Nov. 18.—China is attempting to carry out her national policy by trampling upon existing treaties with Japan.

Japan has no intention of developing the present trouble, but has been forced to take various military measures to protect Japanese interests in Manchuria, including the Taonan-Anganchi railroad, which was built with Japanese loans but which the Chinese defaulted owing to China's insincerity and defiant attitude.

Says China Disregards Facts.

The clashes of Japanese and Chinese at Tashin were due entirely to disregard of agreements on the part of the Chinese. Why are the powers maintaining troops in China? Why do the powers still have extraterritoriality rights in China?

There was no other way out for Japan excepting a resort to arms in order to protect the lives and property of Japanese in Manchuria, where there is no adequate government and bandits are raiding the countryside from time to time.

The present trouble in Manchuria is a matter of deep regret to both China and Japan, and we hope the dispute will be settled in such a way as to make certain there will not be a recurrence.

Lists Chinese Depredations.

All the latest figures are not at hand, but Chinese depredations from the time of the outbreak on Sept. 18 until Oct. 26 include 550 Japanese killed by Chinese soldiers, 150 women assaulted, 800 houses burned, and more than 2,000 houses looted.

The figures on losses suffered by Japanese in the interior are unknown, but they are believed to be great, aside from the damage inflicted by bandits. During the last 54 days Japanese detachments have been dispatched to more than 60 points, in efforts to protect the Chinese from their own marauding bands.

BRITISH TROOPS IN KASHMIR LOOKED ON AS THREAT BY RUSSIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—News reached London today that a Russian force made up of 17 squadrons of cavalry with machine guns, six batteries of howitzers, and 3,000 infantry from Samarkand had established themselves at Kashgar, near the Kashmir border of India. Kashgar is nominally Chinese but is really independent and said to be coveted by both Great Britain and Russia.

On the other side of Mount Godwin are British troops occupying Kashmir, and there is believed to be danger of a clash. The Russian government has given notice in a note to Afghanistan that the British occupation of Kashmir has changed the status quo on the frontier and that Moscow is bound to regard it seriously.

BALD HEADS TRY TO CRASH GATE AT HAIR CLINIC

Persistent applicants for medical treatment for baldness and falling hair tried in vain yesterday to "crash the gate" at the University of Illinois hospital clinic where Dr. B. Norman Bengston of Maywood is conducting experiments. Only those patients previously accepted as subjects received the serum injections used to stimulate the hair growth.

"Come back in three months—maybe we can take you then," was the usual answer of attendants to the new patients. One large, bald headed man protested volubly: "I've got to have hair. I can't wait three months. I'm going to get married, see, in six months and I got to have hair."

"We can't promise you anything," was the response. "This is purely an experiment. You'd better try coming back in three months."

As to the progress of the clinic, Dr. Bengston was uncommunicative. Nothing can be determined at this stage of the experiments, he declared, nor can any definite results be expected, either favorable or otherwise, for from three to six months.

Chinese Boycott Slashes Japanese Trade in Half

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Nov. 18.—The Chinese boycott, which was declared as a result of the Manchurian controversy, has reduced Japanese shipping in China waters by 50 per cent. Figures for October show the total Japanese tonnage engaged with China was 14,300 tons, compared with 28,100 in 1930.

SLAYS MARRIED PAIR IN STREET; THEN KILLS SELF

Killer Uses Two Guns; Son of Pair Escapes.

Dennison, O., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Russell C. Scheidigger, 25 years old, and his wife, Blanche, 24, were strolling home from a movie here tonight. Between them walked their 12 year old son, Russell Jr. Scheidigger was a Pennsylvania railroad conductor.

Unnoticed by the couple and the boy, a coupe had been following them slowly from the theater door. They were within three blocks of their home when the car drew alongside. A man alighted, crossed the plot of grass and faced them.

Without speaking he drew a pistol, fired two shots into Scheidigger's heart and cast away the weapon. Then he drew a shotgun from beneath his overcoat and fired a single charge into Mrs. Scheidigger's back. Husband and wife died instantly.

Woman Neighbor Wounded.

Two stray slugs glanced off the sidewalk and struck Mrs. Eugene Rennicker, a neighbor of the Scheidigger's, who was walking ahead. Russell Jr., who had escaped death by dropping to the pavement, ran screaming to police headquarters as the slayer returned to his car and sped away.

Within fifteen minutes Police Chief Martin Myers had a posse organized. The trail was picked up on the outskirts of town and the coupe was closely pursued to Cadiz, 25 miles away. There the trail was lost, as the slayer twisted through traffic and doubled back towards Dennison.

Meanwhile other officers were seeking to establish a possible motive by questioning the boy. Russell Jr. said he had never seen the killer before. Mayor J. L. Maxwell joined the investigation.

The Mayor Prophesies.

"I think I know who did the killing," he said. "He's a Dennison man. I think I know the motive, also, but I can't reveal it at this time. I surmise that he will take his life before allowing himself to be captured."

As the mayor spoke, Chief Myers entered the station to report that the coupe had again been seen dodging about in Dennison. Every available officer was ordered out to surround the town.

Finally a search party spotted an unlighted coupe on the outskirts. As a group of police approached, they heard a shot, and a lady toppled out of the car into the road.

The slayer had fulfilled the mayor's prediction. He was identified as Thomas Wheeler, 34, [illegible] brakeman of Dennison. He was a son of Isaac Wheeler of Canton, O., who had killed his wife and committed suicide at Canton, O., fifteen years ago.

"Wheeler was unmarried," Mayor Maxwell said. "Recently he had been forcing his attentions on Mrs. Scheidigger, so her husband told me. Scheidigger had warned Wheeler to keep away. Knowing the brakeman's violent temper, he had told me of his trouble."

ST OF 21 'MINE WAR' MURDER TRIALS IS BEGUN

...ts of Kentucky Versus Communism.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Mount Sterling, Ky., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Here, in the peaceful Blue Grass region, far from the bitter labor wars in the eastern Kentucky coal fields, the first of a long series of murder and conspiracy trials growing out of the conflict opened today before Circuit Judge Henry R. Prewitt.

After a jury of eight farmers, two ...ers, one service station man, ... hotelkeeper had been chosen ... morning the commonwealth be... the presentation of evidence ... William Burnett, a black ... miner from Harlan county, ... is accused of the killing of ... Sheriff Jesse Pace near Evarts, ... on April 17.

The trial moved swiftly and is confined only a curtain raiser for the ... case which is to open here next ... when eight more defendants ... Harlan county mine war kill... are to be placed on trial. This ... be followed by the trial of ... more in Winchester, and in the meantime Harlan county courts ... crowded with a docket of 47 cases.

A War on Communism.

Underneath it all in Kentucky's vigorous war against the communistic ... which flooded the coal fields ... the beginning of the trouble there ... a year ago and won a thousand or ... miners to its banner. Seven ... were lost in various battles, four ... of them being county peace officers. ... troops were called in, the American Legion took a hand, and the communists were driven under ground.

The struggle now shifts to the courts, where the International Labor Defense, Theodore Dreiser's Committee for the Defense of Political Prisoners, and the National Miners' union, a communist organization, are arrayed against the state and coal operators. It all promises to produce a celebrated case. The trials have already been characterized as "another Tom Mooney frameup" by the defense lawyers.

The Burnett trial opened quietly, with Judge Prewitt ordering all guns ... and threatening to fine any one $5 for talking in the courtroom.

Recalls the Marion Scene.

The scene is much like that at Marion, Ill., when the Herrin massacre trials were called. It is the same sort of an old red brick county courthouse, with the same type of dark-haired, hawk-faced jurymen showing ... the spectators. The commonwealth attorney, W. C. Hamilton, ... a veteran of Delos Duty, ... in Herrin prosecutions.

There is this difference, however, that where the killers had every one convicted at Herrin, it seems to be the state that is in the saddle here. The question of communism that lurks in the background only arose ... once today. One of the talesmen ... said that if communism ... the case he could not give it a fair trial. He was excused promptly ... a motion to discharge the entire ... was denied.

Defense Shows Its Hand.

Burnett has as his chief defense lawyer, Capt. Ben H. Golden of Pineville, the city which recently became famous as the scene of the Dreiser fiasco and the "toothpick indictment." W. B. White, a local attorney, is acting in the defense and the state has the assistance of two special prosecutors, J. D. Snyder and F. M. Jones.

Burnett's defense, as it developed today in opening statements and in cross-examination of the first witness, will be that he did not shoot Pace, but that he himself was shot in the hand by the officer as he was holding his hands in the air in surrender.

George Lee, a Hardin county deputy sheriff, was the first witness. He testified that he went out with a group of officers to serve warrants on several men for "banding and combining," and that at the place of the shooting, near Evarts, twenty-five or thirty men had gathered. There were about that number of officers in four automobiles.

Lee said that as Pace approached a mail car Burnett fired two shots at him.

"Those were the two guns that Burnett had," said the officer, as the clerk brought out two long, wicked-looking revolvers and laid them on the desk by the gentle blue jacketed stenographer. They were a .45 and a .38. Burnett threw the .38 caliber gun on the ground and shot Pace with the .45, according to Lee. He said the deputy died an hour later and that a .45 bullet was found in his abdomen.

Pace, this witness said, did not touch his own pistols until he fell to the ground.

Frank White, another young deputy sheriff, said that he was standing with Pace shortly before the shooting and that he saw Burnett and another man run behind a railroad car. The officers had served one of their warrants on a Negro just before this.

Shooting Again Described.

"Watch that 'gon' [gondola car] girl," Jim Daniels, another deputy who was killed two weeks later, said

Shooting Again Described.

"Watch that 'gon' [gondola coal ...]" Jim Daniels, another deputy ... was killed two weeks later, said ... as Burnett disappeared, according to White's testimony. He then told Pace and White to see who had gone behind the car.

White said that Burnett fired two or three shots, although later admitting that he could not see the defendant, and that another man had gone around the car with him.

"Then Burnett turned to me," said White. "He shot at me four times. I fell over a bank and was not hit."

He also identified the .45 gun as the one with which Burnett had done the shooting.

"Did you do anything?" asked the cross-examiner. "Yes, when he shot at me, I shot at him. I shot four times, I guess."

Denies Waylaying Burnett.

"Didn't you go up to Burnett and ask him where he was going and when he said he was going home you told him with an oath that he was not going anywhere and shot him in the hand while his hands were up?"

"No, sir."

Earl Brock, another deputy, a son of the district attorney of Harlan county, testified that he saw Burnett shoot Pace twice, and then saw the battle between Burnett and White.

On cross-examination he said that he shot at Burnett, using a 20 inch barrel shotgun loaded with buckshot, also that he saw Pace shooting at Burnett, emptying one pistol and firing three shots from a second pistol. White, he said, fired five or six times at Burnett, who was hit in the hand, leg and shoulder, although not seriously hurt.

Arthur Baham, a resident of Evarts, put a new angle on the case in his testimony during the night session. He said that the first firing started when Burnett, whom he knew, fired at Deputy Sheriff White. He knew Pace, he said, and saw him at one end of the railroad car, but he did not see him do any shooting and did not see Burnett shoot Pace. Burnett was occupied, he said, with White. He saw 3 or 4 other men around the end of the car with Burnett. This testimony apparently surprised the prosecution and court was adjourned soon after this.

The Baham testimony agrees with the story that Burnett has told his attorneys and which he is expected to tell on the witness stand. The whole thing started when White fired at him, he maintained.

Harry Daniels, 13 years old, testified that he was at the scene and saw Burnett fire 2 shots at Pace. Pace, he said, fired 3 or 4 shots. There were many other shots fired by other men.

Mrs. Helen Kelly of Evarts said some one from behind the coal car shot Pace. Mrs. Ellen Huston testified that Pace shot after he fell. Dwight Pace, cousin of Jess and storekeeper for a coal company, told the same story.

FLATLY DENIES U.S. HAS CHANGED EUROPEAN POLICY

Stimson Also Contradicts Manchuria Report.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—This was denial day at the state department. Taking cognizance of three stories regarding American war debt and Manchurian policies, Secretary Stimson today proceeded to declare them without foundation.

Turning to a widely circulated report today stating that the United States had sent a note to the American embassy in France carrying a new American proposal for revising intergovernmental debts, Mr. Stimson said:

"There has been no change whatsoever in the attitude of the United States toward the procedure under discussion in Europe in regard to the European problem of reparations as originally expressed in the Hoover-Laval communique last month. No change in this attitude is in contemplation. No new proposal whatsoever has been made by the United States in regard to the intergovernmental debts due it, nor has the subject even been discussed. The cables exchanged between the state department and its embassies have been only for the purpose of keeping us informed regarding the situation in Europe, and we are not in any way participating in the European negotiations."

Hoover Position on Debts.

The Hoover position on war debts is that no move to scale down the allies' debts to this country will be made until after the allies have made arrangements which will lead to a scaling down of the reparations payments made by Germany.

Apparently the Hoover administration intends to lead a movement to permit European nations to repudiate at least part of their war debts in event reparations are lowered.

A note outlining the Hoover stand as revised during the Hoover-Laval conversations was sent to the American embassy at Paris yesterday. This note was largely a summary of the stand the United States has taken on reparations and war debts in the past and the stand it takes today.

A request by the French financial attaché made to Secretary Mellon was responsible for the restatement of Hoover administration debt policy.

On China and Japan.

With the debt situation disposed of, Mr. Stimson gave out a statement denying that the United States has changed its attitude on the Manchurian situation. He said the government "has consistently urged that only peaceful means and not military pressure should be used in the settlement of the dispute between China and Japan regarding Manchuria."

He stated that the American government has not proposed any terms of settlement either to Japan or China and "has made no commitments, either expressed or implied, to either of the disputants."

ASK POLICE TO RENEW HUNT FOR GIRL WITNESS

Police yesterday were asked to renew their search for Gertruda Thomas, 22 years old, 7924 Rhodes avenue, prosecution witness against Harry J. Mapp, south side automobile dealer. The latter is charged with embezzling $35,000 from the Marquette Finance company, of which he formerly was the head. Miss Thomas was private secretary to Mapp.

Michael Tomkutonis, father of the girl, yesterday asked the state's attorney's office to renew the search. Mapp's trial was continued from Oct. 15 to Dec. 15 to permit the state to locate witnesses.

Tomkutonis said the family had heard indirectly that the girl was with friends. He said he believes the girl is being held against her will.

SENATE ASSAILS REVENUE PLANS OF TAX ADVISERS

Sponsors of Program Are Heckled.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The senate followed the lead of the house today, indulging in whole hearted condemnation of the income and tobacco tax bills put forward as principal planks in the program of the governor's tax conference.

Most of the day was devoted to brisk cross-examination of Earl C. Smith and John C. Watson of the Illinois Agricultural association, sponsor and "father," respectively, of the "income tax, and these men found themselves in the same position in which they stood in the house yesterday—without vocal champions. Many senators put them through severe catechisms; none came t. their aid.

Demand Rejected Plans.

Almost the first action of the day was the adoption by the upper house of the Courtney resolution calling upon the tax conference to appear before it with all plans offered for tax relief during the four months it held sessions in Chicago. The sentiment sensed in accord ith the expression of Senator N. M. Mason [Rep., Oglesby], who remarked,

"I'm more interested in what they rejected than in what they accepted."

When the senate does have its chance to interrogate the members of the conference's executive committee, Thomas J. Courtney [Dem., Chicago] and minority leader, will examine them thoroughly, he said this afternoon, on what happened during the score of secret sessions from which the public was barred.

Douglas Sutherland, the conference secretary, appeared first today, saying briefly that the conference representatives are "not here in a spirit of argument," but present their plan as the best brought to their attention. He introduced Mr. Smith, who is president of the farm group. Smith had not gone far in his technical explanation of the income tax provision when he was tackled by Senator James Monroe [Dem., Collinsville].

Discrimination Assailed.

"There are certain provisions of your platform that seem discriminatory," said Monroe. "Why do you choose to tax one commodity and not another? For instance, there is already a tax upon heavy trucks, but you want another. Why not choose plows, printing presses, or something else?"

"Because of their widespread use," Smith answered, "and the effect they have upon the highways."

"Do you think we should restrict the use of the highways?" the senator asked. Smith replied that Illinois is not now charging truck taxes as high as those in effect in other states.

"Well, what about the tax on tobacco?" Monroe persisted. "Why that?"

"A number of states are now taxing tobacco," said Smith.

"A constitutional provision says that all taxes must be uniform, do you think that is being complied with?"

"I couldn't give you an intelligent answer to that question, but we were advised the tobacco tax was legal," Smith replied.

Income Tax on Grill.

Watson succeeded Smith for a further defense of the income tax and became the immediate bait of Senator Courtney.

"Why does the conference believe an income tax is constitutional?" demanded the Democratic leader. "Why do you put it up to the legislature when the people turned it down once before?"

"We believe it constitutional," said Watson.

"And you," cried Courtney with some heat, "you are probably the father of an income tax bill. No matter what question was asked, you'd say it was constitutional. Why do you turn down a general sales tax?"

"It is doubtful if it could be successfully administered," Watson replied.

Senator Joseph A. Mandel [Dem., Chicago], who introduced a bill this morning calling for a one-half cent general sales tax on each dollar sale, took Watson to task.

Asked About Alternative Plans.

"When you're through," he shouted, "there won't be a senator on the floor who knows what this income tax bill is all about. Why don't you come out for a general sales tax? That's a tax the poor man won't feel and no merchant would kick on paying fifty cents on each $100 sales or $5 on sales of $1,000."

"What's the matter with an amusement tax? Was that considered?" asked Courtney.

"I wasn't a member of the conference," said Watson.

"That's it exactly," declared Courtney, "whenever there's a question to be answered you were out of the room."

Courtney then asked why chewing gum had not been considered, but got little satisfaction from Watson, so he suggested: "You go back and find out."

Would Tax Official Incomes.

Senator Harold C. Kessinger [Rep., Aurora] elicited from Watson that the salaries of legislators and other public officials would be taxable under the income tax bill.

"Under what theory," ruminated Arthur A. Huebsch [Rep., Brookfield], "do they justify taking public moneys in the form of a tax?"

In addition to hearing from other experts of the tax conference, the Senate added bills to its own calendar during the day. Besides the Mendel bill the others included:

A bill for a $2,600,000 bond issue for incinerators in Chicago, introduced by Ritchie V. Graham [Dem.] at the request of Public Works Commissioner Sprague; one to place a 2 per cent tax upon the net incomes of corporations by Senator Mason; another by Courtney to place a 2 cent tax per $100 on stock transfers, and a fourth by Senator William R. McCauley [Rep., Olney] which would repeal the judges' pension act.

SCHOOL BOARD BUYS 50,000 PAMPHLETS TO PUSH BOND BILLS

In the hope of gaining support for the school board's legislative program, the trustees yesterday voted to have printed 50,000 pamphlets for distribution, particularly among the 18,000 school board employés. A letter is to accompany each pamphlet urging the recipient to visit his state representative.

The first order of pamphlets is to cost $653 and postage was estimated at a minimum of $500, a total of $1,153. Additional lots of 50,000 pamphlets can be obtained for $596, it was explained. The action was designated as an emergency measure and adopted at a meeting of the finance committee of which James A. Hemingway is chairman. Chicago's teachers and other school board employés have been paid in cash once since last April.

The pamphlets explain the four bills proposed by the school board: A $75,000,000 bond issue for the working cash fund, a $50,000,000 bond issue for building purposes; third and fourth supplementary bills intended to lower the tax levy to a point where the bond issues will entail no increase in taxes. The pamphlet says that during the 20 year operation of the plan it will save $18,750,000. The pamphlet was prepared by Trustee William D. McJunkin.

REALTY OWNERS' TAX OFFENSIVE MEETS REBUFF

House Lays Plans to Nullify It.

imprisonment from 1 to 15 years for "tax fixing" by an assessor or deputy. The other would provide 1 to 7 year penalties for false schedules or refusals to schedule.

New tax bills continued to come in. Sol Handy, Democrat from Marshall, presented his measure to tax chewing gum 20 per cent. Ray O'Keefe of Chicago handed in the most sweeping sales tax bill, another 2 per cent proposition, that has been presented so far. William Warfield, Chicago Republican, presented a bill to tax receivers' fees 5 per cent, and another one to require receivers to pay delinquent taxes before making any other disbursements. Warfield's bill for a moratorium on foreclosures and the interest on debts, which was withheld yesterday by Speaker Shanahan's orders, was allowed to come in.

One important economy measure was a bill by W. C. Chynoweth [Rep., Decatur] for the elimination of three of the eleven coda departments. It would provide for the transfer of the duties of the department of purchases and construction to the department of public works, the consolidation of the department of mines with the labor department and the amalgamation of the conservation department with the department of agriculture. It is not conceded a chance for the administration support that would be required for its enactment.

Tax Reformers Explain.

The chief speakers for the governor's tax conference program were Ray Wantz, a Rockford manufacturer who is a member of the executive committee of the body; Attorney Max Murdock and Victor Olander of the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Mr. Wantz and Attorney Murdock devoted themselves to the bills for the creation of two public expenditures commissions, one for Cook county and the other for downstate. Mr. Olander discussed the methods used in the preparation of the program, but also devoted some time to the proposal to rebuild the Cook county taxing machinery.

On this subject, he said he had approved the bill for appointive officials, but that officers of the Chicago Federation of Labor insisted that while the number of tax officials might well be reduced, they should be elected.

He Gives His Reasons.

In response to questions by Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Chicago Republican, he said the argument in favor of an elective assessor is that he will be more responsive to public opinion and that election instead of appointment would make it more difficult for political leaders to manipulate the tax machinery.

A few moments later James Boyle of Chicago moved that a committee of ten be appointed to redraft the bill by substituting election for appointment, but he was ruled out of order, as the house was sitting as a committee of the whole.

Mr. Wantz in advocating the creation of the public expenditures commissions said they would constitute an ounce of prevention against the misuse of public funds.

"Their reports," he said, "will pave the way for confining levies to necessary expenditures, and by subjecting all public contracts to the light of publicity, will prevent what, if shrouded in darkness, might mean waste of millions."

TAXPAYERS PLAN CAPITAL INVASION DESPITE ASSEMBLY

Thirty-five representatives of various improvement and taxpayers' associations met last night and decided to go ahead with their plans to invade the state capital on Dec. 2. Despite the announcement from Springfield yesterday that the legislators would not hear public protests on that date the group said that the lawmakers would be forced to hear them when they saw the magnitude of the crowd which will seek a hearing.

The newly formed organization is known as the Associated Organizations for Tax Relief and has taken quarters in the Ashland block, 155 North Clark street. Axel Lonnquist, real estate developer, said that low round trip rates have been arranged with the Illinois Central and Chicago and Alton railroads to carry the real estate owners to Springfield.

WINKLER ALIBI PROBERS RETURN, SILENT ON TRIP

County Attorney Max Towle of Lincoln, Neb., and Sergt. Roy Steffens of the Secret Six returned yesterday from Buffalo, N. Y., where they have been investigating an alibi of Gus Winkler, accused in the $2,500,000 Lincoln National Bank and Trust company robbery.

Neither of the investigators would state the results of their trip. Towle said he was going back to Lincoln and that further investigation would be required before he could disclose what was learned of Winkler's alibi.

Winkler, a pal of Fred Burke, notorious bank robber, now serving a life term for murder and affiliated with the Capone gang, claims he was in a Buffalo hotel on the day of the robbery, Sept. 17, 1930. He is at liberty in bond of $100,000 and offers to procure the recovery of $600,000 of the stolen securities and to prove the remainder of the $2,500,000 loot has been destroyed if the charges against him are dismissed.

Council Puts $100 Fee on Curb Gasoline Pumps

The city council yesterday passed an ordinance licensing curb gasoline pumps and fixing a license fee of $100 for each pump. There are some 2,000 curb pumps in the city, the council was told. The council passed an ordinance in 1923 ordering the removal of all curb pumps within a year, but the measure was never enforced, and the pumps have paid the city no revenue since that time.

MR. OFFER IS TAKEN BY CON MEN; HIS LOSS ABOUT $60,000

Karl Offer, secretary treasurer of the Vino Sano Wine Brick company of San Francisco, passed in Chicago yesterday to look over some pictures in the rogues' gallery at the detective bureau. He is looking for three men who fleeced him out of $60,000 by means of the old race horse game.

Mr. Offer met the swindlers about a week ago on a previous trip to Chicago. One of them posed as a lawyer and another as the secretary to a big brewer. They wished to receive the wine brick rights for Iowa and Minnesota, they said, and invited Mr. Offer to go to St. Paul with them to interview their backer. He agreed.

While at luncheon there, one of the two men picked up a purse containing $120 and cards. The wallet was traced to a turf man and returned. In appreciation the turf man gave Mr. Offer and his friends information on horses on which they won. At the betting exchange the operator inquired if the man had sufficient money to match possible winnings—just as a matter of good faith. Mr. Offer wired home for $60,000. He bet it on a horse. He won, so he was told, but he must go to New Orleans to get his $120,000.

Mr. Offer arrived here yesterday on his way south to collect the money. At the offices of the Vino Sano distributors at 20 West Madison street he learned he had been duped.

Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath 1 to 2 hours longer

To check bad breath you must kill germs...That's why, if you dilute your antiseptic, you should choose one that kills germs when mixed with water.:. Most antiseptics do not... Pepsodent Antiseptic does kill germs, positively, when diluted.

WHAT an achievement! Bad breath checked! Overcome 1 to 2 hours longer than by other leading antiseptics. Stop, gargles, and consider: those 2 extra hours can change an evening of uncertainty to one of comforting assurance.

3 out of 4 people have been fooling themselves when fighting bad breath. They were diluting antiseptics that couldn't kill germs when mixed with water. To check bad breath destroy the germs that cause it. Use an antiseptic that remains an antiseptic when diluted.

SAFE—yet more powerful

Here is the startling news in this new discovery. You can mix Pepsodent Antiseptic with 1 or 2 parts of water, to suit your taste, it still kills germs in less than 10 seconds. That's where most other leading mouth antiseptics fail. Yet in spite of all its power, Pepsodent Antiseptic is utterly safe when used full strength. What a weapon it is in fighting bad breath!

New security against bad breath

(Halitosis)

Pepsodent Antiseptic checks bad breath due to unhygienic mouth conditions 1 to 2 hours longer! Immediately after use, 95% of germs on mouth surfaces are destroyed. Two hours later the number of germs is still reduced by 80%. That is far longer acting than other leading mouth antiseptics. And remember—when you use Pepsodent Antiseptic to check bad breath, you are doing double duty by also fighting colds.

$3 worth for $1—regardless of size

To kill germs—most mouth antiseptics must be used full strength. So to mix them with water is a waste of money. Contrariwise, Pepsodent Antiseptic can be mixed with twice its own volume of water. Thus Pepsodent Antiseptic goes 3 times as far—saves you $2 for every $1 you spend. Pepsodent Antiseptic comes in 3 sizes: 3 ounces for 25 cents—7 ounces for 50 cents—16 ounces for $1. The larger the size, the more for your money.

Learn to rely on Pepsodent Antiseptic whenever a safe, effective germ-killing agent is required. It has scores of uses.

Again we say: Quit being good to germs. They've laughed at you long enough. Play safe. Buy an antiseptic that really kills germs when diluted. Remember you can fool yourself but you can't fool bad breath.

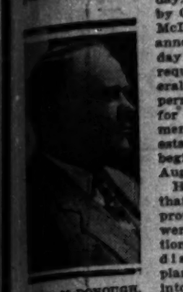
URGES DISCOUNT ON TAXES WHEN PROMPTLY PAID

McDonough to Ask New Law from Assembly.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

A "tax reduction" proposal will be submitted to the state legislature today. It is fathered by County Treasurer McDonough. He announced yesterday that he will request the general assembly to permit a discount for prompt payment on all real estate tax bills, beginning next August.



M. McDONOUGH. [Tribune Photo.]

He estimated that, if every property owner were in a position to take the discount, this plan, if enacted into law, would reduce real estate taxes in the entire state about $10,000,000.

"On the basis of the $202,421,525 levied against Cook county real estate bills for 1929, the last taxes in collection," explained Mr. McDonough, "the discount offered to the property owners would total $5,050,000. The actual payments in discount would undoubtedly be less—probably between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000—but the offer would be open to every real estate owner in Cook county. To literally hundreds of thousands the saving would be considered worth while in these times."

A Summary of the Plan.

Treasurer McDonough's plan may be summarized as follows:

Under a law passed by the last regular session of the legislature, taxes beginning with the 1931 assessments will be paid in two equal installments. The penalty date on the first installment for Cook county is Sept. 1, 1932, and on the second installment, Feb. 1, 1933.

The McDonough plan is to allow a discount of 5 per cent on the second installment if both installments are paid before Sept. 1. This is equivalent to a discount of 2½ per cent on the entire tax bill of any property owner for the year.

On the 1930 real estate taxes, which will be higher than the 1929 taxes, the 2½ per cent discount offered would equal $5,625,000. The experience of other large cities with this system indicates that between 50 and 60 per cent of the taxpayers, as returned in money, would avail themselves of the discount offer in normal times.

No Relief as Distant.

It is the view of some officials that the relief in taxes to real estate, offered by the bills already presented to the legislature, is a promise due for fulfillment further in the future than next August.

The bills to reduce the salaries of state officials, it was pointed out yesterday, cannot become effective—if adopted—until a new administration comes into office. The bills of the governor's revenue conference to have taxes on income, tobacco, and business—if adopted—cannot offer relief to real estate taxpayers before 1933, officials said. Besides, they contended that reductions, if obtained, will not be understood by many taxpayers, as contrasted with a plain discount on the tax bill.

"Are you openly advocating a tax cut?" McDonough was asked.

McDonough Tells Objectives.

"Why not?" he said. "I have two purposes in asking the legislature to consider this bill. Comparatively few realize how extremely serious is the present situation. I have tried every legal plan that any one has suggested to get the taxes in and we have gotten only 70 per cent of them. We do not encourage the taxpayers to pay. We penalize the delinquent; why not give a bonus to the prompt payer? That is one object.

"My second objective is a reduction of real estate taxes. They are too high. I doubt whether Chicago can obtain a full measure of prosperity again, until taxes on real estate are properly adjusted.

"I am not going outside of my province to suggest anything with reference to valuations, tax rates, or assessments. I'm in my own yard in making recommendations with reference to the collection of taxes; and I believe the real estate owners will welcome an opportunity to get a discount on their tax bills."

The penalties were imposed by Justice of the Peace I. Lampert of Sum[illegible] mit after charges were made by police and William Nemec, 21 years old, of 1818 South 55th avenue, Cicero.

Nemec testified that he and Mi[illegible] Louis Smoroy, 17 years old, of 12[illegible] Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, were in their parked car in the forest pr[illegible] near Western Springs when Be[illegible] tins, representing himself as a policeman, tried to extort money from them. SUED BY LAWYER

DOLORES DEL RIO.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The lawsuit brought by Gun- ther Lessing, former attorney for Dolores Del Rio, screen star, to force payment of $21,000 asserted overdue lawyer's fees, was continued for one day when presented before Superior Judge Fleming today, and will be heard tomorrow.

Lessing's papers of complaint claim that he helped Miss Del Rio to avoid unfavorable publicity at time of the death of her husband, Jaime Martinez Del Rio, in Berlin, and also assert that he assisted in persuading Mrs. Mary Akin Carewe, former Oak Park, Ill., girl, not to name Dolores Del Rio as co-respondent in a divorce proceeding against Edwin Carewe, a film director, and whom Miss Akin remarried after securing a divorce.

A deposition was taken from Miss Del Rio in connection with the case in which the question was asked her if Lessing had not represented her in connection with a threatened suit for alienation of affections, involving Carewe.

"There was nothing to represent," Miss Del Rio replied to the question in the deposition. "She [Miss Akin] didn't do anything; he [Carewe] gave her money and she shut up."

ACCUSED SCHOOL WORKER TELLS OF BUYING JOB

Carl A. Olsen, 5843 Carpenter street, stood before the school board's trial board yesterday charged with theft of a floor brush from the Dewey school. All the trustees on the trial body are holdover members. Trustee Blatch- ford is chairman.

Several witnesses had testified when Olsen was called to the stand.

"They say I told how I paid five dollars for my job," he testified. "That's a lie. I didn't pay five dol- lars, but I paid $7.50 twice. Metzger was the ward committeeman and the money was supposed to go for the campaign fund of the former mayor."

Olsen's case was taken under ad- visement.

A WOMAN TELLS WOMEN HOW TO GET NEW LAWS

Recommends Penetrating Stare as Lobbyist.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Various difficulties and triumphs of members of the Illinois League of Women Voters were related yes- terday at a league presidents' lunch- eon in the Windermere hotel. The eleventh an- nual state con- vention opened at noon and will continue until Saturday noon.

MRS. WHITE. [Wallezer Photo.]

Discussing her experiences at Springfield when she lobbied for license bill which the motor drivers' was defeated, Mrs. Harold White of Chicago said:

"I don't think it does much good to send the legislators letters. They may get the idea the letters support a bill which in reality opposes the one you support. They don't read the litera- ture you send. But I find it does some good simply to fix them with a penetrating stare, corner them, and make them listen to you. Then maybe it will sink in.

Urges Visit to Springfield.

At the conclusion of her talk Harold D. Lasswell, assistant professor, de- partment of political science, Univer- sity of Chicago, who was conducting a round table on public relations at the luncheon, urged the women to go to Springfield even if they had no measures to push.

"As you can gather from Mrs. White's remarks, there is a singular disillusionment in merely looking at a state legislator."

Mrs. H. J. Stratton of Jacksonville, of the Morgan County League of Women Voters, spoke of the league's activities in Morgan county.

Mrs. Eric W. Stubbs of Chicago, general chairman of the convention, spoke of the league's work in Hyde Park.

Finds Social Sense Growing.

A growing sense of social responsi- bility is developing throughout the country in the wake of the financial depression, Mrs. George Gellhorn, of St. Louis, vice president of the Mis- souri League of Women Voters, said last night. She gave the principal ad- dress at a "Congressional Issues" dinner of the Illinois league in the Hotel Windermere, West.

This morning's session will be in the social science building of the Uni- versity of Chicago, where the univer- sity and the league will hold an "economics for citizens" institute at 10:30 o'clock. A convention session will precede the institute at 9 o'clock. The convention will close Saturday noon.

MOST SUBURBS MUSTER MONEY FOR SCHOOL PAY

Some Let Bills Go and Meet Salaries.

While Chicago school teachers have received only one month's pay in cash since April most of the suburban schools have found means to pay their employés through the first of the year. In several communities in Cook county school bills other than salaries are not being met. In most instances funds for salary payments have be- come available through the sale of tax anticipation warrants to citizens.

LaGrange is one of the few towns in arrears in cash salary payments to school employés. The last cash dis- bursement there was for September salaries, paid on Oct. 1. Payment of October salaries was made in salary warrants, bearing 6 per cent interest. Most of the teachers, according to Frank W. Ault, president of the school board, have been able to dis- pose of the warrants. No bills other than current ones are outstanding.

Wilmette Seeking Funds.

A meeting of the civic committee of Wilmette will be held tomorrow to consider ways and means of obtaining further funds. Money is now available for one more salary payment to school employés. No bills have been paid since July. Those now outstanding total $14,000. The monthly school pay- roll averages $17,000.

In Glencoe money is now available to pay both salaries and current bills of the schools until Jan. 1. The collec- tion of taxes at that time will govern future payments.

Communities in which both school bills and salaries are now being paid, with money in sight to continue pay- ments until Jan. 1 include Maywood, River Forest, and Melrose Park.

In Winnetka money is available to pay salaries for three months. Sep- tember's bills were paid but not Octo- ber's. There are now approximately $3,000 in bills outstanding.

Position of Other Suburbs.

Riverside can issue school salary checks until Jan. 1, but has $8,000 in unpaid bills.

Oak Park can pay salary checks until Jan. 1 and at present is paying current bills of operation. Only about $5,000 is due on outstanding bills. Supply orders have been cut to a minimum.

Both school bills and salaries in Cicero can be paid until Feb. 1. The Evanston schools are in good shape, according to Superintendent J. R. Skiles. It will be necessary to sell tax anticipation warrants, he said, but the school board expects no difficulty in that.

Harvey finances are reported in good condition with money available for payment of all school bills through April. Salary checks are being paid regularly in the Berwyn schools but no information could be obtained as to how long payments would continue.

COUNCIL INVITES 2 PARTIES HERE FOR CONVENTIONS

Mayor's Resolution Tells of Advantages.

The city council yesterday adopted unanimously a resolution presented by Mayor Cermak inviting the Republican and Democratic parties to hold their national nominating conventions in Chicago next summer.

"The geographical location of the city," stated the resolution, "its accessibility by railroad, air and water, its temperate summer climate, the number and excellence of its hotels, its commodious convention hall, the exceptional transportation facilities, the interesting shops and industries, parks and boulevards, halls of art and science, the approaching World's Fair and other advantages make Chicago preeminently a convention city, and a most suitable place for holding the great national conventions of political parties."

Cites Cut in Rail Rates.

The resolution also cited the offers of railroads to give fare and a half round trip rates to the conventions if they are held at Chicago, the first time in several decades that such rates have been granted, and the offer of World's Fair officials to hold a preliminary opening of the Century of Progress exposition grounds for the convention delegates.

The mayor also read a letter from President Hoover asking the appointment of delegates to a national conference on home building and home ownership at Washington from Dec. 2 to 5, and appointed the following delegates:

Col. A. A. Sprague, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, John E. Ericsson, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, James Simpson, Ald. Dorsey Crowe, Ald. Terence F. Moran, Melvin A. Traylor, Rer D. Keehn, Julius Rosenwald, C. Ward Seabury, George F. Getz, Edward N. Hurley, Sewell Avery, Col. R. R. McCormick, Frank Knox, Charles M. Moderwell, Abel Davis, C. Herrick Hammond, Stanley Field, Joshua D'Esposito, Joseph T. Ryerson, Charles Pies, and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank.

Asks Five Day Week.

Ald. John Coughlin [1st] introduced a resolution calling for the establishment of a five day week for city employes, which was referred to the finance committee.

City Clerk Brady submitted a list of voucher payments of expert fees during October. Those receiving the largest amounts were:

Ernest Liebermann, engineering	$3,000
George A. Mason, legal	6,780
Allen T. Gilbert, legal	4,720
Walter L. Fisher, legal	9,071
Dr. Miller McClintock, engineering	1,000

Thomas S. Healy, legal	1,925
John Marr, road commissioner	1,500
William O. Krieg, building valuator	927

Mayor Cermak issued a proclamation establishing Nov. 13 to 18 as National Motion Picture week. Chicago movie theaters will give their receipts from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. on Saturday, Nov. 21, to the emergency relief fund.

An ordinance prohibiting the collection of fares on street cars and buses while they are in motion was passed by the council, but the ordinance permitting dogs to be taken from the pound by reputable university research units was deferred until the next meeting, Dec. 1.

City Sealer Joe Grein returned from a downstate hunting trip yesterday with the declaration that attempts to abolish the open season on migratory fowl because of supposed scarcity of ducks and geese are based on misinformation.

Mr. Grein and his hunting companion, John P. Harding, each brought back their full quota of thirty ducks and eight geese from their stand near Cairo, on the Mississippi river. The sealer acted on the trip as an official observer for the state department of conservation.

"We have not had any cold weather yet in the north to bring down the big flight," he said. "When we do have, I expect to see a far greater number of birds than were observed last week-end, and there were plenty then."

HOODLUMS FACE TARTAR IN NEW WOMAN TEACHER

Young hoodlums who had driven five women playground instructors in succession away from the Fulton playground at 53d and Wood streets caught a Tartar in Miss Gertrude McGlinn, the sixth instructor assigned there.

She had Edward Glomb, 19 years old, 5340 South Wood street; Erwin Kack, 19 years old, 5346 South Wood street, and Harry Heckert, 18 years old, 5316 South Honore street, arrested when they threw eggs at her. Municipal Judge J. William Brooks fined them $50 each yesterday, but continued the case until Jan. 13 on a motion to vacate the judgments. The boys drove the instructors away so that they might run the playground to suit themselves, Miss McGlinn told the judge.

COUNCIL ASKS HALT IN CUTTING OFF GAS HEATERS

Finds Practice Causing Hardship.

The city council voted yesterday to request the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company to abandon, temporarily at least, its policy of disconnecting gas water heaters that are installed in bathrooms. Such installations are in violation of the city ordinances.

Recently the company sent letters to 72,000 gas consumers notifying them of ordinance violations and stating that Health Commissioner Bundesen had ordered the company to shut off the flow of gas to illegally installed heaters.

Called Hardship by Nelson.

"This policy is placing a hardship on persons who live in stove heated flats," said Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], who introduced the resolution requesting the company to discontinue the practice. "If the enforcement now of this ordinance, which has been on the books for years, is due to the use of the new blended gas then the gas company should pay for changing the installations."

Ald. John J. Hoellen [47th] pointed out to the aldermen that Dr. Bundesen had issued his order after six deaths from gas had been reported in one night.

Buildings Without Basements.

Ald. Walter J. Orlikoski [32th] said that plans for buildings without basements in his ward were approved by the health department. If the ordinance against bathroom heaters is enforced the residents of those buildings, he said, will have to construct outhouses for their gas heaters.

Besides requesting the company to discontinue disconnecting heaters the resolution also asks the company to reconnect the heaters that are equipped with flues.

WASH HARMFUL GAS FROM SMOKE BY NEW METHOD

Utilities Here May Place System in Plants.

A new method of washing coal smoke so as to eliminate harmful gas will be used in the power plants of utilities in the Chicago area if proved practicable. This was revealed yesterday by Dr. H. F. Johnstone of the University of Illinois. Dr. Johnstone spoke before delegates at the third international congress on bituminous coal at Pittsburgh.

When bubbled through water containing a small quantity of iron and manganese, sulphur dioxide, a highly destructive gas, is removed from the smoke, Dr. Johnstone disclosed. Experiments in the process have been conducted in Chicago during the last year.

Utilities Institute Gives Cash.

Money for the experiments has been furnished by the Utilities Research commission of Chicago, a corporation devoted to investigation of specialized processes for the utility companies.

Officials of the research commission announced that the process will do the work, but thus far it has not been determined whether its use will be too costly in large plants.

Dr. Johnstone said that the sulphur dioxide is charged with destroying millions of dollars worth of paint and metal surfaces in the United States annually.

About 270 gallons of water will wash the smoke from one and a quarter tons of coal by the new method.

LAKE TEMPERS WEATHER FOR CHICAGO AREA

The moderating influence of Lake Michigan, which at times keeps Chicago cool in the summer, yesterday held the temperature about 10 degrees higher than the weather bureau had predicted. A cold wave was expected from the northwest, but after blowing from that quarter a short time the wind shifted and blew off the lake, which is still warm, according to Meteorologist C. A. Donnel.

Yesterday's minimum was 48 instead of the predicted 38, and the maximum was 53, about 6 degrees above the normal average temperature for this time of year. Slightly milder weather, with increasing cloudiness and probably rain, is the forecast for today and tomorrow.

Yesterday was an exceptionally clear day, making possible long range visibility. Mr. Donnel attributed this condition in part to the rain of Tuesday, which purified the atmosphere.

MAYOR PROPOSES CENTRAL BUYING OFFICE FOR CITY

Ordinance Sees Saving of Million Yearly.

An ordinance providing for the establishment of a department of central purchasing in the city government, which he said would save $1,000,000 or more annually in purchases of equipment and supplies, was presented to the council yesterday by Mayor Cermak.

The ordinance was prepared with the assistance of Russell Forbes, special consultant assigned by the National Association of Purchasing Agents following a survey of city purchasing activities by J. L. Jacobs, efficiency engineer. It was approved by the mayor's advisory committee. The council referred it to the finance committee.

Wants It Passed Soon.

The mayor recommended that the measure be passed before work starts on the 1932 city budget, so that the anticipated savings may be taken advantage of next year. At present, he informed the council, the city and its semi-independent bodies, such as the school board, library board and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, have various separate purchasing and contract offices.

These agencies spent $18,850,000 for supplies last year, of which $10,000,000 was spent by the board of education. That figure is exclusive of current expenditures on public works, which aggregated $46,000,000 in 1930. Mayor Cermak estimated that a central purchasing bureau would save from 15 to 25 per cent of the prices paid by the present scattered purchasing offices.

For All City Agencies.

The ordinance provides that the department of central purchasing shall function for all city departments under the control of the council. The semi-independent agencies, such as the school board and library board, may make use of it if their trustees wish.

Heads of the department would be a commissioner of central purchasing and a deputy commissioner. In addition the measure provides for a board of standardization, to provide standard specifications for supplies, consisting of the commissioner of central purchasing, the commissioner of public works, and the health commissioner.

Tells Advantages of Plan.

Advantages which Mayor Cermak claimed for the proposed system were:

1. Standardization and adoption of definite specifications for supplies.
2. Lower unit costs and better delivery service.
3. Reduction of the volume of paper work.
4. Central supervision of deliveries, storage, etc., eliminating waste.
5. Closer accounting control over expenditures.
6. Savings through taking advantage of discounts on bills.
7. Improvement of buying technique and elimination of favoritism under a full time buying staff.
8. Simplification of vendors' problems, since they would have one office to deal with, instead of fourteen.

BROKER SEIZED IN RAID; FACES FRAUD CHARGES

Detectives with a warrant charging confidence game arrested E. H. Pence, president of Pence & Co., in his offices at 39 South La Salle street yesterday afternoon. Assistant State's Attorneys L. P. Holt and Herman N. Weinberg accompanied the detectives.

After the arrest Pence was turned over to Deputy Sheriffs L. Aurand and C. E. Singer of Stephenson county. Pence was taken to Freeport for arraignment on the confidence game charge in connection with the alleged swindle of two women residents of Ridott in stock transfers.

The complainants are Mrs. Mary R. Jones, who said she lost $2,500, and Mrs. Carrie Garvin, who lost $600.

An application by Pence to renew his license to operate as a stock broker was refused on July 1 by the state securities department, prosecutors said. Pence is 50 years old and lives in Wilmette.

MAYOR PROPOSES CENTRAL BUYING OFFICE FOR CITY

Finance Sees Saving of Million Yearly.

An ordinance providing for the establishment of a department of central purchasing in the city government, which he said would save $1,000,000 or more annually in purchases of materials and supplies, was presented to the council yesterday by Mayor Cermak.

It is never recommended that the ordinance be passed before work starts on the 1932 city budget, so that the additional savings may be taken advantage of next year. HELP JOBLESS PAY THEIR TAXES, IS COUNCIL PLEA

Asks Relief Fund to Save Homes.

The city council adopted a resolution yesterday calling upon the joint emergency relief committee to provide funds to enable jobless home owners to pay their taxes and thus escape forfeiture of their homes.

The resolution, sponsored by Ald. John Toman [23d], sets forth that $9,725,853 worth of Cook county realty was forfeited for nonpayment of 1929 taxes, and asserts that a large portion of the tax delinquency may be attributed to inability of home owning wage earners to find work.

Asks Plan for Work.

The resolution asks that the joint emergency relief fund devise some plan whereby home owners who are delinquent in taxes for any year in the sum of less than $200 be given the privilege of receiving work from the fund, and have their wages credited and set aside for the sole purpose of paying their delinquent taxes.

The council adopted another resolution of Ald. Toman calling upon all city employes, including the board of education, Municipal court, library board, fire department, and board of election, to contribute one day's wages each month from January to June to the emergency relief fund. By terms of the resolution the aldermen will contribute equally with the others.

Ald. James B. Waller [43d] offered a resolution commending the relief committee for its services and another indorsing the proposed $7,000,000 state bond issue for a special work fund for the unemployed. Both were adopted.

New Gifts to Fund.

New contributions totaling $73,500 were added to the relief fund last night. Total subscriptions reported yesterday amounted to $173,500, including a pledge of $100,000 from the Illinois Steel company and its Cook county subsidiaries.

Other new pledges were:

Fish Furniture company	$2,500
C. C. Christian & Co. and employes	1,000
Employes of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc.	1,475
John Gerber company	1,000
Crosby Terminal warehouse and employes	1,000
National Aluminate company	1,000
W. E. Miner, Inc.	1,115

The total fund now stands at $1,485,856. The goal is $2,000,000.

HUNTER SLAIN BY ACCIDENTAL SHOT OF FRIEND

Robert Emmett Murphy, 34 years old, 5401 South Laflin street, was accidentally shot and fatally wounded yesterday by his hunting companion, Lloyd Wiech, 1704 West 57th street, a south parks policeman.

The accident occurred on the farm of James Little, near Chanahon, seven miles southwest of Joliet. The two hunters and Little were walking through a freshly plowed field when a snipe rose near them.

Wiech raised his gun to fire, and as he did so he slipped in a muddy furrow. The weapon was discharged as he fell, and the full charge struck Murphy in the side. Murphy died within an hour.

2 AUTO DEATHS IN COUNTY; TOLL RAISED TO 1,122

Two auto deaths in Cook county yesterday brought the toll since Jan. 1 to 1,122. The victims:

Joseph Kreyzanowski, 49 years old, 2709 South Paulina street. Died at the county hospital from injuries sustained on Oct. 31 when he was run down at 37th street and Ashland avenue. The driver was Harry J. Davis, 1917 South Laflin street.

George Taylor, 41 years old, 1920 Maryland avenue, colored. Died in the Dailey hospital from injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by Tillman Highfield, 6707 Greenview avenue, at 36th street and Michigan avenue.

Leslie Richardson, Whiting fireman, was critically injured yesterday in a collision of two automobiles on the Dunes highway. Richardson was returning from a trip to Michigan City, where he had arranged for the funeral of a brother who was killed in a similar crash last Sunday. Richardson's automobile struck the car of Mrs. Edgar Monahon of Detroit.

POLICE TO SEIZE BEGGARS; CERMAK ISSUES ORDER

Mayor Cermak instructed Police Commissioner Allman yesterday to start a campaign against panhandlers, designed to drive all out of town beggars from the city and to provide other means of support for Chicagoans found seeking alms on the street.

Police will be furnished with tickets issued by the Joint Emergency Relief fund, and beggars who can convince them that they are legitimate residents of Chicago will be provided with food and shelter by the relief committee. Out of town panhandlers will be arraigned in Municipal court branches and warned to get out of the city.

"I walked down Michigan avenue from the Congress hotel to Jackson boulevard the other day," Mayor Cermak said, "and was stopped eight times. I questioned the men and found that they came from Seattle, Milwaukee, Des Moines, and Kansas City. Ninety-five per cent of the beggars are from out of town."

SLIPPERY BRICK HIGHWAY GETS A NEW SURFACE

Workmen for the state highway department began to lay a surface of tar and gravel on a five-mile stretch of brick pavement on Lincoln highway west of Chicago Heights yesterday. The stretch had been resurfaced with brick this year.

The order to put on the new tar and gravel coating, it was revealed, followed the report of three weeks ago that in rainy weather the brick pavement was so slippery that it caused an unusually large number of accidents. The brick extends from a mile and a half west of Chicago Heights to the Will county line.

Three weeks ago the Dettmering garage at Matteson reported that as many as fifteen wrecks a day were occurring during rains on the newly resurfaced highway.

The brick resurfacing west of Chicago Heights was part of the 63 miles of similar work in Illinois this year approved by Gov. Emmerson. There were protests that it would be just as cheap to widen the highway to forty feet of concrete. The old concrete, 16 to 18 feet wide, was deteriorating rapidly.

Charged with Defrauding Woman of $5,000 Bail

A warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of Bernard Tinet, 49 years old, 1440 Irving Park boulevard, who, it is charged, obtained $5,000 posted for a federal bond by misrepresentation. The money had been posted by Mrs. Martha Flynn, 4501 Ravenswood avenue, as a bond for Ralph Fair, who was sentenced to three months in the county jail for violation of the prohibition law. When Mrs. Flynn called for the money she found that Tinet had obtained it after making an affidavit that he had lost the receipt.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY OR WHAT OTHER?

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler says that the Republican party at present is much in the position of its predecessor, the Whig, in 1853-'56. It has a splendid constituency and a fine tradition, but it doesn't know what to do or, if it does, it is afraid to do it. The Whigs failed and the Republican party was born. If the Republicans fail they will follow the Whigs into oblivion and another party will take their place. Dr. Butler's prophecy has a great deal of probability in support of it.

Mr. Fess of Ohio, the Republican national chairman, is a good index of the disposition of the party management in times which Dr. Butler observes as critical. Mr. Fess believes that the Republican management is the best of all possible managements in the best of all possible parties in the best of all possible times and countries. That is why he is national chairman and that is why the Republican future at times seems dubious. The complacent face of self-satisfaction may run into something in the dark.

Dr. Butler himself is, however, a bit odd. He has his ideas of what the party must do to be saved and he picks up half of them on one side of the street and half on the other. Half his principles make faces at the other. For instance, Dr. Butler says that the eighteenth amendment and all its works must be discarded and disowned and the police powers gathered into the federal government under prohibition restored to the state which unwisely delegated them. He also says that the Republican party must commit itself to wholehearted coöperation with such agencies of international humanity and justice as the league of nations and the world court.

Both federal prohibition and the international arrangements Dr. Butler supports have the same origin in human wistfulness, illusion, dogma, or doctrine. They represent a belief that superorganization will turn the trick and that remedies must be found in mechanisms. He perceives the fallacy in one, but not in the other. He is willing to accept experience in one, but not in the other. He would take apart the superorganization which has been set up in prohibition to govern human nature as a substitute for individual worth and local police, but he would build up the extragovernment which is to make nations follow a prescribed line of conduct.

A party which incorporated such ideas in its doctrine would be reasonable in one direction and sentimental in another. It would declare one species of supercontrol to be desirable and another undesirable, with no consistent argument with which to bind its statements into principles. There is room in American political action for a party which reaffirms its belief in older American doctrines and spreads that reaffirmation across the board. Many citizens will agree with Dr. Butler that if the Republican party remains in a daze it will find a successor in the boots it might have worn, but when Dr. Butler gives his specifications he creates a hybrid astride a fence.

WINGS OVER KENTUCKY.

Theodore Dreiser, John Dos Passos, Charles Walker, Mrs. Walker, Marie Bergain and five others in Mr. Dreiser's committee of inquiry which went into the Kentucky mining fields have been indicted by a Bell county grand jury charged with criminal syndicalism. New York, where Mr. Dreiser is resting after his experiences, will be asked to turn the investigators over for trial as disturbers of the peace of the state who counseled acts of violence.

What the good citizens of Bell county really want is to make Mr. Dreiser face the toothpicks which are said to have proved that a girl friend entered his room in Pineville and did not come out when she should have done so. He was indicted on the toothpicks, but he cannot be brought back merely to face them. Hence the charge that he made himself a menace to the peace of the state.

Sooner or later some of the primitives will get a head hold on urban slickers who question their ways and the consequences will be exemplar. The fundamentalists in Tennessee remained good natured during the evolution law trial because a certain amount of tourist advantage was recognized. Otherwise, Clarence Darrow might have come home as a feathered biped. Arkansas had a tar barrel ready for the New York anarchist who went into the state's byways and folkways with his doctrines, but he escaped. Mr. Dreiser got away from the Kentucky feudists, but New York will have to protect him or he will become the notable example of what the countryside can do to an urban wretch who undertakes to corrupt the virtues by his principles and his acts.

The least Mr. Dreiser could expect would be a sentence to be branded with a toothpick mark, cheeks and forehead. He should ask the author of "All God's Children Got Wings" if he's sure it's true, because, as his friend Irvin Cobb said, if they play Kentucky they'll need them.

FOOD FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Readers of THE TRIBUNE have contributed, thus far, more than $23,000 to provide food in the schools for children who have been coming hungry to the classrooms. The condition which this fund is intended to remedy is the least tolerable a community could discover. Some children have been without sufficient nourishment to sustain their bodies or clear their minds. Their teachers, close up to the problem, have been made desperate by the evidences of child hunger, and no one has to be reminded that many of the teachers, owing to the collapse of the school financial system, have been none too secure in their own grocery bills.

The fund already in hand mitigates the conditions. An understanding of the need will raise the amount to meet the whole need. It isn't charity. It comes under the first rule of humanity.

A JUDGE WHO TAKES GUN TOTING SERIOUSLY.

Judge Rudolf F. Desort deserves the thanks of the community for imposing maximum penalties on an ex-convict convicted last week of carrying a concealed weapon on which the serial number had been defaced. The charges were two, and on each the defendant was given a year in the Bridewell to be served consecutively.

The penalty is conspicuous, not because it is unduly severe but because it is exceptionally so. Punishment for carrying concealed weapons has been very generally escaped and has been often inadequate when imposed. When escaped the cause has usually been inadequate evidence. When the penalty has been inadequate a judge has been at fault. There has been too much leniency toward gun toting. It has indicated an insufficient sense of responsibility on the part of many magistrates, an insufficient comprehension of the evil of armed gangdom or a disposition to curry favor with the political powers of organized criminality. It is not a minor offense in an individual of criminal record or of notorious evil association to be found in possession of a deadly weapon. The implication is of the most serious character and a responsible judiciary is in duty bound to take it fully into account in fixing penalties. Yet time and again penalties so light as to be scandalous are reported in the press. Judge Desort's action is in encouraging contrast. It is just and it will have an important influence toward disarming criminals if the example is followed as it should be.

ANOTHER ALMA MATER.

In a Sunday football game for the unemployed Sing Sing beat the Ossining Naval Militia, 33 to 0, at Ossining. A reader will not know what to believe and what not to believe in the accounts of the game. It may be prudent to believe nothing, not even the game itself, and certainly not the report that the next game will be with the police team of Port Jervis. However, do as you like. The Sing Sing colors are white and black. The mascot is a pony, striped. It carried the warden's daughter in the parade while the band played "Throw Him Down, McCluskey." The Sing Sing team made all its scores while playing toward the goal in the direction of the prison gates. The school cheering section made the most noise with the cry of "Kill him." A new all-time all-American back has been discovered. He is a lifer. Sing Sing must be put in the small list of undefeated teams. As all its games may have to be played on the home grounds it needs a stadium. And probably will get one. Then it will be an institution of higher learning.

Editorial of the Day

JUDGE LYNCH'S "MISTAKES."

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Out of Atlanta, in the heart of the south, comes as damning an indictment of lynching as has ever been penned. The southern leaders, mostly editors and educators, who are members of the southern commission on the study of lynching show a courage and vigor in attacking this problem which merits praise from all, north and south, who deplore this blot on the shield of American justice.

Their conclusion that of the 21 persons lynched in 1930, two "were certainly innocent and eleven others possibly so" is no surprise to those who have traced the history of lynch law. Neither is the fact that few lynchers are ever punished. But it is well to have it thus publicly emphasized.

Equally valuable is the commission's scuttling of two time honored "arguments" in defense of lynching. It finds that less than one-fourth of the persons lynched since 1890 were accused of assaulting white women and that the claim that the courts do not convict Negroes, and hence lynching is necessary, it brands as fallacious.

Some of the real reasons for the 1930 lynchings are illuminating. Thus one man had offended political opponents. Another got the rope in order to keep him from testifying in a serious charge against white men.

Happily the number of lynchings has shown a steady, but not always consistent, reduction. From an annual figure of upwards of 200 not over 25 years ago they have declined to as low as a score. Each is no less an assault upon justice, but the reduction in the mass of such assaults is cheering.

It is well for northerners to remember that the south has never had a monopoly on this form of lawlessness. This is especially important today when northern industrial centers have a larger colored population than ever before in their history.

HOME TALENT.

The hostess was pressing her guests to provide entertainment.

"Is there any instrument you can play, Mr. Jenkins?" she asked.

"Not away from home," he replied.

"What do you play at home?" she inquired.

"Second fiddle." Jenkins murmured solemnly.—Exchange.

EQUALITY OF THE SEXES.

"Is it true, doctor," she said, "that you are a lady killer?"

"Madam," he replied gravely, "I make no distinction between the sexes."—The Outpost.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. W. S.S.

MANCHURIA, PERSONALLY CONDUCTED

Good morning, pupils! In our today's lesson, as the guns (even as we sit here in our pleasant classroom) are booming steadily along the Nonni and the Chinese are reporting hourly how they have turned the Japanese right flank or rear flank and are chasing them in all the directions of the compass, we are confronted by what Grover Cleveland so well terms "a condition and not a theory." It is our purpose this lovely November morning to answer the question that an American invariably asks, "What's all the shootin' for?"

We made the remark about the Chinese reports of chasing the hind legs off the Japanese army to warn you to accept the reports of great Chinese victories with considerably more than the usual pinch of salt. The Chinese have a way of seeing things through their large, round, tortoise shell and usually rose tinted glasses. Also volunteer press correspondents and miscellaneous foreign adventurers either attach themselves to the Chinese army or hang around the small towns on the fringe of China and eagerly pass on stories of great Chinese victories which have never happened. On the other hand, the Japs are a close mouthed, secretive race, much inclined to saw wood and say nothing.

Many of you older pupils who recall the days of the Russo-Japanese war in 1904 remember the 'Cheefoo liar." Cheefoo, in northern China, was then as now a cable base and a great stamping ground of East and West, and so many stories of the war between the Russians and the Japs came from there that were nothing but pure fabrications that the newspapers in self-defense placed all the blame on the "Cheefoo liar," who was said to be responsible for the so-called news from the war. It looks as though the Cheefoo liar is again on the job, and accordingly it would be well to accept reports of great Chinese victories a little slowly.

Manchuria is a big country, over four hundred thousand square miles, twice the size of Japan, and news must travel a long way and filter through many channels before it finally reaches us. The ostensible cause of this war, as Japan has explained to the League of Nations, is the railroad situation. China owns close to two thousand miles of railroad in Manchuria, Russia a thousand miles, and Japan seven hundred. Each of these nations wishes to build up and extend its railroads in order to sell its manufactured goods and increase its influence in Manchuria. Japan owns the South Manchurian railroad, which runs from Harbin south to Port Arthur and Dairen—the best harbor in Manchuria. This railroad was not built by Japan but by Russia, and Japan inherited it as one of the few presents she got out of her war with Russia. Japan also has a railroad from Fusan and Moppo, at the southern tip of Corea, straight up to Antung on the Yalu, and then via Mukden to Changchung about one hundred and fifty miles north. Fusan and Moppo are directly opposite Japan, and this railroad is most useful to the Japanese in shipping various articles, such as rice, tinned fish, clothing, soldiers, cannon, ammunition, and so on, into the heart of Manchuria. Especially soldiers, cannon, and artillery. The export from Japan of fine, young, high grade, A1 soldiers has been unusually large lately.

We Americans think of the Chinese as wholly employed in filling their mouths with water and sprinkling clothes or polishing the bosoms of dress shirts with large, aggressive flatirons. A nation judges another nation by what comes under its own personal observation, so the Hop Sings and Charley Lees have caused us to regard the Chinese as laundrymen. Japan looks upon the Chinese in quite another way. To the Japanese the Chinese do nothing but push wheelbarrows around, building grades for railroads and then putting down the rails. The Japanese say that in defiance of treaties the Chinese are building railroads all over the place, paralleling their own railroads and throwing out branch lines in all directions. The Japanese are highly indignant because the Chinese have developed a fine harbor at Hulutao, threatening the supremacy of Port Arthur and Dairen, right across the Gulf of Chihli. Don't look for Hulutao on your maps; it's no new, or at least has bobbed up in the limelight so lately, that you won't find it except on maps on which the ink is still wet. But you can find Kinchau and just below it is Hulutao.

These Chinese railroads, paralleling the Japanese lines and sending out branches in all directions, are horning into the export trade of Manchuria and taking great quantities of soya beans, kowliange (millet), lumber, iron, coal, indigo, and opium down to Hulutao and making bums out of Port Arthur and Dairen. Eating, as we do in America, only Boston baked beans or boiled white beans, we do not see why the Japs should be concerned about the loss of the soya bean trade. We never ate any. That is, we think we didn't, but we have in the form of sauce, soya beans making grand sauce. Soya beans are an article of food all through the East. Then there's the very important item of oil made from the soya bean. They raise tobacco, too, in Manchuria; not enough to scare Virginia any, but just the same they raise it. And cotton—that is, they did, but probably after what's happened in the cotton market the Manchu farmers are pulling up their cotton and planting soya beans.

At the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war the Portsmouth treaty gave Japan the southern half of Manchuria for its sphere of influence and Russia the northern half. A "sphere of influence," as you know, is a polite phrase for territory stolen by one nation from another. The Japanese sphere of influence was supposed to end at a line drawn east and west through Changchu. But now if you look up Tsitsihar on the map and the places along the Nonni river where old grim war is quite busy you will observe that Japan has gone northward some three hundred miles and is now abounding and abutting on that part of Manchuria swiped by Russia. Japan, we must remark, has done quite well since the Portsmouth treaty. But now up jumps China to spill the soya beans by building a lot of new railroads. Or, if it wasn't railroads, might not Japan find reason for putting troops into Manchuria on the ground that the soya bean should only be used for making a sauce for boiled beef and roast lamb and not be wasted in the manufacture of oil? That is to say, what one nation may euphemistically call "manifest destiny" might be regarded by the country that was getting gypped as grand larceny. R. H. L.

SCHOOL CHILDREN AND TUBERCULOSIS.

THE next step in the elimination of tuberculosis will consist in finding the school children that have been infected by it and giving them special attention. In several places school children are tested with tuberculin as they enter school, as a means of discovering which are tuberculous, just as vaccination marks are inspected, Schick tests made and, sometimes, Dick tests.

Tuberculin testing makes the fifth in the group. In addition, the parents are asked to supply information as to whether their children have had measles, whooping cough, and other diseases of that group, and, if so, when. They are asked whether they have been vaccinated against smallpox, diphtheria, and typhoid. There is more than one method of making a tuberculin test and the reaction, if tuberculosis is present, is trifling.

Until recently a large proportion of people seven years of age and over had been infected with tuberculosis at some time in their lives and, therefore, would be expected to give a tuberculin reaction. In these circumstances the promiscuous use of the tuberculin test was of no practical value. At the present time the proportion of children that react to the tuberculin test is small enough to make testing, as a means of selection, of practical value.

It is feasible to give especial attention to those found by the test to be in need of it. The nature of the special attention to be given is not finally decided.

In a recent address given in England Dr. Calmette of Paris reported that more than one million children had been vaccinated against consumption and the results showed the method to be worth while. He was advising the British authorities to use the method with the children of their country. In this country the method has had a moderately extensive trial in New York City and in Montreal.

But it is used almost altogether with babies. In Norway the vaccination of nurses entering service in tuberculosis hospitals has been given a limited trial. I know of no one who advocates vaccination of school children as a part of the special care given those regarded as in particular danger from consumption.

The plan, in its present stage of development, calls for teaching in fresh air schoolrooms or well ventilated rooms, long rest periods, or even a midday rest period. Special feeding, special care of the children showing signs of fatigue, and those who are underweight or pale, or who run afternoon temperatures. More important than the special care in the school is the special care in the home which the parents are advised to give. This includes forbidding the movies, overwork, excessive play, overexcitement. It includes a regimen that calls for early bed hours, long sleep periods, good food, and good air.

TRUSS SOMETIMES CURES.

Mrs. C. W. writes:

1. My boy, who is 2½ years old, has a hernia. What is the cause of this? He wears a truss. Will this cure him?

2. He is always swollen under his eyes. What causes this?

REPLY.

1. He was born with a weak spot in his abdominal wall. Wearing a truss sometimes cures hernia. Children are more easily cured than adults.

2. Perhaps you should have that investigated. It may be due to Bright's disease. Worms are a possibility. Trichinosis causes it. As you see, there are several possibilities.

IT IS ILLEGAL SOMETIMES.

F. M. writes: Is it proper for first cousins to marry, or will their children be unhealthy because of the fact that their parents are blood relations?

REPLY.

It is illegal in some states.

A proper medical examination would disclose whether either party had inheritable defects or disease. If either has, marriage would be risky. If neither party has, but, on the other hand, if they have outstanding good qualities, there is no biologic objection to marriage of such cousins.

CHASING OUT COOTIES.

P. S. writes:

1. Will a solution of bichloride of mercury kill cooties?

2. Will it harm the scalp?

REPLY.

1. Probably it would, but why not use kerosene or larkspur? Both are better and safer than corrosive sublimate.

2. Probably not.

CITY WILL REPAIR.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—[Friend of the People.]—During the early spring of this year the city electrical department damaged my automobile walk and to date no repairs have been made, although three different inspectors have been out since that time and each has promised that the necessary repairs would be made. If I have the necessary repairs made myself would it be possible for me to deduct the amount from my next installment on street paving or my next general tax bill? E. K.

This matter has been turned over to our construction bureau, with instructions to immediately restore this walk to its original condition. Inasmuch as the expense involved is chargeable to a separate fund, it would be impossible for the writer to make the necessary repairs himself and expect that the cost could be deducted from his next installment on street paving or general tax bill. W. A. JACKSON,
Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

INTEREST ON LOAN.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—On Aug. 11, 1931, I borrowed $150 from a finance company on my car. I agreed to pay this amount plus interest in ten monthly installments. The amount I'll have to pay in the course of ten months is $206.42. Since then I learned I could borrow money much cheaper from other finance companies. I went to the finance company and asked them if I could pay the whole amount now. They said I could and that it would cost me $160.40 if I paid it by a certain date. I have already made one payment of $20.12. 1, Is this finance company within the law charging these rates? 2. If they are not, what could I do about it? J. N.

The maximum that can be stipulated for by contract is 7 per cent per annum in ordinary cases. In absence of agreement as to interest 5 per cent is allowed after due on notes or other instruments in writing; on money lent; on accounts settled; on money received to use of another and retained without owner's knowledge; on money withheld by an unreasonable and vexatious delay, and on judgments. Pawnbrokers may charge 3 per cent per month; and licensees of state board of trade and commerce may charge 3½ per cent per month on loans of $300 or less. An agreement to pay more than the legal rate is usurious and only the principal can be collected. Under 1929 statute the 7 per cent limit does not apply to collateral loans exceeding $5,000.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 19, 1915.

LONDON.—A report here that the Bulgarians have taken Monastir is not confirmed, but everything indicates that it is likely. The Serbian legation at Athens is reported to have admitted two days ago that the Serbian situation is almost desperate. According to official statements, almost four-fifths of Serbia already is overrun by the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians.

WITH THE AUSTRIAN ARMY ON THE ISONZO-DOBERDA PLATEAU.—The battle for Goritz and the commanding heights of the Doberdo plateau, still in the hands of the Austro-Hungarian army under Gen. Boroevic, began two days ago and is now on in full force. This time, instead of a general attack upon Gen. Boroevic's front of forty miles, Gen. Cadorna is concentrating the greater portion of his 1,500 guns and throwing the full weight of his army against the Doberdo plateau. The Italians have secured a firm footing on the edge of the plateau and at some places advanced their trenches. The most desperate fighting is on the slopes of San Michele, Podgora, and Sabotina. The trenches of San Michele have been taken and retaken repeatedly. The southwestern knob of San Michele is known as the "Mountain of Corpses" because of the heaps of Italian dead there in front of the Austrian and Hungarian trenches.

GENEVA.—The Italians are preparing for a formidable attack on Goritz, according to the Milan correspondent of the Zurich Gazette, in which 500,000 men are to be employed.

ROME.—Information has been received that the allies have demanded that Greece demobilize. Permission to divulge the nature of the coercive measures to be adopted in case of refusal to comply with the demand are withheld, but it is known that one of the steps to be taken will be the Italian occupation of the most important Hellenic islands.

BERLIN.—An agreement between Greece and Bulgaria concerning their future relations, it is learned from authoritative sources, is considered highly probable. Negotiations to that end, it is declared, would have the active help of the German government.

NOVEMBER 19, 1901.

CHICAGO.—The Princess Sophia Bamba Dhuleep Singh, daughter of the late Maharajah Dhuleep Singh of India, entered the Woman's Medical college of Northwestern university and attended her first classes as a freshman "medic." She recently reached New York from London and was there supposed to be en route to India—going with more or less secrecy because of the British government's reported opposition to her visiting the land of her forefathers. She will remain four years—the prescribed course.

CHICAGO.—For the first time in the history of the Chicago fire department, that department is confronted by a grand jury investigation. The manner in which a number of the fire captains, not specified as yet, obtained their right to promotion as battalion chiefs is the ground for charges submitted to the state's attorney. The validity of a civil service examination is challenged and the captains are accused of using money and influence to secure the questions in advance of the examination.

WASHINGTON.—Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, and John Hay, secretary of state of the United States, affixed their signatures to the new treaty for the construction of the Nicaragua canal.

SOFIA.—Another letter has been received from Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary held captive by Bulgarian brigands. Her health has been somewhat affected by her continual confinement and hard fare, but she expresses herself as still confident of ultimate release.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

NOVEMBER 19, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The outrageous conduct of Charles J. Guiteau during his trial for the murder of President Garfield is causing lawyers to consider whether Judge Cox under the constitution can exclude him from the courtroom. The court in this district once removed a refractory prisoner on trial, but the case was never taken up on appeal. Guiteau began the day by a vicious exhibition of temper. His counsel had asked the court to have the prisoner kept quiet and prevented from smuggling out statements. The request made Guiteau frantic with rage and he leaped to his feet declaring he was the leading counsel and that his lawyers were incompetent and were trifling with him. Fears are growing that some excited persons may attempt to seize Guiteau on his way to or from the jail and lynch him. This fear grows out of the fact that there is a growing suspicion that Guiteau may not be punished for the President's murder on the ground of insanity.

CHICAGO.—The last sad rites over the remains of Mrs. Mary McVicker-Booth, wife of Edwin Booth, the actor, were performed in St. Paul's Universalist church on Michigan avenue. The services were conducted in the presence of a large gathering by the Rev. W. H. Ryder, pastor of the church, and Prof. David Swing, pastor of Central church. Beautiful floral designs were sent by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McVicker, Mrs. James B. Runnion, Mrs. A. A. Parker, Mrs. J. R. Walsh, Mrs. Edson Keith, Mrs. H. O. Stone, and Mrs. N. Ludington.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN AGAIN.

Chicago, Nov. 15.—I am a property taxpayer who paid my taxes so far, but do not know where I will get the money for the next bill. I own just a little home. Now I read that there should be a college in Chicago at the taxpayers' expense. Surely the taxpayers are not going to be burdened with the education of young women and men up to the ages of 21 or 22 years. It is a little far-fetched to put the cost of high schools on the home owner, without college. It is enough to carry the children through grammar school without cost, but parents who can afford to keep a child idle at high school age should be willing to pay tuition, and certainly any young man or woman of 17 to 22, or even more, should not be an expense to a small home owner.

Even the traffic police and speed cops are paid by real estate—and please tell me what is done for the property owner? Our garbage is collected about once in six weeks or two months, and our street has not seen a cleaner since I can remember. We hire a man occasionally to clean up in front of our home.

We small home owners are bewildered. We are footing the bill and getting nothing. Let the automobile owners pay for traffic police and street paving and let parents pay for educating their children beyond grammar school and give us a little rest. Our burden is too much—and now college! Ridiculous and cruel! M. MANNERS.

SMOKE.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Your editorial of Nov. 11 on smoke is timely but omits reference to one of the most forceful factors in a smoke abatement campaign, i. e., the eye of the public. Let the observer of a smoking chimney report to the smoke inspector by mail or telephone. These reports will be cumulative and convincing. Let the inspector notify the owner or operator of the offending chimney that his offense has been observed, and then let justice be done.

To illustrate: Some year ago I suggested to the head of the art museum in another city that his smoking chimneys defiled the landscape, were injurious to his art treasures, and set a bad example. In a week he wrote that my letter had furnished the needed and final argument and that his directors had at once authorized the modern heating plant, long overdue. Q. E. D.

RETALIATION.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Since Elgin has gone completely Kane, why not have Cook retaliate? Suppose some Cook county officials go to the Union depot and count Elgin heads as the trains pull in, and then watch them, men, women, and high school graduates, scurrying off to all the best jobs that our city has, while thousands in Cook county are tramping from office to office trying to get a break. I know personally many young women who have married secretly so that they may still hold on to their Cook county office jobs, the rule being that married women are let out.

MRS. GEO. KING.

EDUCATING THE WORLD.

Albuquerque, N. M., Nov. 14.—Whenever I am forced to mention Chicago's inability to pay teachers' salaries I always get the same reaction. They say, "Why, how can Chicago have a Fair in 1933 if they can't pay for the public schools?" It takes quite a little explaining on my part to answer this, and when I have done my best the questioner still has a blank look or an incredulous one.

I would appreciate it if some readers would tell me just how and why Chicago should spend millions to educate the world and economize in education of her own people. Shall we have a new Chicago slogan: "Millions for the Fair and not one cent for Chicago schools?"

MARIE T. GARO.

BUS SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—May I use your column to register a complaint against the Washington boulevard bus service? I take the bus at Crawford avenue and Washington boulevard every morning, and as this is not a "limited" stop, I am forced to wait 10 or 15 minutes for a local. There is no local from 8:00 to 8:15, but three limiteds go by in the meantime, all with upper decks covered, so we who are compelled to take the local have to wait 10 minutes and then there comes an open top affair, no matter how bad the weather. This bus is always crowded to the doors when it reaches Crawford avenue, as one can readily imagine what it is by the time it reaches the loop, especially after taking on passengers at two transfer points. What chance would we have to earn a dividend? And why should we be forced to pay ten cents to stand packed in the sardines, and all ventilation cut off in the bargain?

I am a regular rider of this line and it has been many weeks since I have been able to get a seat either going to work or going home. I board the bus at Washington and Wabash on my homeward trip, and even then the seats are all taken up and many standing. Just imagine what it is before we are out of the loop district. Saturday I was forced to wait from 1:25 until 2 p. m. before a bus even came along.

Why can't Crawford avenue and Washington boulevard be made a limited stop? Why do patrons who are lucky enough to live on a limited stop get three buses to our one local and have covered tops, where the local riders have to take the open top ones? Surely to me more passengers could be accommodated in the closed ones. Anyway, why not put more buses on in the peak hour and put more men to work.

No passengers should have to stand. If all the seats are taken then there is enough traffic to warrant more buses. Seems to me the public is being more advantage of.

Disgusted.

FROM FOUR TEACHERS.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—What we want is our money. We have borrowed to the fullest extent and are paying high interest on every penny spent for car fare and lunches for the last six months. If the board of education is being cheated and cannot relieve the situation, why not get out as they have been deceived to do and give some one else a chance?

When mention was made of closing the board to close the schools for 1, a month's salary was fought in a hurry to pacify us. However, this did not appease our creditors. We are in dire need and are asking for no more than is due us. There is no group of professional men, or even laborers, who would work six months without pay.

Force the board to close the schools and we know some immediate action will be taken. We are no more than a political football between the mayor's office and the board of education.

FOUR DESPERATE SCHOOL TEACHERS.

THE HUMBOLDT LINE.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—I would like to make a suggestion to the Chicago Rapid Transit company. In view of the fact that they have deemed it advisable to run one car trains on the Humboldt Park line, I wonder if it would be possible to build seats up on the roof of the car, also to attach steps to the trolley pole, which is otherwise unused. I believe that they would find that at least forty more people could be accommodated in this manner. Or would it be cheaper to add one more car, which involves a little more expense over the cost of operating one car trains, as two trainmen are employed in either case? I am sure the riders of this line would appreciate an extra car, at least on Saturday nights.

$75,000 SPENT BY NEW YORKER FOR ZONING AID

Bobbe Tells Committee About Legal Fees.

New York, Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Paul F. French, the millionaire builder, spent $75,000 in legal fees to push out nonconforming restrictions and allow him to build on his Tudor City real estate development. The legal fees were paid to George W. Olvany's law firm, Mr. French, on the witness stand before the Hofstetter committee today, testified that he had retained James F. Donnelly, one of the partners in the Olvany firm, but Mr. Donnelly did not appear anywhere in the proceedings involving zoning changes as the attorney of record. The attorney recorded as representing the French interests was Frederick J. Flynn.

[Pach Brothers Photo.]

Mr. French said that he had never known Mr. Flynn and had never seen him until today. Nevertheless, the contract for payment of fees was made out in Flynn's name, and this was done, Mr. French said, at the suggestion of Mr. Donnelly himself.

Bulk Paid in Cash.

Mr. Flynn, who took the stand after Mr. French, testified that the Olvany firm received all but $4,000 of the fee, which went to him, and that at Mr. Donnelly's request all but $35,000 of the money was delivered by Mr. Flynn in cash.

Mr. Flynn is a partner in the firm of Gibboney, Johnson & Flynn. Before he joined this firm, then Gibboney, Johnson & Schlacter, it was recorded as representing Col. Edward C. Carrington when he retained Olvany, then leader of Tammany hall, to negotiate the sale of a pier lease to him.

The original contract which his general counsel, Henry Silicocks, worked out with Donnelly, Mr. French testified, called for the payment of $100,000 for a variety of zoning and building code appeals before the board of standards and appeals.

Fails to Build Park.

Part of this, however, called for the creation of private parks on French's East river development, and this was never done. As a result an adjustment was reached and the French companies paid a total of $75,000.

Samuel Seabury, counsel to the committee, brought out that the payments were made in installments. First there was a retainer of $30,000 in December of 1926, next there were payments of $5,000 and 15,000 in April of 1928. Then there was a $10,000 check in November of 1928. All of these payments were made out in Flynn's name.

After the adjustments had been reached regarding the total fee, the French company made out a final check of $25,000 as payment in full. This, in spite of the fact that the contract was in Flynn's name, was made out directly to Olvany, Elsner & Donnelly. The date was Jan. 24, 1930.

At the time of this final adjustment Olvany was no longer leader of Tammany Hall.

Mr. French admitted that he was surprised when he learned that the contract was to be made with Flynn. He said, however, that he had not questioned Mr. Donnelly about the arrangement and said that he personally had made no inquiries about it.

CANADIAN RAIL WORKERS FIGHT 10% WAGE CUT

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The proposed wage reduction of 10 per cent on the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National railways would mean a saving of approximately $5,000,000 to the railways, Vice President George Hodge of the Canadian Pacific railway informed the board of conciliation today.

Senator James Murdock, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, said the employés of the Canadian roads were at present receiving lower wages than workmen employed in similar positions on lines in the United States.

He served notice on the railways that the men would not consider the cost of living as a determining factor in the adjustment of wages. They would demand, he said, that such adjustment be made on the basis of comparative schedules as between Canadian and United States railway men.

EXILED ALFONSO TO BE CONDEMNED TONIGHT BY SPAIN

Romanones to Be Lone Defender.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Nov. 18.—Tomorrow night in the constituent cortes Alfonso XIII. of the house of Bourbon, exiled king of Spain, will be condemned. There will be no trial. Only one voice among 670 deputies will be raised in his defense, and conspicuous for all practical purposes, will be unanimous.

Nobody has any illusions about that least of all his solitary champion, old Count de Romanones, only monarchist in the cortes.

"Nobody ever accused me of being naïve. I am not counting on convincing any one," he said. "They will vote the commission's indictment unanimously and not think it enough. But every man has the right to a defense before he is condemned."

Little Enthusiasm in Cortes.

The constitution's easy formula for branding Alfonso has aroused little enthusiasm in the cortes. To many of the deputies the first months of a republic have been so full, and the future appears so intriguing, that the monarchy has become a dim memory. Others, including some of Alfonso's most distinguished enemies, would have preferred a fair trial, not only as being a more just but more effective means of revealing the former king to the world as they see him.

Count de Romanones will fulfill what may be his last office for Alfonso in Spain. Romanones saw him presented at court when he was a squirming infant on a silver platter. He was in Alfonso's first government, and he was in the last.

He was minister of the interior on Alfonso's wedding day when a bomb was thrown. As president of the senate in 1923 he warned him that he had broken the constitution. He surrendered in his behalf to the republic in April and he arranged for his safe exit.

He has not always been in favor. He conspired against Primo de Rivera and it was he who counseled the king's first honest election, which turned out to be his last.

"I will be the only monarchist in the chamber," the count said today. "There is only one thing for me to do there. Nobody has asked me to do it. I have not been in communication with Fontainebleau, France. Naturally I would like to convince them, but I know it is hopeless."

For the first time one out of the four or five great gods in republican Spain came forth today with objections to the way things were going. He was Jose Ortega y Gasset, philosopher and publicist, who has been mentioned for president. He is now busy with Miguel Maura, former minister of the interior, organizing what he hopes will be a powerful center party.

New Régime Inspired.

"Up until now the new régime has lived under inspiration," Gasset said. "I do not agree with the ideas they have given the republic. What is the use of change if the horizon is narrowed and popular sentiment is curbed?"

Toys with Alarm Box; 9 Fire Companies Respond

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 18.—(AP)—City Engineer Fred Potts meditated alone today—but not for long. He was joined by nine fire companies, two salvage corps crews, two fire marshals, a fire chief and a squad of policemen. Potts, deep in his own thoughts, had twiddled with the central alarm box in city hall.

DIAMONDS BLAZE AS MALAY STATE CROWNS A QUEEN

JOHORE BAHRU, Malay States, Nov. 18.—(AP)—An attractive Scottish woman with a burr in her voice today came to rule over the Malay state of Johore with her sultan husband whom she married last October in London.

QUEEN HELEN.

An impressive ceremonial replete with oriental pomp and pageantry marked the coronation that made the former Mrs. Helen Wilson, a widow, the queen of one of the few absolute rulers in the world.

The sultana was attired in a shell pink gown of Venetian lace cut to one of the latest European designs. She wore a corsage ablaze with diamonds, and around her neck was a wide collar of flawless jewels.

FRIEND GIVES UP AFTER WOMAN IS FOUND SLAIN

Patsy Ferrino, alias Meringo, 33 years old, 1919 Washburne avenue, a poolroom hanger-on, sought for questioning in the death of Mrs. Louise Sulk, 63 years old, 2014 West Adams street, surrendered late yesterday to Sergt. Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office. Mrs. Sulk's body was found early yesterday in a ditch near 115th street and Cicero avenue. She apparently had been beaten to death. The inquest into the slaying was continued until tomorrow by Deputy Coroner Jacob Schwesel. Ferrino, after being questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Ettore Ferrari, was held at the detective bureau pending the inquest.

Mrs. Clara Shields, 1432 West Monroe street, a daughter of the slain woman, was questioned at length. She admitted quarreling with her mother over Ferrino's attentions.

Mrs. Katherine Ferrino visited the Willow Springs highway police station last night and told Lieut. Weber her husband could not write except to sign his name. She said that at one time Mrs. Clara Shields had written a letter for him, addressed to her mother, and asking for cigarets. Police suggestion was directed to Ferrino by two letters, supposed to have been written by him. The letters criticised Mrs. Sulk for not giving him more money. Prosecutor Ferrari had Mrs. Shields copy sentences from the letters on identical paper found in her home. The writing was similar, he said.

Kenilworth Denies Plea to Change Zoning Law

The zoning commission of the Kenilworth village board last night rejected a petition of A. J. McLean, Chicago contractor, to modify the zoning law to permit him to build a series of nine houses in the English terrace style on a triangular lot in the village. McLean proposed to build nine houses on a plot zoned for seven lots, with only a fire wall separating each house. Nearly 200 witnesses appeared, most of them advocating retention of the present law prohibiting such houses.

WOMAN COMMITS SUICIDE.

Moline, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Mrs. Josephine Ramsey, 62, life long resident of Moline, ended her life by inhaling gas in the kitchen of her home this morning. Police broke into the house and found the body in a rocking chair beside the stove.

$200,000 READY TO BUILD WATER TERMINAL HERE

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A fund of $200,000 from the Santa Fé and Illinois Central railroads to build a terminal for the Illinois waterway now seems to be waiting for the legislature to knock it off the tree and authorize the spending of the money.

OSCAR CARLSTROM. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The fund has become available through the settlement in September, 1928, of one of the "90 foot strip" cases involving title to old Illinois and Michigan canal lands. Bills instructing the new regional port commission to prepare plans for a terminal to be constructed by the state waterways division at the expense of the two railroads are expected to be introduced in the special session of the legislature as bearing on unemployment relief.

Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom held yesterday that the bills would fall within the scope of the special session as being public relief measures.

Plan Has Twofold Purpose.

Advocates of immediate action on the $200,000 terminal project pointed out that it would give work to men out of jobs, in addition to being a necessary preparation for the opening of the Illinois waterway, which itself is expected to be a stimulant to industry and commerce. Pressures are being applied to finish the waterway some time next year instead of in the spring of 1933.

Waterway experts argue that unless the legislature gets busy and the state speeds up, barges may be coming up to Chicago from New Orleans before proper terminal facilities are provided.

The Illinois waterway terminal site at the head of the lakes-to-gulf waterway was acquired by the state of Illinois through the settlement three years ago of litigation regarding the ownership of certain Illinois and Michigan canal lands near the point where the old Bridgeport pumping station used to operate years ago. The state received the fee simple to a tract of 21 acres at the junction of the main sanitary and ship canal and the Chicago river at South Damen avenue, formerly Robey street.

Site Already in Use.

The terminal site is now improved with deep water slips, docks, railroad tracks sufficient for 400 cars, a covered transfer platform and a concrete grain elevator with a capacity of a million bushels. It has frontage on both the sanitary ship canal and the Chicago river, and it is connected with all railroad trunk lines. Chicago's produce terminal and fruit auction house are at the spot and terminal experts have pronounced it an ideal site.

Since 1908 it has been used for handling the bulk of the lake-rail traffic in Chicago. Package freight and grain are transferred from boat to rail and from rail to boat, and the terminal is served with belt line railroad service, the Chicago River and Indiana railroad connecting with the 26 trunk line railroads in the Chicago switching district.

In exchange for this terminal the state surrendered its claim to about 29 acres of canal lands, title to which had been litigated for years. In the settlement which was passed on by the Circuit court of Cook county on Sept. 15, 1928, Attorney General Carlstrom was instrumental in securing for the state two stipulations.

Two Stipulations Made.

One was that the Santa Fe and Illinois Central railroads should furnish $200,000 to the state to enable further improvement of the terminal. The other was that under certain conditions the railroads would build a connecting channel between the sanitary ship canal and the old I. & M. canal near Western avenue.

Under the stipulations the Santa Fé and Illinois Central agreed that upon written request being made by the department of purchases and construction of Illinois, not earlier than one year from the date of the settlement, they would furnish, as the work progresses, the necessary funds, but not to exceed in the aggregate $200,000, to enable the department to improve the terminal facilities.

Experts say that what is needed is a loading stage, barges on one side and railroad cars on the other, and that the $200,000 which the railroads are pledged to furnish will be sufficient to build at least the first unit. As to the time factor, waterway authorities said yesterday that to finish it by next fall, work would need to be started this winter or next spring.

No Hero to Him

Capt. Kidd and Al Capone simply aren't in the same class as swashbuckling adventurers, in the opinion of Rafael Sabatini, whose ideas on the subject are interesting because of his virile, vibrant novels of men of the pirate type. Slender and elegant, with an Oxford accent and a black ribboned monocle, Sabatini arrived in Chicago yesterday and paused for several hours at the Palmer house before leaving last night for St. Paul. He is on a lecture tour, and will be heard here Saturday morning in the Town Hall series.

"Nothing Capone has done to date makes him eligible to be included in a list of such men of iron as Capt. Kidd, Robin Hood and others," he declared when asked whether Capone would not make a fit subject for his pen.

TAX BOOST PLAN ABOUT READY TO GO TO PRESIDENT

Senator Smoot Believes Increase Certain.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The administration's program for a revision of the tax laws neared completion today with the treasury department putting the final touches to its report to President Hoover on possible sources of additional revenue.

SENATOR REED SMOOT [Fotograms.]

What the program will be and how definite the President will be in his recommendations to congress still remains in the realm of speculation.

With a show of considerable certainty, however, it is reported that the driving force, behind a move to increase the tax rates comes from Secretary Mellon and other treasury officials rather than direct from the White House. For some time the treasury department has been arguing that the mounting deficit could not be met in its entirety by further bond issues, and its opinions finally gained the upper hand over the views of White House advisers, whose eyes were turned rather toward the 1932 political horizon.

Says Sales Tax May Win.

Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, called to see the President today, but found Mr. Hoover closeted with Signor Grandi. The senator reiterated his belief in the inescapability of a tax increase, and unlike others who have said a sales tax could not get through congress, said that he though a 1 per cent sales tax might be gotten through the senate at least.

Senator Smoot conferred with Secretary Mellon and emerged to say that in addition to a sales tax there must be an increase of income tax rates all along the line, and particularly in the higher brackets. He declared for a minimum surtax of 40 per cent—twice the present rate—on incomes of $100,000 and above. No definite amount to be raised has yet been set by the treasury, Senator Smoot said, but he estimated that it may be necessary to provide for an additional one billion 250 million dollars.

Predicts a Compromise.

Meanwhile a tax increase program found another recruit in Representative Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.], one of the contenders for the speakership of the next house. He prophesied a compromise measure based on the recent plan of Representative Isaac Bacharach [Rep., N. J.], which calls for an increase of income taxes in the higher brackets, a sales tax on luxuries and higher luxuries, an increase in inheritance taxes, and the reinstatement of the gift tax.

Mr. Snell believed, however, that Mr. Bacharach's proposal to raise an additional revenue of 750 millions was unnecessarily high. He estimated that if 500 millions were raised the remainder of the deficit of possibly two billions at the close of this fiscal year might be taken care of by bond issues.

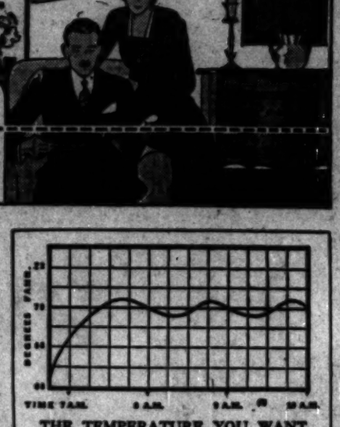
The G-E Heat Regulator gives you the exact temperature you choose—with not more than ½ of 1 degree variation



THE TEMPERATURE YOU WANT ... AS LONG AS YOU WANT IT

The chart shows there is not more than ½ of 1 degree variation above or below the exact temperature you want. This unprecedented accuracy is made possible by the G-E Heat Regulator's new, exclusive and patented features. For instance: the regulator gives graduated control of furnace-drafts (or fuel-valves), instead of having them completely open or completely closed. This prevents overshooting, or dropping way below, the temperature you select. It anticipates rises in room-temperature, and slows down the heat as required, keeping your home from becoming unpleasantly warm.

WINTER is nearly here . . . bitterly cold days followed by mild ones, blizzards followed by thaws. If the temperature in your home goes up and down with the weather outside, watch out! Because fluctuation in house-temperature causes colds and other sickness. Makes you uncomfortably cold, or uncomfortably warm. Wastes fuel.

The sure way to prevent fluctuation is to install the new General Electric Heat Regulator. This remarkable device solves the problem completely, by means of its exclusive, patented features. Stop in to see it, today! The single-range model costs $85; the double-range model, with an electric timer for automatic day-and-night temperature-changes, $125. Convenient time-payments may be arranged if you wish.

John Erskine Uses St. Peter in New Satire

Into Victim Reviews His Misspent Life.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Unfinished Business," by John Erskine. [Bobbs-Merrill.]

THIS casus belli of what happens in John Erskine's latest novel is amusing. It is this: Dick Ormer is hit during a motor accident, gets on his spiritual going away duckie and lands at the Golden Gates ["not unduly massive nor painfully illuminated, but on the human scale adequate, such portals as a magnificent but chastened taste would select for a domain of extent and permanence"].

JOHN ERSKINE.

Outside of the gates a "venerable Figure stood on guard—sat, rather—a person well preserved but of years, bearded and bald, clothed in a white garment which flowed into countless skirts and sleeves. At the moment his hands were folded in the sleeves and his head was bent. It would have been a relief to see whether the countenance betokened benevolence or severity, but in that posture of meditation the dome of the head gave no clue to the face."

In a snappy conversation which Dick Ormer [aged fifty] has with the gatekeeper, he is made to understand that there is no surer way of making hell out of heaven than to enter those gates with the kind of balance sheet which Dick had made of life. His good deeds were all intentions. His bad lives were only thoughts, not actual accomplishments. The two really bad things that he had tried to do but had never had the—shall we say the intestinal fortitude—to bring off were cheating his partner, who was his dearest friend at the time, and seducing a girl who became the wife of his dearest friend of later years. Dick Ormer never got around to finishing anything that he started. When the gatekeeper informed him that he needn't enter the gates if he didn't want to, that, in fact, "personally—will you forgive the frankness—I should prefer that you remained outside," Ormer decided to go back to life because "There's one thing in particular which I should like to finish."

Three hundred and eighteen of the 348 pages are devoted to the attempts of Dick Ormer to finish, at the age of fifty—what he had never brought off at the age of, well, say thirty. It is an amusing and provocative idea. How Mr. Erskine brings it off or not, it seems to me, up to the idea, but perhaps that is because ideas seem so much more exciting to me in books than the actual working out of them. There are thousands of books which are well written, which carry off their plans with skill, if not with genius. But there are not thousands of books with ideas worth being carried out with genius. So that, when I encounter an idea in a novel the mere carrying of it off with brilliance seems—as the so much lesser art—something which is to be taken for granted. "Unfinished Business" is a skillful tale of a man's attempts to live his life more keenly after a close shave with death has awakened him to the fact that he never actually has lived in any real sense of the word.

The hero's attempts at balancing his accounts with the man he had wanted to cheat and the woman whom he had not seduced seem a little futile, not so much in their results as in their conception.

The story is more concerned with the working out of a new goodness than the finishing of old badnesses, and it is with a gesture of an impulse toward generosity which becomes action that the book ends, and the hero takes the hero back to the golden gates to be welcomed by the Figure with "I gather, then, that you completed the little matter you had in mind?" to which Ormer replies "Not what I intended, but I did finish one thing!" The book ends with the Figure's cosmic observation: "That is more than most!"

Scouts Gather Clothes to Aid Poor Families

One Troop Reports Want in Neighborhood.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

It takes the Boy Scouts to bring in the discarded serviceable clothing for distribution among the unemployed. Less than a week ago the Chicago council of the Scouts issued a call to the 700 troops of the city to search their neighborhoods for usable garments for local distribution between Thanksgiving and Dec. 12.

Several troops already have announced that their quotas have been reached, but that they mean to continue the drive until the closing date and after that if necessary.

Harry K. Eby, extension director of the Chicago council, yesterday stated that the scoutmasters, responding for their troops, have been most enthusiastic. The churches and other scout sponsoring organizations, he added, have welcomed this method of scout participation in the local institutional relief program.

Only one troop has definitely reported that it cannot participate in the campaign. But the explanation why that troop could not act, received by Judge John F. McGoorty, civic service chairman of the council, reads as follows:

"I am sorry to inform you that it will be impossible for our troop to participate in the Thanksgiving and Christmas emergency service. We are located in a foreign community and the circumstances of the community are such that it will be impossible for our troop to collect clothing. All our scouts come from poor families where help is greatly needed. We would be glad to help to distribute the clothing if we were given the things to distribute."

Among the troops which have completed their quotas of 5 suits, overcoats, or dresses, 5 pairs of men's, women's, or children's shoes, 5 suits of underwear, together with other miscellaneous items, are Troop 166, of the Fourth Congregational church, 2827 North Talman avenue, led by Scoutmaster H. W. Scott; Troop 109, of the Logan Square Baptist church, Belden and Lawndale avenues, led by Scoutmaster Earl G. Gamborg, and Troop 111, led by Scoutmaster R. A. Lewis, of the Episcopal Church of the Advent, Francisco avenue and Logan boulevard.

A corps of 250 volunteer scout commissioners is visiting every scout troop in the city this week to discuss methods with local scout campaign leaders. The scouts also are collecting toys which may be repaired by scout troops or by workers at the loop toy repair shop to be opened today. Mayor Cermak will formally open the shop. It is located at Hartman's, Adams street and Wabash avenue. The mayor will bring several toys, donated by his grandchildren, to start the work which will bring Christmas cheer to many children. These, together with other toys, donated through scout troops or directly to the new shop, will be rebuilt and distributed by the scouts at Christmas time to children whose elders are unemployed.

[Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.]

Ormond, Fla., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Cheerful and well, expressing his optimism for the future by poem, prayer, and meditation, John D. Rockefeller Sr., nearing 92, came back to Florida today to spend the winter.

He entered eagerly into the routine of his seaside house, "The Casements," and planned to play golf tomorrow "if the greens are good."

Mr. Rockefeller delights in sending a golf ball bounding down the fairway.

"I just play a few holes now," he said, "but it's a good game."

Some one put out a hand with palm upturned for one of the famous dimes. Mr. Rockefeller looked and laughed.

"The reporters have suggested I take up a collection this time," he said. He does not distribute dimes at the train.

Mr. Rockefeller fairly grinned as he took in the welcoming scene. "I'm feeling fine," he assured his friends.

Before the train left Jacksonville this morning Mr. Rockefeller invited a newspaper man to sit at his breakfast table and participate in the morning meditations, a regular custom of the Rockefeller household.

He had the reporter read first a poem entitled, "Sunlit Days," which the nonagenarian said was "a particularly timely sentiment."

The theme of the poem was that better things and sunlit days are ahead.

Neglecting to touch his breakfast of baked apple, cereal, and tea, Mr. Rockefeller asked the reporter to read a prayer and then a long meditation, while he listened enthralled. The prayer was:

I would be quiet, Lord,
Nor tease nor fret;
Not one small need of mine
With thou forget. Amen.

The meditation, a chapter of religious comment called "Exhilarant Spirits," expressed, too, an optimistic attitude toward the difficulties of life.

Mr. Rockefeller wiped away a tear as the reading was concluded.

Cyrena Van Gordon Helps Select Outdoor Play Site

Cyrena Van Gordon of the Chicago Civic Opera company yesterday accompanied Dr. Irving S. Cutter, head of the Northwestern university medical school, and members of the recently formed womens auxiliary of the school on a tour of inspection of McKinlock campus to select a site for an outdoor playhouse. The project is one of the purposes of a benefit card party to be held Monday afternoon at the Lake Shore Athletic club by the organization, of which Mrs. Cutter is honorary chairman. Funds raised at the affair will be used to erect the playhouse to amuse the juvenile patients who are brought to the clinics and also to provide a social service nurse for the pediatric clinic. Mrs. Loyol Davis is chairman of the committee on arrangements for the benefit.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

With a nice backlog of government bonds almost any one can afford to speculate with small sums. If the small sums are all you have, speculating is usually fatal.

In yesterday's play-a-problem South has not only an unusually strong distributional strength but had a solid backing of strength in his partner's bid. If partner had not shown this strength to him he would have been foolhardy to have bid at all. The hand was:

NORTH.
♠—K,9,5
♥—A,J,10,9,6,4

WEST (Dealer). EAST.
♠—A ♠—6,5,3
♥—K,Q,7,5 ♥—4,3
♦—A,5 ♦—9,10,9,4,3
♣—K,Q,10,7,6,2 ♣—3,2

SOUTH.
♠—Q,10,8,7,4
♥—8
♦—K,J,8,7,2
♣—9,8

West, holding 4 high card tricks and 2 low card tricks in clubs, opened with a game invitational bid of two clubs. North, holding a strong hand containing 4 probable tricks and 2 high card tricks, made a jump overcall of three hearts. East passed.

While North's bid is not a game demand bid it shows an unusually strong hand about equal to an original game invitational bid of two. South, holding the singleton ♥ 8, was hesitant to allow his partner to play that suit. He knew moreover that his hand was strong in distributional strength if not in high cards and that if either the spades or diamonds fitted his partner's hand a game would be forthcoming. He, therefore, bid three spades. West, saddened at the thought of seeing his beautiful hand slip away from him, stuck in a bid of four clubs. North bid four spades and all passed.

West opened the ♣ K. Dummy played the A, East the 5 and South the 2. Dummy then led the singleton ♦ 6, East played the 2, South finessed the J and West took the trick with the A. West then led the ♣ Q on which North played the 4, East the J and South the 9. West followed with the ♣ 10, Dummy played the 5, East the ♥ 3 and South trumped with the ♠ 4.

South now led the ♦ K, on which Dummy played the ♥ 2. South's next lead was the ♦ 2 which Dummy trumped with the ♠ 5 and led back the ♥ A, following with the ♥ J, which South trumped with the ♠ 7. South then led the ♦ 7, which Dummy trumped with the ♠ 9. The ♥ 10 was then led from dummy and trumped by South with the ♠ 8. South next led the ♦ 8, which he ruffed in dummy with the ♠ K, leading back the ♥ 8 from dummy and ruffing with the ♠ 10 but was overtrumped by West with the A. West then led the ♣ 7 which South trumped with the ♠ Q over East's ♠ J.

While the average player is overly inclined to ruff and thereby gets into hot water in many hands where the trumps should be cleared, there are nevertheless many hands similar to the one above that can only be made by a carefully considered cross ruffing.

It is obvious in this hand that if an attempt be made to clear the spades, even though they clear in two rounds, game cannot be made. The obvious and only hope for declarer at his first sight of the hand is a carefully executed ruffing program.

That coupon for the Golden Card tournament may be found in today's paper. Fill it out and send it in. Undernourished children will thank you and our unemployed will thank you and in addition you will have a bully good time playing in this tournament. Remember you have got at least a 50-50 chance of winning.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as 8, 2, K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Good morning!

Colorful, romantic, adventurous, sparkling with the effervescence of Lupe Velez and mellow with the music and class of Lawrence Tibbett, "The Cuban Love Song" got under way at the Roosevelt yesterday.

The pull of this picture lies in its charm. A story, lightsome in the main, but with here and there unexpected depths of pathos, unfolds easily with intriguing flashes of humor.

The hero is a marine, engaged to a game and lovely San Francisco society girl. The heroine in chief is a volatile little Cuban peanut vender who wins the heart of the gay young soldier of the sea while his ship lies at anchor off Havana. The world war breaks into the romance of Terry and Nenita, and Terry goes overseas.

He returns to San Francisco wounded. Here he finds Crystal loyally waiting. Despite his pleas she marries him and cares for him tenderly for—ten years, I think it is. Then desire, awakened by hearing a song that Nenita used to sing, becomes too strong for Terry. He goes back to Cuba and finds—what I won't tell you about.

Lawrence Tibbett is buoyantly delightful in the starring rôle. He sings much and enchantingly. One of his numbers is striking and unusual—a duet with himself! He becomes better looking all the time, too, somehow or other. Don't ask me how he does it, because I don't know.

Lupe Velez, in a rôle built for her provocative self, is as her admirers love her. Ernest Torrence and Jimmy Durante elicit hearty laughs as Terry's buddies. The picture is technically satisfactory, boasts some artistic photography, and has been directed with taste.

If you're shopping for good all around entertainment I'd suggest a ticket to "The Cuban Love Song."

See you soon!

HERE it is again—the double-voiced, two-layer, day-and-night fantasy by Eugene O'Neill called "Strange Interlude." Many people take it seriously and after sitting through its nine acts in psychological raptures go home to rehearse their complexes according to the theories of the learned Herr Doktors Freud and O'Neill. Myself I think that it is almost as funny as the burlesques of its story that used to crop out in the Broadway revues.

The company now at the Great Northern is a touring organization carrying the torch among the suburban communities that the Theater Guild did not visit. Its members are not as expert in "ventriloquism" as those that the Guild employed, and consequently much of the personal-versus-of the secondary, or "stream of consciousness," dialogue is missed. One feels that these players should have dummies sitting on their knees in order to make that part of the author's purpose perfectly clear. In fact, I think that ventriloquial dummies ought to be used in any and all productions of "Strange Interlude." When one of the little fellows didn't behave and said naughty things out of Freud's casebooks the player could slap him on the ear and remark:

"Stop that, Kid Complex, or I'll throw you back in the trunk."

The forthright and commonplace performance given by this company brings out the comic values of "Strange Interlude" quite clearly. The audiences at the Great Northern laugh whenever O'Neill's psychological mutterings become too grandiose and absurd. O'Neill worshipers grow navage when they hear these outbursts of the American sense of humor, and growl in bitter protest against the dumbness of the populace. I regard this laughter, however, as a cheerful symptom, proving that the race still is in its right mind.

The rôle of Nina is played by a comely young actress named Mabel Julienne Scott, previous performances unknown. She has poise and attractiveness. The unhappy doctor is represented, in a grim and haggard way, by Courtney White, who appeared here last season in the title rôle of "Dracula." The time schedule for the play is: 5:30 to 7:50, interval for dinner; 9:00 until the characters grow old, which is about 11:00 p. m.

The booking of "The Mikado," with Mme. Schumann-Heink as Katisha, at the Grand Opera house has been canceled. A few days ago this revival was announced to open Nov. 29 for a week's stay.

"Blossom Time" is a roaring success at the Grand, although this is the operetta's sixth engagement in Chicago. The demand for tickets has caused the erection of a second box office in the lobby, which may be another symptom that the economic tide is turning. Nevertheless, the company will not remain beyond its allotted time. It will move to Detroit at the end of next week.

The title rôle of "Mr. Whistler," which the producer of "The Green Pastures" will stage at the Blackstone theater Dec. 27, will be acted by Richard Hale. Others in the company will be Diantha Pattison, J. Malcolm Dunn, Reginald Carrington, Georgia Lee Hall, and Charles Lalte

Cooking Expert Reveals Art of Roasting Beef

As Thousands Sniff, Hear, Learn Methods.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

COLD weather dishes—those piping hot viands that accentuate the appetite the minute the thermometer goes into a tail spin—were prepared yesterday at THE TRIBUNE School of Cookery by Mrs. Ida M Chitwood, who conducts the school

The day was cold and dreary outside, but in Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 4000 Washington boulevard, more than 5,000 women leaned forward in their chairs, sniffing the air expectantly as a small sized roast slid into a hot skillet on the stove. As the meat sizzled the rich aroma of beef, with its seasoning of flour, salt, and pepper, getting its preliminary searing, permeated the hall. Their appetites thus whetted, the students listened with more than the usual enthusiasm while Mrs. Chitwood delivered directions for cooking the dish that is a household institution—the dinner roast.

"I am using a small roast, two pounds for a family of six," the nationally known food expert began. "I don't use a drop of water with my roast. I want it to cook in its own juices. If you have the proper roaster, one that has little convex points in the lid, the moisture will gather there and drip down, making the roast self-basting.

"Now take a sharp paring knife and cut incisions in the meat. Take pieces of onion or garlic and insert, being sure to press into the meat until the pieces are entirely covered. If you like garlic use only about an eighth as much as onion.

"You must be sure that the onion or garlic is entirely covered by meat. When the meat becomes hot, steam will start racing through it, and the onion flavor will then become evenly distributed. If this seasoning is exposed your household will not only know you're having onion, but your neighbors will, as well."

Mrs. Chitwood then salted the roast and sprinkled it well with flour. It was then browned on both sides in the hot skillet and placed in the roaster. Before clamping down the lid she rolled six raw potatoes in salt and placed them around the roast. The roast was cooked an hour and thirty minutes in a 400 degree oven.

In between the major recipes Mrs. Chitwood found time to show the women how to make toast sticks to serve with salads. She used five slices of buttered bread from which the crust has been removed, cutting them into strips. These were toasted in the oven and served hot.

"There is another way to serve these. We call them French toast sticks when served this way. Dip the strips into a sauce of one beaten egg and a quarter of a cup of milk. Place the strips in a wire basket and fry in deep fat forty seconds."

Another popular winter recipe was Bishop Williams' johnny cake. Mrs. Chitwood used a cup of cornmeal, a heaping cup of flour, a third of a cup of sugar, one cup of sour cream, a half teaspoon of soda, one teaspoon of salt and two unbeaten eggs. She sifted the dry ingredients.

Then she added cream, eggs and soda which had been dissolved in an eighth of a cup of hot water. After stirring them together well, she poured the batter in a cake pan and baked in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F. at first, increasing to 450 degrees after the first ten minutes.

"When I get tired of French dressing for salads," she said later, "I make a boiled dressing of which I am especially fond. You cook two tablespoons of melted fat, three tablespoons of flour [cream these first] with a cup of boiling water in a double boiler for ten minutes, stirring constantly. Place two egg yolks in a bowl with salt, sugar, mustard, and pepper to taste. Add a cup of salad oil, three tablespoons of vinegar and three tablespoons of lemon juice. Add this mixture to the boiled sauce and beat until smooth."

Just before Mrs. Chitwood was introduced to her class by Mary Meade, TRIBUNE home economics editor, the audience was entertained with a 15 minute program.

Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, introduced Carl Craven who led the community singing. Students from the Ideal Dancing studios performed, and Jeanne De Lee gave a reading. Others on the program were Esther Goodwin, contralto, from the American Conservatory; MacKenzie Ward, baritone, from Bush Conservatory; Mrs. Kathryn Bennett was at the piano

Today Dan Nolan will lead the community singing with Mrs. Bennett at the piano On the program will be Florence Thomas, soprano, from Columbia conservatory; Gail Bandell, blues singer; Bob Elson, and Pierre Andre, W-G-N announcers, and dancers from the Ideal Dancing studios.

The session will close tomorrow afternoon after the grand prizes have been awarded. These are an electric refrigerator washing machine, toaster, vacuum cleaner, iron, and percolator.

Gertrude Dudley Heads U. of C. Women's Council

Miss Gertrude Dudley, professor of physical education at the University of Chicago, yesterday was named head of the Women's University council by President Robert M. Hutchins. The council, composed of twenty-four members of the university staff, exercises the functions assigned to the dean of women in most universities. Prof. Dudley succeeds Prof. Edith Foster Flint. Prof. Flint resigned the chairmanship of the council, which she had held since 1925, to devote more time to her work in the department of English.

Bridge Clubs Boost Golden Card Tourney

The Auction Bridge club of Chicago, one of the haunts of the experts of the middle west, yesterday announced that it officially would be in the Chicagoland Golden Card tournament on Dec. 3.

On the directorate of this club are such prominent bridge players as E. J. Tobin, R. W. Halpin, R. Frankenstein, Carlton Drake, L. J. Kelly, Mrs. Alice Rankin, Miss Irene Curran, E. M. Lagron, S. R. Fairlee, and D. M. Smith. Louis J. Haddad is president; Mrs. M. K. Alexander and Timothy C. O'Neil, vice presidents, and Edward H. Marhoefer, treasurer.

The Olympian Bridge club in the East End Park hotel at 55d street and Hyde Park boulevard, announced that its members would join the tournament. Edwin J. Speyer, supervisor, said the evening would be devoted to the tournament.

Players like those named above, many of them holders of championships, recognize the spirit behind this tournament and are glad to get into it for the pleasure as well as the opportunity to aid two worthy relief organizations. All the proceeds above the actual cost of the cards used in the play and the printing of score cards goes in equal division to the Joint Emergency Relief fund and the Hungry School Children fund.

These organizations need the money. The big relief fund is still far short of its huge quota of $8,800,000 and school principals are daily reporting that they must have still more money if the little children whose parents are unable to feed them are to get food enough to enable them to remain in their classes.

The Golden Card tournament was sponsored by THE TRIBUNE to let the great army of warm hearted bridge players of Chicagoland give in small amounts individually. Thousands of them, paying their entry fees, will make a handsome amount for these relief organizations.

And it's all so simple. All the bridge experts, skilled players and just bridge players have to do is to determine how many they'll have in their parties and send in their orders and remittances to the Golden Card editor. Play will be in four deals and there must be four prearranged card packs for each table. The price is $1 a pack, or $4 a table. The cost will be under 40c a pack and consequently each foursome will enrich the two funds by a total of $4.40 or more.

Playing is, so far as rules are concerned, just as ever. These rules will be printed in full frequently before the day of the tournament. Charles True Adams, TRIBUNE bridge expert, is to broadcast several times over W-G-N before Dec. 3. Those who don't want to spend the time to read may wait until 8:15 p. m. that day when Mr. Adams will go on the air and tell the whole story again.

He is to broadcast again at 9 p. m. on Dec. 2, to clear up any moot points that may be in the minds of the players concerning procedure. In general, it may be stated that the hands will be not unduly hard, that they will give East-West and North-South teams at each table equal opportunity to win the Golden Cards and that either contract or auction may be played. Scores should be sent in on the official blank and those most nearly representing perfect play will bring players invitations to a final tournament where fine trophies will be awarded the Chicagoland championship team.

Hands Play Leading Role in Appearance of Lovely Femmes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We've always known hands to be grand assets, but was there ever a day when they did so much elocutioneering for their favorite beauty candidate? And was there ever a day of so many lovely new things for their upkeep? When they could take on a character as outstanding as a frock?

Apropos, I dined the other evening with a woman whose dinner frock was a rich purple chiffon. She wore coral shoes and her good looking hands were coral nail tinted, the shade being identical with the shoe tone. No other color appeared in the ensemble of the striking black haired hostess. It was as smart as anything you could imagine. And that's what I mean by giving a hand the leading rôle, which it can very easily claim by its own distinction.

It is curious that women who spend luxuriously on creams and lotions for the face do get a tightwad streak on when it comes to pampering the hands with beautifying lotions. It's even more curious that so many of the face lotions being equally beautifying to the skin on the hands, they never get a chance at them, with the result that you see a woman whose face and throat are quite beautifully preserved. The eye wanders further and is hurt to fall on hands that are coarse skinned, red, or wrinkled, or badly manicured.

It isn't a case of being manicured any more. That is expected of a woman, as brushing the teeth is expected of her. Being beautifully manicured is the thing: Getting just the right nail tint for the particular woman; keeping the rim white tipped; giving a dressed look to the hand.

In this cold weather season, anyway, don't wash your hands in hot water. Lukewarm is what you want and always have a cold rinse afterward to refine the skin texture and preserve its youth. After every wash get the habit of using a hand lotion—some kind of hand lotion, if it's only olive oil or cold cream. If the hands need softening and bleaching, have made up a hand lotion of equal parts glycerin and camphor. But use something every day on those hands—because they're going to be more and more important as women revert further to the feminine type of dress.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I. N.: USE GROUND PUMICE stone mixed with peroxide for cigaret stains on the hands. Lather the fingertips and scrub the nails with the preparation.

I. H.: MANY BLONDS KEEP THE hair light and clean with just a pure castile jelly soap. Others use the egg shampoo.

Miss Fairbank Makes Debut Today as Singer

It isn't often that Chicago's pretty girls has the opportunity to be present at the musical debut as well as the social debut of one of her number, but it is to have that pleasure today when Janet Fairbank makes her debut as a singer at the Arts club musical at the Blackstone. Miss Fairbank, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, has been studying abroad for several years and many friends are looking forward with some anticipation to hearing her this morning. John Charles Thomas also will be on this morning's program.

Miss Fairbank, herself an artist, but in the literary world instead of the musical world, will entertain a large group at the musical, and box parties will be given by Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Ernest Graham, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Theodore N. Robinson, and Mrs. Herbert Witherspoon.

Nevada Hatvas, soprano, will give a recital this morning at 11 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club. Mrs. Alfred Tyler will be in charge of the directors' table for the luncheon which will follow the musical. Among the luncheon hostesses will be Mrs. Paul Bakewell, Mrs. Jefferson Jackson, and Mrs. Francis Dewes.

Members of the Lake Forest branch of the Needlework guild will hold a meeting and exhibition of garments today at the residence of Mrs. Cornelius K. Trowbridge. Garments exhibited will not be the handiwork of the members, but clothing to be distributed among Lake Forest's needy. Mrs. Trowbridge is president of the Lake Forest branch and Mrs. Ransom Owsley is secretary.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings will be in charge of the home dressmakers' sale at the White Elephant Rummage shop, 17 East Ohio street, today. The sale is being held a week earlier than usual on account of Thanksgiving.

Countess Margit Luncheon Guest Tuesday at Arts Club.

The Arts club was a gay and interesting place for luncheon yesterday. For there Miss Clara Lake and the Giuseppe Castruccios were having quite a large luncheon for the Countess Margit Bathlen, and there were numerous smaller parties. The countess looked most attractive in a black suit with gardenias on her shoulder, and a fine black felt hat, a sort of tam o'shanter shape, with a perky black feather trimming it.

Another interesting guest at this party was Rafael Sabatini, the novelist, who was paying his first visit to Chicago. The countess, who is here to deliver a talk on "History in the Making and Personalities Who Make It" Saturday morning at the fourth of the Town Hall series of lectures at the Palmer house, is being extensively entertained in a quiet way during her stay. After luncheon yesterday she and Mr. Sabatini motored to Lake Forest to have tea with Mrs. Lawrence H. Armour, who had invited about 10 to meet the Hungarian countess.

Last night Mrs. Bartholomay Corbett gave a dinner for her at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, 1455 State parkway, some of the guests being the Hungarian consul and Mrs. Medyesy, Judge and Mrs. Theodore Brentano, who will be dinner hosts for the countess Saturday night; Mrs. Jacob Baur, Dr. and Mrs. William L. Baum, Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomay, Edgar J. Uihlein, Dr. Overmayer, Dr. and Mrs. Otto L. Schmidt, and the German consul general and Mrs. Simon.

Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. John F. Winterbotham, Mrs. Walter F. Paepcke, and Cecil Beaton were lunching together at the Arts club, no doubt discussing the Tableaux Vivants they had put on at Orchestra hall the night before for Olivet institute. If they weren't discussing them, they were almost the only ones in society who weren't.

Mrs. Linn was a picture herself yesterday in a brown and beige plaid velvet gown and a tiny brown hat trimmed with brown and beige feathers. Mrs. Winterbotham also had chosen a brown costume, but hers was a plain knitted dress with a white yoke and cuffs of yarn or silk. Mrs. Paepcke was wearing a black suit and a white satin blouse and her hat also was tiny, of black and white.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Buck will give a tea at the Tavern club on Sunday afternoon. Marie Morrisey Keith will sing and Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. William Shippen Jenks, Mrs. R. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Herbert Witherspoon and Mrs. J. B. Woodruff will assist at the tea tables.

They went abroad in September to attend the International Neurological congress at Berne, and later motored through France and Germany.

Evangelists Seek Society Aid for World's Fair Campaign.

It was a good thing there weren't any very young girls in the audience at Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine's yesterday afternoon; for probably some of them would have felt that loyalty to their sex necessitated their making a protest against the speaker's statement that young girls were more the aggressors in sin nowadays than boys. The statement was made by Victoria Booth Demarest, who talked on "The Challenge of the New" to a group of women, with the purpose of interesting them in the evangelistic campaign that is being planned for the first three months of the 1933 World's Fair.

Mrs. Demarest and her husband, Agnew Demarest, plan to hold meetings five times a week during June, July and August, at some large assembly hall in the city, and with the assistance of Mrs. Philip D. Armour, they are trying to form a large committee to sponsor the meetings and the evangelistic work.

Mrs. Demarest, granddaughter of William and Catherine Booth, founders of the Salvation Army, and daughter of Catherine Booth-Clibborn, known as "La Marechale" of France, is visiting Mrs. Valentine and Mrs. Armour this week. After her talk yesterday which was given in Mrs. Valentine's book lined living room of her apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive, tea was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner Washburne announce the birth of a daughter on Nov. 15 at the Evanston hospital. The baby is to be named Jean for Mrs. Washburne's younger sister, Jean Lamson, who is attending the Walker school at Simsbury, Conn. Mrs. Washburne is the former Elizabeth Lamson.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gade will arrive next Tuesday and will be at the Ambassador for about 3 weeks. Their daughter, Alice, is not coming with them, as her relatives and friends had hoped she would, but will remain in the east. The Gades do not plan to return to France until spring, but their winter plans are indefinite.

Mrs. R. T. Crane Jr., Children, Leave Today for East

Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. and her daughter and son, Miss Florence and Cornelius Crane, will leave today to spend two or three weeks in the east. On their return they will take an apartment at the Drake for the remainder of the winter.

The Thomas S. Hammonds are in New York for a short stay. They have rented their apartment at 210 Lake Shore drive for the winter to Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Wescoat and they will keep open their country place at Flossmoor for the season.

Honore Palmer and his son and daughter-in-law, the d'Orsay Palmers, have arrived in New York from France, and are expected to come to Chicago for a brief visit in about a week.

Stock Orchestra Plays Music by Czech Composer

BY EDWARD MOORE.

FOR the first time in the musical history of Chicago a complete performance of Bedrich Smetana's cycle of symphonic poems, "Ma Vlast" [My Country] was given in Orchestra hall last night. The Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Frederick Stock did the playing. The Bohemian Arts club of Chicago acted as sponsor.

The series is at least partially known to Chicagoans. The second item of the cycle, "The Moldau," is a favorite with Mr. Stock and his audiences. He has also at one time and another presented the first, "Vyschrad," and there have been a few performances of the third, "Sarka." But "From Bohemia's Meadows and Forests," "Tabor," and "Blanik," though composed over fifty years ago, were novelties to the ordinary concert-goer of Chicago.

The first thought that strikes an American hearer of this elaborate cycle is a wish that there were an American composer as talented and as full of patriotism as Smetana to do the same thing for this country. An American set of the kind would, necessarily, be based upon different melodies and constructed in a quite different idiom. These considerations, after all, are matters of detail. What is really important is that Smetana did a fine, sincere, inspiring, and inspired piece of musical expression to the glory of his nation.

History, legend, national songs, tonal description of nature, and a poetic imagination to transfigure them all, are in it. When one considers that Smetana wrote it under the most tragic infliction that may visit a musician, total deafness, it becomes not only one of the masterpieces of the world but the act of one of the world's great heroes.

The performance was an event far beyond the usual, and was treated by the audience as such. Speaking as an outsider nationally, but as one who considers music one of the great arts of the world, one feels high gratitude toward the Bohemian Arts club for deciding upon the performance, and toward the Chicago Symphony orchestra and Mr. Stock for making it possible.

Newest Accessories Are Old Modes Revived

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Hats are still doing a nose dive over the forehead, but here and there in the crowd of tilted millinery are visible new hats that set perilously on top of the heads and do no dipping at all. These chapeaux make the thoughtful wonder if we are coming back to hat pins and such accessories, since there seems no other way of making these latest hats stay on as they should.

They are being worn by a few of the most exalted of the Famous Forty smartest Parisiennes, and one of them is pictured at the top of this column. It is early 1900, sitting right on the top of the head, and with a plume of ostrich wound around the shallow crown and tumbling over the hair in back. Suzanne Talbot made it for Comtesse Arnaud de Bertier, who wears it with distinction around Paris. It is black velvet with gray ostrich trimming, and is accompanied by a gray ostrich tippet attached under a pink rose. Picturesque is the extreme of it.

Another picturesque detail of the evening costume are flower garland armlets—two of them—which chic clients of Augustabernard are wearing with their simple satin evening frocks. They are sketched in the lower part of the sketch, and are made of red roses, pink rosebuds and blue forget-me-nots. They are worn just below the armpits and give a Second Empire effect to the most modern dress.

Writer Offers Guide to the Best Books for Children Under Nine

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I'm just a little sorry for you if with a couple of greenbacks, or several, you drop into a book shop to buy a book for your small niece or nephew, or son or daughter, or grandchild.

There are veritable floods of new books for children on the market this fall, with fascinating jackets and engaging names and O, such tempting blurbs! But I am sorry for you if you are going to choose a book from among them for the child you are fond of, because they are no attractive to the eye that you are apt to be guided by that alone, and so choose one that is not one of the best. The text is what determines that.

There are many excellent books for children, but you have to be very canny to select them. I had for this column at one time the ambition to go over each season's books and recommend all the best, but I find I cannot spare the time to add that to my other ambitions for this department.

Still, I know how important it is that the right books shall reach children, and I know how eager parents are to be guided in their choice. Besides that, money considerations enter in. You certainly don't want to waste your book money.

With all this in mind, we have had our booklet, "The Littlest Bookshelf," which is a guide for parents, reprinted. "The Littlest Bookshelf," incidentally, was prepared with the greatest care and a great deal of labor. It contains two guide posts. The first is a forward which will give you a clear idea of how to buy books for your younger children.

The other thing it does is to give a list of books upon which you can absolutely depend. The list was made from actually using books with young children and finding the ones they took greatest delight in.

"The Littlest Bookshelf" specializes in books for children under 9, though some others are listed.

If you wrote in for the booklet several weeks ago and did not receive it it was because it was out of print. It is available now and will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

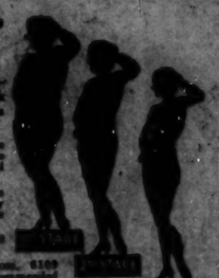
HAPPY CHICAGO LADY LOSES 12 Pounds of FAT



Overjoyed Chicago Woman Wins Reduction in Weight With New Bottle Kreek Treatment. Regains Youthful Figure, Feels —Oh So Light and Full of Pep.

Suppose you weighed 148 pounds, and every time you looked in a mirror you were so discouraged as you gazed upon a large double chin, heavy arms and hips, large bust and bust.

And suppose this over-fat condition made you too heavy for your own feet—until you felt constantly all dragged out, stomach upset, gas gases that made you cry out with pain.

And then you tried one thing after another—and you're all ready to give up in despair.

Such was the case of Mrs. Rosie Halstrom, 6160 Kenmore Ave., Chicago, Illinois. Her druggist recommended Bonkora to her, which he knew to be the one safe, natural way to take off excess poundage by cleansing wastes from the intestines and removing retained moisture from fatty tissues. But let her tell her story:

"Ever since girlhood, no matter what I did to keep down my weight, it always became more and more of a battle. Besides, I used to suffer from gas, bloat, constipation and indigestion. Sometimes couldn't sleep at night, or down stairs without getting dizzy spells and when I lay down my heart palpitated so badly I sometimes thought I would die. Now all those troubles have disappeared. Before I took Bonkora I weighed 148 pounds. Now I am down to 136. A loss of 12 pounds in five weeks and without any special diet. I can wear dresses 2 sizes smaller for I have lost 4 inches in both bust and waist and 2 inches in the hips. My youthful energy, snappy and vitality have been restored. I feel like a new woman. I am so grateful and happy I want everybody to know how Bonkora takes off unwanted fat and makes you look younger."

You may want to lose more or less than 12 pounds. But if you have excess fat you can lose it in the famous "3 easy stages."

What do you KNOW about BAKING POWDER?

THE CHOICE OF COOKING EXPERTS

You know that it leavens . . . . but do you know

. . . . that it can add real food value to a baking?

. . . . that there is a scientifically perfect leavening proportion?

. . . . that two-thirds should take place in the mixing, and one-third in the oven heat?

. . . . that this insures complete and perfect expansion of the elements which must be expanded and broken up to become wholesome food for you, and particularly for your children?

Rumford, the all-phosphate baking powder adds real food value to every baking. It leavens invariably in the perfect two-to-one proportion. It leavens perfectly and thoroughly, producing hot breads, cakes and pastries which almost literally "melt in your mouth." When you use Rumford, you use the most wholesome, dependably uniform and economical leavener made.

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

It was Kit Lescure's twenty-sixth birthday. She'd worked four years as receptionist in a London family hotel and she felt herself in a groove. When an East Africa guest offers her a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Rapsfont, Kenya, she gladly accepts. There Bubbs was there and Kit wanted him more than anything in the world. They'd been in love, but their engagement was broken because of his mother. Kit sails on the Bride's Boat.

INSTALLMENT IV.

SHIPMATES.

At lunch on board Kit felt like some one stranded on a desert of heavy pile carpet on which grew a small forest of empty tables. She was placed at one side of the large saloon, which had all the dignity and elegance of a first class Parisian restaurant. She spoke French well, that is to say, as well as any one can from learning a language without ever living in the country, so she was not at a loss. There were scarcely more than a dozen other passengers.

Kit was beginning to feel curious about the woman who was to share her cabin. Mr. Craig had not been able to get her one to herself, as the ship was going to be crowded from Port Said. It was a Miss North. They had told her the name at the shipping office, a young lady also going out for the first time.

Kit thought it would be a good idea to unpack before her shipmate put in an appearance, so she descended to the cabin.

It was a nice little apartment in excellent taste, with gray painted walls, gray carpet, rose-pink eiderdowns on the two neat single beds, with head and foot rails of dull nickel. There were two wash basins with running water, two dressing chests, and two hanging cupboards built in, with a long mirror inside. There were also two comfortable armchairs, covered with rose red rep, and two wastepaper baskets, and the electric lights were conveniently arranged and had rose-pink shades. Between the two beds was a door leading into a small tiled bathroom.

Kit found that her number was that of the bed on the port-hole side, for which she was thankful. Nothing could be nicer than these dainty quarters, if only her companion turned out all right.

She was so grateful to kind Mr. Craig for sending her out in such fine style. And she was to have a salary of five pounds English money a week to begin with, and, of course, everything found. And the hotel company had provided twenty-five pounds towards the special clothing she would require. It was essential that she should have a riding costume. What for she did not know. Mr. Craig had vaguely said that everybody rode in Kenya, although there were plenty of motor cars about. She had ridden in her early youth. They had been quite well off before her father, a rising barrister, had been killed in the war. It was thrilling to think of sitting a horse again. The colonial outfitting departments of the stores where she had bought her things had given her helpful information and advice. In Kenya ordinary European clothing sufficed in general. The only thing one had to be careful about was the head covering. Being practically on the equator, the power of the sun was dangerous even on a dull day. The solar topee was the one necessity.

Kit had just finished putting away the clothes she wanted for the journey. The lovely crisp linen suits, with the various blouses, and the plain tussore frocks, with bright colored belts and scarves and berets to match, and the oyster crêpe de chine, with the kilted skirt and the duck of a long coat that went with it, collared and cuffed with summer fox! What a joy to wear them when they got into the warm sunshine lands!

She had taken off her hat and was combing out her thick gilded hair. Standing up, her ready form, with its boyish slimness and lovely hollow back, showed at its very best in the simple little frock of cigar brown, and the large cornelian beads gave a glow to her pale amber cheeks.

"Hallo!" said a bell-like voice behind her. "Are you Miss Lenoure? I see you've settled yourself in. Let's find out the worst about each other!"

A girl of about her own age stood in the doorway, looking at her out of the most remarkable pair of eyes she had ever seen. They were the color

The girl threw her black felt helmet on the bed that was to be Kit's. Her very smart moleskin coat followed, and she dropped into Kit's armchair, crossed her white silk legs, and took a cigaret case out of her handbag.

"You look very nice and most frightfully healthy," said the girl. There was a little drawl, almost a stammer in her clear voice. It was attractive. Barring her white silk legs and a string of very large pearls, she was all in black. A tufty fringe of small cloudy black curls ran across her forehead; a sleek, round black head came between it and another series of curly tufts in the nape of her neck. Her skin was the color of rich cream. Both her eyes and mouth were heavily made up. Her features were small, and the whole face was unusual in that it was both exotic and prim. Butter wouldn't melt in that small, tight lipped mouth, but those large, golden eyes held strange secrets and could tell them if they chose. She was shorter than Kit and not so thin. Indeed, one guessed that, without strict dieting, she might easily become plump. She had that supple, boneless look of women who grow stout. At present her small, round shoulders and dimpled cream throat were delicious.

"You look very nice, too," said Kit. "I'm sure we shall get on splendidly. Isn't it a duck of a cabin?"

"Quite nice," drawled Miss North, looking lazily round, rather like a cat examining new quarters in search of the most comfortable spot. "A bit small and stuffy, though, don't you think? I'm not very strong, you know, and I'm told the heat will be awful. That's your bed, I suppose?" She cast her golden eyes on the washbasin opposite, where Kit had arranged her toilet things on the glass shelves.

"Yes, that is the number of my berth."

Miss North made no further remark, but Kit felt uncomfortable.

"Are you going to Kilindini?" was the newcomer's next question.

"Have you been to Africa before?"

"No—never. Yes, I'm going to Kenya. I've got a job in a hotel in a place called Soydoret."

"O!" A faint but decided note of superiority came into Miss North's voice. "How very plucky of you to take on a job like that! Whatever made you do it?"

"Well, I felt I wanted a change. I was working in a London hotel. I was getting into a groove." This was her stock phrase now. She had said it to her family. Mother hadn't understood, of course; but anything her elder daughter did was right with her. Fanny, her sister, had not understood, either. Fanny knew what she wanted all right. She wanted to marry her Jock, but he wasn't earning enough yet to keep her. But Fanny was too lazy to go to work to help him, so she waited in idleness, and their young love was losing its very first glory. Bill, her brother, was the only one who really understood. Bill knew what he wanted, too. He was only nineteen. He wanted to be an airman. He lived only for airplanes. He had absolutely refused to allow mother to pinch herself to send him to Oxford when he left Tonbridge. He was working as a mechanic in an airplane factory. That was how he meant to get into the air. Yes, that was it. To know what you wanted and to go out and get it!

"O!" said the other girl. "How quaint! How do you know you'll better yourself and like Kenya? Haven't you got a boy?"

"No. It is a very good job I've got."

"I am going out to be married."

"Are you? How thrilling!"

It's Hardly Sensible to Crack Your Whip Over the Boy Friend

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What queer ingredient in this mixture known as love reacts upon your systems, girls, so that you become the most awful little tyrants in matters as trivial as a "date" delay of fifteen minutes?

Queer thing about women! Until they're sure of their man girls attach comparatively small importance to a belated date appearance, or a neglected telephone call, let's say. But the minute the man tells the girl she's his sweetheart she begins doing the supercensor act. Some of the girls, evidence on hand suggests, even go to the extreme of attempting to make a man completely over, according to their ideas of what his behavior should be every minute.

Suppose the young man IS delayed twenty minutes. What of it? If it happened many times there might be reason to grod him a bit. But why quarrel, as Betty has done, over the fact that she wanted the boy to call for her rather early one Sunday evening, and he said he could not get there that early. Betty "knows for a fact that he could have made it with a little effort."

Now, that's the attitude I mean. The big boss speaking, the trainer. If she chooses to crack the whip, boy friend must jump whether he has jumping arches or not.

A good many nice young husbands are lost to girls through this proprietary stand. Man don't mind being managed. In fact, they rather like it. But you can't let them see the whip in your hand.

And isn't it silly to quarrel over so trivial an event in life as a belated date appearance? To break off a romance, that has all the other ingredients of success in it but this distorted sense of ownership spoken of? It is an ownership principle involved which isn't yet becoming to the relationship really. The principle doesn't work out under any circumstances in which love is involved.

Next time any of you young women feel the urge to call the boy friend down for this or that trivial infraction, you might examine the motive before expressing yourself. See if it isn't just a desire to show your authority, after all.

Illinois' School Laws Are Attacked as Unjust

Urbana, Ill., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Codification of Illinois school laws was urged today by Ralph Yakel, superintendent of Jacksonville schools, at the opening session of the Illinois City Superintendents' association meeting here.

"Our system of school support is inadequate, inflexible, and unjust," he charged. "Our district organization is uneconomical back in solving these problems, but we must continue to concentrate on the faults of our system."

Food Talk

This is a plea for a kitchen window garden. It's those fine touches that matter, and if you can keep a little greenery on your window sill to add to your dishes they'll be much more appealing.

In Willa Cather's "Shadows on the Rock" the immigrants keep alive, as well as they can, the traditions of their beloved France in frontier Quebec. Little Cecile, faithful to her mother's instructions, kept a parsley plant alive through the winter to furnish a garnish for her cookery.

Pots of parsley and chives can be bought at greenhouses or even occasionally at groceries. With care they live some time, putting out new shoots. Mint is something else that can be grown indoors, though it is not seen so often. It does a great deal to prosaic vegetables, like carrots, or to top off a cold drink.

The pots these plants come in are usually the small ones in which they have been forced in the hothouse, and transplanting is advisable. Use large earthen pots or, better yet, have a box built to fit your window sill. Be sure there is proper drainage.

In chopping the leaves, scissors do the work in half the time that a knife does.

In steam heated houses plants ought to be encouraged from time to time with plant food, because the atmosphere is trying for them. And it is better to water them frequently and not so much at a time rather than to soak them occasionally.

GLAZED CARROTS WITH MINT.

4 large carrots
Butter
½ cup powdered sugar
1 tbsp. mint leaves, chopped fine

Cut the cleaned carrots in quarter inch rounds and boil in salted water till nearly tender. Drain, put into a skillet and butter, sugar, and mint leaves, and fry slowly.

CHEESE SPREAD.

A great many people like the flavor of Roquefort and kindred cheeses, but find that the cheese as sold is too strong for them. A good plan is to mix the stronger cheese with cream cheese. This not only tones down the strength but makes the cheese much easier to spread on crackers.

How Does a Woman Champion Manage?

Women champions attain their "off days." But after day of practice and play, and matches that require no question of nerves. Then how do they manage during menstrual periods when other women are weak with pain? They meet these monthly periods with confidence and they don't ever experience a twinge of periodic pain.

Harmless as it is, a Midol tablet blocks all possibility of pain for hours at a stretch. It is not a narcotic. But it acts in a few minutes and lets you remain in comfort! Just ask the druggist for Midol.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Need a Rug.

"We have been trying to start a needy family housekeeping and have secured most of the furniture they need, but we haven't been able to get a rug for the living room. There is no covering on the floor which makes it cold for the children. Do you think one of your readers would have an old one to give? M. B."

If you are planning to invest in a new living room rug, perhaps the old one could be mended or cut down to fit the need here. The family will be grateful for it, and assuredly more comfortable during the winter because of it.

Offers a Piano.

"I have an upright piano one of your readers might like to have. It is a wonderful instrument, but requires tuning. O. B."

If you've always wanted a piano but have had to include it in the luxuries you simply cannot afford to buy, perhaps this is your opportunity to secure one. Write me if you'd like to have it; please do not telephone.

FLORIDA EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO FAIR TO BE REALTY AD

Private Subscriptions to Raise Funds.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lakeland Fla., Nov. 18.—[Special.] The Florida Realtors' association, in annual convention here, voted tonight to support the $250,000 fund for a Florida exhibit at the 1933 World's Fair in Chicago. They also resolved that the exhibit should consist of a reproduction of one of the semi-tropical homes which they are offering for sale to northerners. The Florida real estate man has a reputation for protecting his own interests.

MAJ. DOUGLAS E. CARLTON. [Harris & Ewing.]

The convention also listened with interest to details of President Hoover's plan for the government to loan $2,000,000,000 to stimulate home building. Paul Meredith, executive secretary of the association, pointed out that Florida can hope to receive a large portion of this fund since the state went Republican for Hoover, showing a large normal Democratic majority. The hope is also held notwithstanding the fact that the unfortunate Florida real estate boom has left the state dotted with empty houses.

Funds Raised Privately.

There has been no state appropriation to take part in the World's Fair, but Gov. Doyle E. Carlton has appointed a commission to raise $100,000 by popular subscription and $125,000 from power industries. Various state departments will also contribute.

The commission, represented by Paul W. Brown, mayor of Delray, believes that the expenditure will be a good investment since, he estimates, it will call Florida to the attention of 15 million World's Fair visitors.

The main speaker on this afternoon's program was Harry S. Cutmore of Chicago, who was director of the Cook county realty reassessment. The Florida realtors heard that the breakdown in Cook county's public finances was due to the fact that politics rather than equity governed the evaluation of real estate for taxation.

Pin Blame on Politics.

"The elective officers in the assessment machinery," said Mr. Cutmore, "used their political power to thwart the ability to juggle taxes. Under the new, scientific method, they lost this power. Political influences delayed completion of the reassessment, delaying tax collections and seriously embarrassing schools, municipalities and the county.

"The last regular session of the legislature was to have corrected this evil in the assessment machinery by concentrating authority and responsibility for uniform evaluations. Politics blocked the regular session from acting. Now a special session has convened and if the recommendations of a capable citizens' advisory committee are followed, Cook county will be relieved of political tax fixing, the bane of all its financial troubles," he concluded.

Conference to Study Best Uses of Types of Farm Land

BY PAUL POTTER.

Federal and state agricultural experts and land economists will open a three day conference on utilization of farm lands today in the Stevens hotel. Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and James C. Stone, chairman of the farm board, are to address the opening sessions.

The convention will consider the most efficient use of farm lands and discuss ways of returning marginal and waste lands to forestation. American Farm Bureau federation and the National Grange, and officials of the federal land grant colleges and the farm press will attend.

It was reported yesterday as the delegates began to arrive that President Hoover has taken a personal interest in the conference with a view to turning attention of farmers to the subject of land usage. The program, it is said, is expected to attract attention while the matter of the federal farm board is before congress. The conference is being held at an earlier date than originally planned.

Meeting Called By Hyde.

The meeting was called by the secretary of agriculture and the executive committee of the Association of Land Grant colleges and universities, which closed its 45th annual convention here yesterday.

Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland and chairman of the land grant body's executive committee, will preside this morning, and Charles E. Hearst, vice president of the farm bureau federation this afternoon.

Speakers will report on surveys as to means of adapting farm production to logical production areas, as well as taking submarginal lands out of cultivation.

Secretary Hyde has announced his intention of leading an entire session of discussion Saturday morning to summarize these points: Submarginal lands, forests, and other nonagricultural uses, taxation, farm adjustments and soil conservation, and agricultural credit.

Hit Hoover Education Report.

The land grant college heads in their final session yesterday gave President Hoover's recently announced survey of national education what one dean called "a slap on the wrist." The association voted to withhold its approval of the educational report insofar as it affects land grant colleges. Reason for the action was contained in a committee report, which said in part:

"Your committee believes that agricultural education and research as now being carried forward in land grant colleges have a national aspect and significance which the [Hoover's] national advisory committee on education has steadily failed to appreciate. It further believes that the present advanced stage of education in agriculture, home economics, and engineering is almost entirely the result of federal initiative and support granted on the basis of those statues which the national advisory committee would repeal."

The presidents of state universities in a closed meeting yesterday also considered, as the land grant college heads had done earlier this week, the "menacing interference of state and federal influences." President George H. Denny, University of Alabama, head of the university presidents' body, declined to comment on specific instances of this interference which has concerned the educators this week.

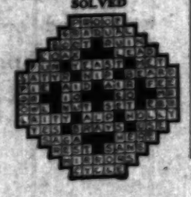
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



ASK CONGRESS INVESTIGATION OF FARM BOARD

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—An immediate congressional investigation of the federal farm board was demanded in resolutions presented to the National Farmers' union convention here today by its resolutions and legislative committee.

The demand for an investigation of the farm board was tied in with a resolution on the agricultural marketing act.

Chairman C. H. Hyde explained that the committee was a unit in its support of the act itself, but that it believed the farm board's administration of the act had been weak, unwise and ineffective.

Discussion of the farm marketing act, the Frazier relief plan and other matters was heard at the main session of the convention, various state farmers' union presidents and others speaking.

REID, INVENTOR OF SMOKELESS GUNPOWDER, DIES

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Prof. Walter Francis Reid, inventor of smokeless gunpowder, one of the founders of the British Aeronautical society, and a scientist who rendered outstanding services to the cement and linoleum industries, died at the Kingston hospital in Surrey today at the age of 81. He had been found unconscious in his decaying mansion near the village of Addlestone where for years he lived as a recluse. No one had seen him for two years.

When police, at the request of a milkman, forced an entrance they found Reid lying at the foot of the stairs in a debilitated condition. His hair hung below his shoulders and his beard reached his waist. His wife died sixteen years ago. Later he discharged his housekeeper. Since then he had lived on milk and only ventured out at night to collect new editions of scientific books which the postman left in the dustbin.

He was one of the British delegates to the post-war conference at Paris that founded the International Union for Pure and Applied Chemistry. He is said to have made a fortune out of the process of silvering mirrors.

PATRICK WHITE, WARD CHIEF FOR YEARS, IS DEAD

Patrick White, who was city superintendent of bridges and Democratic committeeman of the old Third ward for a quarter of a century, died yesterday in his home, 6930 South Shore drive. He was 82 years old.

Mr. White came to Chicago from Ireland in 1868. He was a supporter of the Carter Harrisons, father and son, during their régimes as mayor and was engaged in the real estate and hotel business. He retired in 1915.

UNIVERSITY LABORATORY TESTS NOW REVEAL STARTLING FACTS

HERE ARE ACTUAL LABORATORY PHOTOGRAPHS FROM TESTS

Before After

Before After

Before After

Before After

HERE'S ONE THAT SCRATCHED: the microphoto taken after brushing with this dentifrice clearly shows scratching of enamel—in addition to natural irregularities.

THOSE SNOWY-WHITE "GROWN-UP" TEETH—JUST COMING IN. . . . Are they really being cleaned? Is the priceless enamel being scratched? You've got her to the point where she's proud of brushing her teeth regularly . . . wouldn't think of going without. You've got good dental care for her. You know what it will mean to her to keep those pretty little teeth as sound as possible, as long as possible. Don't let guesswork cancel or impair all this. Be sure that her tooth paste is actually cleaning, and that it isn't scratching the enamel.

What Tests Show

You certainly have a right to know, beyond question, that a tooth paste will clean your teeth without scratching the enamel.

On these two points we report to you what a great university laboratory has found out about ten typical tooth pastes—DR. WEST'S and nine others. These tooth pastes were tested for cleansing power and effect upon enamel. Results were measured and recorded by delicate instruments and powerful camera lenses. Here are the facts:

SEVEN OF THE TEN DID NOT CLEAN TEETH—and two of the seven scratched enamel!

TWO OTHERS DID CLEAN BUT BOTH SCRATCHED ENAMEL!

ONLY ONE—DR. WEST'S—REALLY CLEANED TEETH WITHOUT SCRATCHING THE ENAMEL!

You can see what guesswork may be doing to your teeth. We present these facts so that you may know, exactly, the safety and thoroughness of DR. WEST'S Tooth Paste.

Gentle Double Polishing

This modern tooth paste was perfected by the makers of famed DR. WEST'S Toothbrushes. In relatively few months it has won the most sensational dentifrice success in history.

Unique, it gives teeth gentle, double polishing—plus thorough cleansing. It delightfully cools and refreshes the whole mouth. And in addition brings every other good result you may safely hope for from a dentifrice.

Special "Get Acquainted" Offer Now!

To acquaint new millions with this remarkable modern tooth paste, we offer two of the extra large 25c tubes for only 33c! (They are the biggest 25c tubes, among all established dentifrices, by measured volume.) Go to your favorite store today, and take advantage of this "get acquainted" offer. See how quickly your teeth will brighten—under this safe and really thorough cleansing!

Expedition Starts at Stadium Tonight.

On the Program

Primo Carnera vs. King Levinsky, 10 rounds.
Bat Battalino vs. Bushy Graham, 10 rounds.
Jimmy Walker vs. Tommy Rios, 8 rounds.
Johnny Berg vs. Frank Battaglia, 8 rounds.
Billy Kulas vs. Mickey O'Neil, 6 rounds.
Mickey Patrick vs. Jack Barry, 6 rounds.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Kingfish—our Mr. Levinsky of Maxwell street—will, if he listens, hear Old Man Opportunity rapping loudly on his door when he climbs into the ring at the Chicago stadium tonight.

About 15,000 spectators will be roaring, the huge bulk of Primo Carnera, the Ambling Alp from Italy, will be crawling into the ring from another direction, and it is possible that in all the excitement Mr. Levinsky of the Chicago fish industry will become so befuddled he won't hear Old Man Opportunity's knocks at the door at all.

The Kingfish will enter the arena to fight the Ambling Alp in a 10 round encounter. And that is no small man's job. Levinsky is a small man for this job, even though he stands 6 feet 1 inch high and will weigh 200 pounds. For Carnera is expected to scale 246 pounds for the Illinois athletic commission this afternoon and he towers almost as high as a mountain.

Just Suppose He Connects.

Even so, if one of the Kingfish's lefts or rights—he throws them with great power—connects and the Ambling Alp is pushed over, there isn't much in the world of fisticuffs he cannot demand and get.

So you can see what a big night this is to be in the life of King Levinsky of Maxwell street. What a great thrill is in store for the fish vendors of Chicago's Ghetto if their hero becomes just another "Little Jack the Giant Killer."

These possibilities and the further probability that the Ambling Alp may squash the ambitious fish merchant into fistic oblivion have caused the fight to take on great importance in boxing circles. And most everybody you chanced to speak to in the loop yesterday either had their tickets for the fight stuffed away in their pockets or were scrambling to get them. Late last night the Stadium officials predicted a crowd of more than 16,000 and a gate of close to $50,000.

Times Aren't So Hard, at That.

It doesn't look like hard times when a fish peddler from the Ghetto and a man mountain from Italy can stir up such a financial glove swinging fuss where there isn't even a title at stake.

Now about the fight. Well, Mr. Reader, you know just about as much about that as anyone else. It isn't likely to be a very skillful affair, for no one has ever accused the Kingfish or his giant rival of knowing very much about the fine points of boxing. So it isn't possible for anybody to even guess what will happen when Carnera comes charging out of his corner with every ounce of his 246 pounds ready to roll Levinsky into the dust on the canvas. Nor is it possible to predict what may happen when the Kingfish shifts his gears into high and begins his nonstop method of bringing the old right hand up and over.

It Should Be a Fight.

But it ought to be a fight as long as it lasts. Carnera ruled as the 5-to-2 favorite last night. His backers were willing to wager at even money that Primo wins with a knockout. Another fish peddlers from Maxwell street didn't come up with much money to back the Kingfish, but even if they don't back him with their dollars they will be ready to support him with plenty of lung power tonight.

While there are five other bouts on the program, the only one that was causing much comment was the ten round affair between Bat Battalino and Bushy Graham. They meet at 135 pounds, which is above the featherweight limit, so Battalino's world's crown is not involved. In their last meeting Graham gave Bat quite a pasting. After watching Battalino whip Earl Mastro a couple of weeks ago, Chicago fans can't imagine any one at that weight able to whip the champion.

And you can't keep that fellow Jimmy Mandell out of the picture. Jimmy retired from the ring only a week ago, that is, he hung up his gloves and put his trunks away in mothballs for good. But he bobs up tonight in the rôle of manager. His charge is Kelly Kulac, a Chicago welterweight, who battles Mickey O'Neil, an Irishman from Milwaukee.

Seven Pound Boy Is Born to Tunneys

New York, Nov. 18.—(Special.)—The Gene Tunneys today became the parents of a robust son who weighed in at Sloane hospital at something more than seven pounds and was said by attending physicians to be as excellent a physical specimen as his father, retired heavyweight champion of the world.

Mrs. Tunney, who before her marriage was Miss Polly Lauder of Greenwich, Conn., entered the hospital at Columbia university's medical center at 5 a. m. and four hours later her child was born.

To shield her and her husband from unwelcome publicity her name was not put on the hospital records until half an hour after the birth.

Married in House.

Mother and son were reported to be "doing perfectly," and it was said that despite the serious operation which was performed on Mrs. Tunney in 1929 she was in perfect physical condition. Dr. Benjamin P. Watson, director of the hospital, attended her.

Last Aug. 12 the Associated Press reported that Mrs. Tunney, then in Damariscotta, Me., was expecting a child, but the physician attending her then for an injury received in a fall denied the report.

The engagement of Miss Lauder and Tunney, who had retired from the ring on July 31, 1928, was announced by Mrs. George Lauder Jr. of Greenwich on Aug. 9, 1928. In the autumn of that year Miss Lauder sailed for Europe and she and Tunney were married at the Hotel Russie in Rome on Oct. 3.

Mrs. Tunney Stricken.

They traveled in Europe for several months until in the spring of 1929 Mrs. Tunney became seriously ill of appendicitis while on Brioni island in the Italian Adriatic. Her life was saved by two Berlin specialists, Drs. A. W. Meyer and Fritz Meyer, who were spending a holiday on the island.

MISSOURI WILL OPEN N. U. GRID SEASON IN 1932

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The University of Missouri will open its 1932 football season against Northwestern university at Evanston, it was announced here tonight by C. L. Brewer, director of athletics.

The Tigers and Wildcats last met at Evanston in 1927, when Missouri won, 34 to 13.

NO SCRIMMAGE, NO INJURIES, NEW ORDER TO IRISH

Anderson Cuts Drill for U. S. C. Game.

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Notre Dame today curbed the injury jinx by canceling scrimmage the rest of the week for the Notre Dame football squad. With one man definitely out, two more possibly unable to play, and Southern California, coast conference champions, furnishing the opposition, Coach Anderson decided it is wise to make no further changes.

Hope still prevailed that Mike Koken and George Melinkovich, left half back and full back, respectively, will be able to play Saturday before the largest crowd ever gathered in South Bend. Bill Pierce, right guard, is definitely out of the game.

Today's drill was along scrimmage lines, but there was no tackling. The reserves, using Trojan plays, went through their pantomime and the varsity players jockeyed for position to stop them.

Anderson Seeks Deception.

When asked how his team will react if the Trojans get a lead, Anderson said:

"They might fold up and they might fight all the harder. So far this season we have had the jump on every opponent and have not had to fight back."

On offense Anderson had the varsity use a variety of new reverses, spinners, and deceptive passes. He explained Monday night, during the showing of pictures of last year's 27 to 0 victory over Southern California, that the Irish success was due to a constantly varying choice of plays.

Maj. Philip Fleming, director of athletics at West Point, wired today for two tickets behind the goal posts so that the Army scouts can watch the fine points of Notre Dame's system.

Ticket Requests Pour In.

Anderson read with interest THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S account of changes in the Southern California lineup and repeated them to his squad this noon. It is not likely that he will make any last minute changes in defense, however.

The athletic association offices here worked until 10 o'clock again tonight, the third time this week, filling last minute orders. J. Arthur Haley, business manager, said the demand is the heaviest ever received.

The game will start half an hour earlier than other games. The kickoff is scheduled for 1:30 o'clock so that the contest will end before dark.

U. S. C. IN PASS DRILL

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Following a two hour workout here this morning the University of Southern California football squad entrained at noon today for Chicago. The Trojans are scheduled to arrive at the Englewood station at 9:15 o'clock Friday morning, stay in Chicago over night and then go to South Bend Saturday morning for their game with Notre Dame.

The first half of today's practice was devoted to signal drill. Two teams went through every play in Southern California's repertoire, with Galus Shaver, Orv Mohler, and Homer Griffith alternating at quarter back. Every regular is in good condition.

The signal drill was followed by an hour's intensive work against Notre Dame formations, with special stress on defense for the Irish pass attack. All four Trojan back field men—Shaver, Pinckert, Musick, and Mallory—are seniors, and the team's supporters are hoping their experience will add strength to their defense against these passes.

Coach Howard Jones seems to have definitely decided to start Johnny Baker, former running guard, at the left end in place of Ray Sparling. Baker appeared at end this morning. The Trojans' offense calls for heavy interference by the ends and inasmuch as Baker is the fastest man on the squad and an exceptionally good blocker Jones feels placing him at left end will give his team considerably more power.

MARCHIE, THE MARCHER

Marchmont Schwartz, a half back of few peers, is one of the reasons for Notre Dame's successful season. Marchie has been marching on the other fellow's goal line all fall. He'll march (?) on Southern California again Saturday.

Collegians Should Know a Bit About These Hard Times

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Nov. 18.—The football teams, the horse tracks and the wrestling promoters have contributed or agreed to contribute important gate receipts to the relief of the unemployed. The prize fighters, of course, have not done anything, but then the prize fighters, when they fight for charity, always expect 50 per cent more for their services than they could expect to receive for the same bouts under ordinary commercial auspices.

Max Schmeling may count on a guarantee of $100,000 for his next fight in defense of the heavyweight championship and I have no doubt that he would be eager to shave his price upward as a special concession to the crisis and agree to fight for a guarantee of $150,000, any deficit to be met from the funds already raised to buy food and shelter for the poor.

Max Is Philanthropist.

Mr. Schmeling is one of the most active philanthropists in the United States. He has made most of his present fortune in the charity business, as all his important fights, with one exception, were conducted under the tax exempt auspices of the milk fund, but his charity work has been conducted strictly on the Dutch treat basis. Max earns 50 cents for charity, and charity, not to be outdone, earns 50 cents for Max over and above the normal price of his services.

Unfortunately, Max is not physically able to offer his services to the unemployment relief just now, as he is still convalescing from a black eye received in his fight with Willie Stribling a little over four months ago. That might seem time enough for a prize fighter claiming to be champion of the world to recover from a black eye. The current heavyweight champion [with geographical limitations] is an uncommonly delicate young man.

Several times this season I have seen young college students emerge from the jumbles of the scrimmage on the football field with their features seriously disarranged to take a brief time out, against their own protests, while their trainers sponged them off to see whether there could be any salvage of their original good looks. They have then shaken their heads and ripped back into the game with great abandon.

King Goes Eggplant.

On the Schmeling schedule of convalescence, this amateur athlete, who will appear in the Army-Navy game for the benefit of the unemployed, might not be expected to resume play for several years, for his black eye was even blacker than Schmeling's and of much greater extent. Still, the comparison is not fair, and perhaps I should not have brought it up, because a permanently black eye might ruin a heavyweight champion's career, which is largely devoted to the stage and the movies. If a young army officer's eye be damaged he is merely surveyed out of the service and allowed to study the problem of unemployment from the inside.

But an inveterate philanthropist such as Schmeling undoubtedly would be willing to run the risk for a guarantee of $150,000. The prize fight, which would have to be held indoors at this time of the year, would show a loss and the deficit would have to be met somehow, for business is business, especially in the charity business. But, spread over a large number of the destitute, this would only mean a sacrifice of three or four meals apiece.

Could Mobilize Spirits.

Mr. Owen D. Young, chairman of the (take a long breath) committee on mobilization of relief resources of the (do not get off while the car is in motion) President's organization on unemployment relief, perceives that the college student bodies are not arequately aroused over the distress of the people who have no jobs.

With every confidence in their generosity, he believes they are missing a great spiritual opportunity just now merely because nobody has been able to mobilize their emotions. This probably is true and it does seem that the same young people who are able to turn up enthusiasm to order at football pep meetings would, if properly appealed to, excite themselves over this cause. The difficulty is that it is hard to excite people over conditions which are commonplace to them and many students fight their way through school in conditions of the bitterest poverty.

Even at the military academy a few classes ago there was a cadet in the first class who asked permission to resign because his mother, who was supporting her other children as a scrubwoman, had fallen ill and

ONCE AGAIN A. A. OWNERS RE-ELECT HICKEY AS BOSS

Hornsby Visits Minors Seeking Talent.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

For another year, if not longer, Thomas Jefferson Hickey will continue as president of the American association. This decision was reached yesterday afternoon following a two day conference as to whether the fifteen year incumbent or a newcomer should be awarded the $10,000 per annum position.

The break came when Norman Perry, the millionaire Indianapolis club owner, who for the last six months has been endeavoring to purchase part interest in the New York Giants, decided to desert the ranks of the rebels. As soon as Perry declared himself, the three other recalcitrants quit on the job of electing either William Clauer, former secretary of the Indianapolis club, or George Belden, who for the time being is president of the Minneapolis club. After Perry's desertion the election was declared unanimous.

Hornsby at Meeting.

Among the additions to the second day of the Association conference was Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cubs. The arrival of the north side chief had to do mainly with the possibility of making deals.

Hornsby had nothing to announce regarding trades for major league talent. But it is known that the Chicago club is in the field for pitching and outfield strength. The former is sought in Pitchers Frankhouse and Brandt of the Boston Braves. The latter involves the elder Waner of the Pirates. Nothing can be done with the latter club until Owner Barney Dreyfuss picks a manager.

Many Seek Cub Job.

Various fellows sought out Hornsby for conference in connection with the coaching job, which was held last season by Ray Schalk. No decision has been reached in this matter, but it is likely that Red Corriden, who was a Cub in the days of the old west side park, and who, subsequently, was a third baseman with the St. Louis Browns, manager of the Indianapolis club, and scout for the Cubs, would be promoted to the post. The other coach is to be Charley O'Leary, who served in that position last season.

The American association bosses discussed player salaries for next season and the consensus was that there should be a downward revision. They came to a gentlemen's agreement that the maximum should be $600 per month. This is an indication of what the majors are going to do without formal decision in the matter. The big league salaries are going to be reduced 30 per cent in the aggregate.

DEMPSEY KNOCKS DOWN JACK ROPER AND BERLANGER

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, scored knockdowns in two round exhibition bouts here tonight against Charley Berlanger, Canadian, and Jack Roper, Los Angeles. There were no decisions rendered in the two bouts, which featured a charity benefit program witnessed by a crowd estimated at between 3,000 and 9,000.

Berlanger, weighing 190 pounds, was dropped momentarily in the second round. Roper, weighing 195, was badly beaten and took short counts in both his rounds with Dempsey, who weighed 191½.

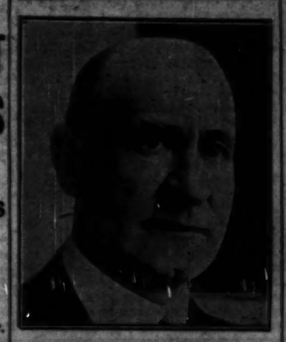
Billy Petrolle, 145, Fargo, N. D., easily outpointed Pete Reyna, 140, Cedar Rapids, Ia., in four rounds, dropping Reyna for a short count in the first round. King Tut, 150½, Minneapolis, defeated Frankie Burns, 140, Chicago, in four rounds. Barney Ross, 133, Chicago, gained the decision over Jimmie Lundy, Los Angeles, after eight slow rounds.

RE-ELECTED



THOMAS J. HICKEY.

What's This? Maroons Say They'll Win

So far as the Maroons are concerned the depression is over and the boom is on. Football on the Midway reached bottom in the Arkansas game, but the victory over Illinois has given the Maroons confidence and the team is talking of victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

Coach A. A. Stagg yesterday divided the practice period equally between drill on fundamentals and defensive scrimmage. Since his two best kickers, Page and Kanne, were ruled ineligible, Stagg has been at a loss for kickers. Wisconsin beat the Maroons two years ago with some aid from blocked punts, and two of Temple's efforts last Saturday went backward rather than forward. Sahlin or Zimmer probably will do the booting this week.

The freshman "Wisconsin" squad yesterday continued to go through the varsity for long gains, a Californian named Storey making the best showing. Whether the Maroon team is weak or the freshmen are as strong as they look is hard to determine.

BADGERS UP IN AIR

Madison, Wis., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—"Chicago has us puzzled. We don't know whether to expect a passing or a rushing attack Saturday," Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite of Wisconsin said today. He again ordered the football squad into the Badger field house for practice and for the second day this week excluded all newspaper men.

Thistlethwaite would give no indication as to what attack he really expected from the Maroons, and plainly did not wish any one to see the preparations he is making for them.

Trainers announced that Dick Haworth, husky sophomore end, may be able to play part of the game. It seems probable that Sanger and Westedt, B team sophomore backs, will see considerable action against Chicago. Westedt is a tall, rangy 190 pound full back whose fault has been slow starting. He is moving away faster now.

With the Michigan game coming a week later, Thistlethwaite would like to save John Schneller, varsity full back, as much as possible. The big Neenah player has borne the brunt of the Badgers' plunging all season.

WRIGHT'S ANKLES IMPROVE; HE'LL PLAY NEXT YEAR

New York, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Glenn Wright, around whose ability to stage a comeback at shortstop hinges a good portion of the Brooklyn club's 1932 pennant chances, has so responded to the treatment of his weak ankles that he has notified his new manager, Max Carey, to plan on his return to form.

"The best news I have had since taking over this job is this word about Wright's improvement," said Carey today.

"Wright is the mainspring of our infield, if not the entire team. The club went well in 1930 when he made his first comeback. Glenn was handicapped a big share of the time last season and the club skidded. There were other factors contributing to that also, but I don't mind saying I feel much better to know Wright is coming along."

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks last night engaged in another 1 to 1 hockey contest—their second in the two home games played at the Chicago Stadium in this infant season. The Toronto Leafs were the honor sharers on this occasion.

The score was the same as that of the opener with the New York Americans Sunday night, and the Hawks wore the same uniforms and skates and carried the same sticks, but the similarity between the two performances ended there.

It was a hockey game last night—a rip-snortin' hockey game, played on steady ice instead of mush, and those of the 9,500 guests who also saw the opener, were singing about the contrast when they left the big hall, though, of course, they would have liked it even better if the Blackhawks had been able to protect a lead grabbed in the closing minutes of the second period.

Hawks Forge Ahead.

Vic Ripley aimed that lead on a brilliant long shot after a lot of previous rough playing that piled up 10 penalties in the first period.

The Hawks skated furiously for this advantage, going through a stick fight which halted the play and saw five more penalties in the first five minutes of the second period. That one point looked big up until the start of the third period. Perhaps the Blackhawks were feeling a little too effervescent about their lead and the slick way their skates were going over the new brand of ice laid down by the Stadium ice man.

At any rate something terrible happened quicker than you can think about it in that third period. Yes, sir, Hal Cotton skated right down to the cage and scored the tying goal in just 20 seconds of that third period.

Hawks Score—Almost.

The Hawks made a valiant effort to retrieve their dissipated laurels during the remainder of the period and during the 10 minutes' overtime, and on several occasions pretty near accomplished their laudable purpose. But, as the score has told you, they fell short of their mission and must wait till next Sunday night against the Montreal Maroons for their next chance to show the home folks something more negotiable than a dead lock.

More hockey, by a couple of million per cent, was played in the last ten minutes of the first period than in the entire four periods of Sunday night's overtime season opener. Goalie Gardiner never had a busier ten minutes in his whole life than he had during the period, especially when the Leafs sent five men down the ice during the penalty box tenancy of Adams and Lowrey.

Mr. Gardiner Stars.

One second Chuck was sitting on the puck, the next he'd have it in his big glove. Then again he had to take a belly-buster to conceal the disk under his belt buckle. And in addition to these techniques, Chuck made several more dignified, but none the less skillful saves. He made 13 stops and 15 of them were startling affairs.

The largest factor in favor of the Blackhawks was when Gottselig, Cook and Couture took the puck down the ice and Couture rammed it home, but to the accompaniment of Referee Smeaton's bugle. The goal didn't count, under the new rule that the goalie's vision was obstructed by a player. This caused much noise, to no avail whatsoever.

Before the second period was five minutes old five more penalties had been assessed and there had been an incipient fight in which Jackson and Thompson were the aggressors, but in which 10 players and two officials joined, either as combatants or peace makers.

Though there was no swoop in the last 15 minutes, the roughness apparently became legal and there were no further penalties during the 4th period.

The customers were about reconciled to another scoreless period when all

ST. PHILIP WINS, 19 TO 0; ENTERS PREP TITLE GAME

Lyons Gets 2 Touchdowns Against St. Michael.

St. Philip High school officially became the north section's representative in the finals for the Chicago Catholic High School league football championship yesterday, when it scored a 19 to 0 victory over St. Michael in its last sectional game at Logan Square park.

St. Philip, by the victory, now can begin preparations to face Mount Carmel, south division titleholder, for the league title. The game will be played at Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon.

The north section champions opened the scoring early in the second quarter and at the end of the first half, took a 12 to 0 lead. Lyons scored both touchdowns, parading down the field from the 50-yard line for the first score and going off tackle for seven yards for the second.

Harrison Tech's football team, with Capt. Pilney, George McPherson, Henry Fojman, and Frank Leonetti back in practice, participated in a drill which lasted long after dark last night. Evidently, Coach Bob Dougherty remembers what Schurz did to Lindblom in the City league final game in 1929.

There is one player on the Thornton High school squad whom Oak Park tacklers will seek to stop when the Villagers meet the South Suburbia league champions in a charity game at Oak Park field Saturday. He is Squibb Klein, Thornton half back, who has been nicknamed the "human gnu" by his mates. Klein has scored all of Thornton's 61 points for the season.

The Washington High school football team of Cedar Rapids, Ia., will arrive in Maywood tomorrow night, where on Saturday afternoon it will meet Proviso of the Suburban league. The squad will be quartered at the Maywood hotel.

WOMEN FANCIERS TO JUDGE AT DOG SHOW SATURDAY

Two prominent women dog fanciers will be among the judges in the Western Specialty Clubs association annual dog show at the 113st regiment armory which opens Saturday. They are Mrs. C. M. Lunt, Rahway, N. J., and Mrs. A. R. Moffit of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Mrs. Lunt will select the winners in the collie class, while Mrs. Moffit will look over the cocker spaniels. Other judges include Frank J. Slada, Chicago; Irving Bell, Red Granite, Wis.; Otto Gross, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Alex H. Stewart, Chicago.

AUGUSTANA AND LAKE FOREST TO PLAY SATURDAY

Augustana college will come to Lake Forest Saturday to play Lake Forest college with one of the best records in the Little Nineteen conference to date. It has beaten the best teams in the conference, including Knox, North Central, Illinois college, and Carthage, with one loss, a 7 to 6 decision to Monmouth. Augustana's line averages 193 pounds, with a good sized back field.

Cards Expect Big Crowd at Spartan Game

The Chicago Cardinals have attracted the attention of the fans through their defeat of Green Bay and probably will play before the largest crowd of their 1931 season when they meet the Portsmouth Spartans next Sunday at Wrigley field. Thousands of requests for ladies' day tickets reached Cardinal headquarters, but only the first 15,000 could be honored.

Memories of a 14 to 3 defeat will spur the Cards when they face the Spartans. In their first meeting at Portsmouth Sept. 22, the Cardinals left the field at half time leading, 3 to 0, thanks to Nevers' 23 yard placement. In the second half Portsmouth scored two touchdowns.

The Cardinals must halt another great passing attack if they are to down the Spartans. Statistics reveal that Portsmouth is leading the league in accuracy of passing. The best record of the season was achieved by the Spartans during the Brooklyn-Portsmouth game Sept. 13, when nine of fourteen attempted passes were completed. The second best record also was made by the Spartans in the Card battle Sept. 22, when they completed seven of twelve attempts.

Both Presnell and Alford of Portsmouth are skilled passers. Rose, Holmer, and Nevers have been passing with great success this year, so both clubs probably will take to the air for much of their yardage.

of a sudden Ripley got hold of a free puck near his left boards, 40 feet from the cage. He let it go, and so great was the elevation the object flashed past Goalie Chabot's shins right into the net, making the Hawks the leaders, 1 to 0, and very happy therefore.

Twenty seconds after the face-off in the third period, Cotton rushed the puck down for a shot. The disk hit Gardiner's boots and dropped dead. Cotton followed up fast and poked the rubber home before Chuck could drop on the blasted thing.

Graham, Miller, and Gottselig had a nice rally under way when the period was eight minutes old, but the threat ended when Cotton stepped in and took a major penalty by tripping Gottselig just as he was about to whang one at the cage from close range.

At the start of the overtime period Ripley and Lowrey made an onslaught on the visitors' cage and on one pass from Ripley it appeared Thompson had a marker on his stick, but the short shot was wide and the foray ended when the Leafs took the puck out of danger.

Couture made a pass to Miller at the end of six minutes that looked like a producer, but Chabot made a Herculean save.

GOLF PROS PLAN TOURNEY TO FIX WORLD CHAMPION

Boston, Mass., Nov. 18.—(AP)—A move to broaden the Ryder cup golf matches between the United States and England into a world-wide competition similar to the Davis cup tennis play was made today during the closing session of the Professional Golfers' association convention.

The proposal, made by George Sargent, former open champion from Columbus, O., aroused such interest among the golfing delegates that they appointed a committee to study the subject.

No Football Player, of Course.

It goes without saying that he was not a football player, however, as such a loan to a football man would have professionalized the recipient and the Harvard Crimson might have pointed the finger of scorn at West Point.

The problem of poverty and unemployment is acute enough to many college students at all times with their maintenance in school dependent upon $3 jobs stoking fire boxes, washing dishes and pressing pants in their leisure hours. A rich manufacturer is supposed to have spent $21,000 on an automobile for his son to tool around in while at college a few years ago, but students who exist on $3 a week are more common even in boom times.

Still, the poor are always sympathetic with the other poor because they know just how it is, and it rarely arouses the undergraduates to something like the enthusiasm which Mr. Young desires to remind them that less than eight months hence about 250,000 of them will be graduated from school into the labor market.

How About Speakeasies?

One source of revenue for the unemployed has not yet been tapped, namely, the speakeasies which are rife in without. The police, of course, have accurate knowledge of the locations and daily receipts of the speakeasies, and the customers might propose an economic boycott on all such resorts which do not display an official placard reading, "This joint has shared."

I realize that all speakeasy proprietors have hearts of gold and carry on great philanthropies in secret, but this is a time when they need not blush to make their benefactions known. Otherwise they are subject to doubt and suspicion like those other self-abnegating characters, the familiar type who wear a harsh and surly manner toward all beneath them only to mask their extreme tenderness of heart.

THREE FOOTBALL FAVORITES FACE ROCKY SATURDAY

Harvard, Stanford, Michigan on the Spot.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The old game of pick the winner will test the best minds in this week's outstanding intercollegiate football games. Except for a couple of early season upsets and the general uprising last Saturday, this year's schedule has run according to form in a high percentage of games. This week, however, offers a splendid field for surprise results.

Consider these three game, one in the Western conference, one in the east, and one in the west: Harvard vs. Yale, Stanford vs. California; Michigan vs. Minnesota.

No Upset Possible Here.

Perhaps Notre Dame and South California should be included in this list, but although Notre Dame is undefeated [but tied by Northwestern] and has an advantage in playing on its home gridiron, it is meeting a team which holds its conference championship and is regarded as as great as any which ever represented Southern California. No matter which team wins, the result scarcely can be considered an upset.

This statement does not hold true of three games enumerated above. The average "picker" would choose undefeated Harvard to win from Yale; Michigan to whip Minnesota, and Stanford to beat California. Let's consider records of Harvard and Yale. Previous games of each follow:

Harvard, 39; New Hampshire, 6.
Harvard, 14; Army, 13.
Harvard, 35; Texas, 7.
Harvard, 19; Virginia, 0.
Harvard, 7; Dartmouth, 6.
Harvard, 7; Holy Cross, 0.

Yale, 19; Maine, 0.
Yale, 27; Georgia, 26.
Yale, 27; Chicago, 0.
Yale, 6; Army, 6.
Yale, 33; Dartmouth, 32.
Yale, 53; St. John's, 0.

Last year Harvard won from Yale 13 to 0. It is likely Harvard is the favorite this year because Yale has been beaten by Georgia, badly and its two greatest victories numerically were over Chicago and St. John's. Judge the respective showings against Dartmouth and Army, and include the fact that Yale did not play last Saturday, and a victory for Yale is conceivable.

Minnesota, Michigan Records.

Now look at the records of Minnesota and Michigan:

Minnesota, 13; North Dakota State, 7.
Minnesota, 20; Ripon, 0.
Minnesota, 20; Oklahoma Aggies, 0.
Minnesota, 0; Stanford, 13.
Minnesota, 34; Iowa, 0.
Minnesota, 14; Wisconsin, 0.
Minnesota, 14; Northwestern, 32.
Minnesota, 47; Cornell [Ia.], 7.

Michigan, 27; Mount Pleasant Teachers, 0.
Michigan, 39; Ypsilanti Teachers, 0.
Michigan, 13; Chicago, 7.
Michigan, 7; Ohio State, 20.
Michigan, 26; Illinois, 0.
Michigan, 21; Princeton, 0.
Michigan, 25; Indiana, 0.
Michigan, 0; Michigan State, 0.

Michigan defeated Minnesota last year, 7 to 0. The general belief probably will be that Michigan will win from Minnesota again. But those who saw the Gophers score 14 points on Northwestern before the Wildcats had a point may pick them to upset their rival in the game Saturday at Ann Arbor.

Now for that California-Stanford game on the Pacific coast. Here are the records:

Stanford, 46; West Coast Army, 0.
Stanford, 0; Olympic Club, 0.
Stanford, 6; Santa Clara, 0.
Stanford, 13; Minnesota, 0.
Stanford, 25; Oregon State, 7.
Stanford, 0; Washington, 0.
Stanford, 13; California [Los Angeles], 7.
Stanford, 0; Southern California, 13.
Stanford, 26; Nevada, 0.

California, 6; Santa Clara, 6.
California, 0; St. Mary's, 14.
California, 6; Olympic Club, 0.
California, 13; Washington State, 7.
California, 0; Southern California, 6.
California, 25; Nevada, 6.
California, 13; Washington, 0.
California, 18; Idaho, 0.

Again, the popular impression probably is that Stanford will defeat California. Stanford won last year, 7 to 0. Judged by the Santa Clara games, Stanford is better than California. By comparison against the Olympic club, California is superior. Now write your ticket.

Northwestern Squad Off Tonight for Iowa Game

The usual Wednesday scrimmage with the freshmen found the Northwestern football regulars recovered from the effects of the Indiana tussle and anxious to prove that there is still a lot of football in their systems. Yesterday's scrimmage was the first workout for most of the first stringers since last Saturday and they went about their tasks with renewed vigor.

Following today's practice the team will entrain for Davenport, Ia., where it will remain tomorrow. The trip to Iowa city will be made Saturday morning. A brief workout will be held on the high school field at Davenport tomorrow.

Coach Dick Hanley remains noncommittal about a starting lineup for Saturday. Indications are that a number of regulars will get a chance to rest their bumps and bruises, at least for a portion of the game. The layoff is not because Iowa is regarded lightly in the Wildcat camp, but the players are in need of rest. The Purdue game looming up the following week is another reason why the Wildcats hope to conserve their strength.

Interest in the Northwestern-Purdue charity game continues to mount, judging from the demand for tickets at the Northwestern ticket office. The tickets will be placed on sale today both in Evanston and Chicago. Applications for 5,000 tickets have been received. Most of yesterday's orders were for blocks of 40 and 50 tickets, indicating that many business organizations are purchasing tickets for their personnel.

HAWKS STOP N. U. PLAYS

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—With Capt. Oliver Sansen, full back, still out of the lineup with a twisted knee, University of Iowa regulars held long scrimmage today. Ingwersen used Schmidt at full back on the varsity, but hopes to start Sansen against Northwestern Saturday.

Sansen's absence was noticeable in the Iowa back field, the regulars gaining little ground around freshmen ends because interference was poor. Laws, who was at quarter back, made the best offensive showing.

Ingwersen then put the varsity on defense against Wildcat plays. The running attack was halted with little difficulty, but the Northwestern passes picked up considerable ground. Jerry Foster, regular tackle, who is afflicted with a severe cold, was replaced by Rogers. Laws, Hickman, Kris, and Schmidt comprised the back field.

ILLINI LEAVE TONIGHT

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Illinois' football squad will leave tomorrow night for Columbus, O., where the Illini hope to gain their first victory Saturday by upsetting the Buckeyes.

According to the tentative list drawn up this afternoon, Coach Zuppke will take 33 men on the trip. Those named were:

ENDS—Frink, Schustek, Sailer, Baumann, and Engstrom.
BACKS—Berry, Evans, Kolfenbach, Singer, Cook, Hooley, Aring, Caruso, Snavely, Schalk, Munch, and Root.

Working against the freshmen today, Zuppke started an eleven which consisted of O'Keefe, center; Nuspickel and Bodman, guards; O'Neill and Marriner, tackles; Frink and Bailey, ends; Singer, quarter back; Evans and Cook, halves, and Kolfenbach, full back.

PURDUE FANS STEAM UP

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—West Lafayette and Lafayette were liberally doused with whitewash signs calling on the Boilermakers to "Bring back that bucket" and "Beat Indiana" tonight as student interest in Saturday's game reached a new high.

Purdue-Indiana games always bring out typical college "spirit," but this season finds the Boilermaker student body even more on edge than usual. The general feeling exists that it will take an improved game on the part of the Boilermakers if they can hope to beat their traditional rivals and regain the bucket that journeyed to Bloomington last fall.

Several informal pep sessions have already broken loose, while a mammoth pep meeting is scheduled Friday night. Virtually the entire student body is expected to desert the campus Saturday morning to make the trip to Bloomington.

Coach Noble Kizer sent the squad through its last hard drill of the week. During scrimmage Jim Purvis and Alex Yunevich won the offensive honors, while Capt. Miller made some spectacular tackles on defense.

INDIANA COVERS UP

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Now that the Old Oaken Bucket has been found, Indiana intends to keep it. But to do this it must defeat Purdue here Saturday.

With this end in view, Coach Hayes closed the gates to all visitors again today and held secret practice as the Indiana squad worked on a defense for the Boilermakers' attack.

The linemen spent most of the drill driving into a charging machine. Outdoor practice was concluded with two varsity elevens scrimmaging against freshmen teams using Purdue plays and formations. As darkness descended, the squad adjourned to the field house where practice was continued under lights.

Coach Hayes devoted additional time to the development of a passing attack. Opasik and Lyons may be able to play Saturday, but there is an equal chance they won't. In the event injuries keep them on the bench, the Hoosiers' passing will be done by Edwards, Baer, and Dauer, with Dickey and Marwich receiving.

HASKELL ARRIVES HERE TODAY FOR CHARITY BATTLE

The Haskell Indian football team, under the leadership of Coach W. H. [Lone Star] Dietz, will arrive in Chicago at 6:30 o'clock this morning at the Dearborn street station for its charity game at Soldiers' field Saturday afternoon, with Oglethorpe university of Atlanta, Ga.

The Indian squad will go direct to the Allerton club, their headquarters during their stay in Chicago. This afternoon the Indians will go to Dyche stadium for a workout with the Northwestern squad. Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern formerly was coach of the Haskell eleven.

Oglethorpe Arrives Tomorrow.

Oglethorpe will not reach Chicago until 5:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The Georgia boys also will be quartered at the Allerton club. Tomorrow afternoon the Georgians will hold a practice session at Soldiers' field.

Proceeds of the game are to be turned over to the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

There will be plenty of color in connection with the game. Through the coöperation of William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, students in elementary and high schools will attend for the admission price of 25 cents. Eighteen consuls representing foreign countries in Chicago will be present. Presentation of flags from these countries will be made prior to the game and between halves. Another feature will be an Indian powwow in which the alumni of Haskell university will take part.

On its record, the Indian eleven will rule favorite, but the Redskins will be opposed by a fighting, determined team from the south.

In the Georgian lineup will be four players who learned their football in the Chicago district. John Patrich and John Putno formerly played with Washington high at East Chicago and Ray Walker received his first football bumps at Roosevelt high, also of East Chicago. The fourth is Daniel Kenzie, a former star at De La Salle institute here.

Patrich Now a Guard.

Patrich played a tackle position during the seasons of 1928 and 1929 and was shifted to guard this season.

Putno was a full back during his high school career, and he now stars in that position for Oglethorpe. Walker has won a name for himself down below the Mason and Dixon line. Kenzie is one of the best defensive players in the south.

The one big threat of the Indian team looms up in Capt. Louis [Little Rabbit] Weller, full blooded Caddo Indian from Anadarko, Okla. He is 23 years old and a half back of national reputation.

On May 1, 1880, two English tourists hired the rowboat, Horace W. Turner, and attempted to row from the Round house to the breakwater at Chicago. The water became too rough for the boat, which filled and capsized at 9 o'clock in the evening, about 400 yards from the Life Saving station. The station watch heard the cries for help and the surf boat was immediately launched and rescued the rowers found clinging to the boat, exhausted. They were taken to the station, furnished with dry clothing and restoratives and soon recovered sufficiently to go on their way. L. C.

Prep Charity Game.

There is one high school charity game Saturday which rivals in tradition and partisanship the best affairs of the collegiate brand. That is the annual contest at Dyche stadium between Evanston and New Trier High schools. Whatever their standing in the Suburban league, these two schools always play a stubborn contest against each other. This year second place is at stake.

After deduction of what would be normal receipts, the remainder goes to the charity fund of the Evanston Junior league, an earnest body of young society women who support a dental clinic and personally supervise other charities of a practical nature.

The Wake frequently has attended games in this series, always gratified by the skill and speed of the young fellows who are potential college stars.

The American Boys' Commonwealth Wolverines will travel to Mooseheart Saturday to play the Mooseheart High school Midget team. The Moose are recognized national midget champions. They recently defeated Akron, O., Midgets, 12 to 0.

DE PAUL ELEVEN LEAVES FOR TWO FAR WEST GAMES

De Paul university football team embarked last night for its final two games of the season, with University of Arizona at Tucson Saturday and University of San Francisco Nov. 28 at San Francisco.

Twenty-eight players made the trip. Since the Blue Demons will have little opportunity for practice en route, they were sent through a stiff workout yesterday.

No serious injuries were reported as a result of the 34 to 20 victory over South Dakota State. Johnny O'Brien, sophomore tackle, who returned to action after an injury in the Detroit opener, was assisted from the field with a wrenched knee.

Hal Cherne, the other first string tackle, who was unable to play against the Dakotans, is also expected to be in shape for the coast struggle.

Reveal Details of Hoax at Havre de Grace.

Bowie, Md., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—The Maryland racing commission, after a thorough investigation covering several states, today barred seven owners and trainers and three thoroughbreds from racing under their jurisdiction. The action was the outcome of the much publicized Shem ringer case at Havre de Grace on Oct. 3.

In a 2 year old race for maidens at 5 furlongs, Aknahton, a 3 year old chestnut colt by Stimulus-Scarab, was substituted for Shem, a 2 year old chestnut gelding by Noah-Dick's Daughter. Aknahton scored easily and paid $13 in the mutuels.

Shipped Horses Away.

The stewards questioned William Marino in whose name Shem was entered for an explanation of the horse's sudden form reversal. When the governing body ordered the 2 year old produced for identification Marino explained that Shem, Aknahton and Ep had been shipped away from the track.

Among those listed as barred was Nate Raymond, who was identified as Nigger Nate Raymond, who figured prominently in the Arnold Rothstein case in New York.

The commission listed the barred men and horses as follows:

"A. Ray, in whose name the gelding Shem was consigned to Havre de Grace, and who is Nate Raymond, New York City, the alleged owner of Bill Duffy's restaurant.

"Leo Kammerman, alias Leo Canerman, New York City, who ordered the shipment of Shem from Dr. Tubb's farm at Havre de Grace to A Ray, Pennsylvania yards, Jersey City, N. J., and who receipted for the horse upon arrival there as follows: 'A. Ray, Anderson Bros., Leo Canerman.'

Christie Bought Horses.

"Patrick Christie, alias Peter Westley, alias Charles Hall, who arranged for the purchase and shipping of the horses and made arrangements for leasing them at Dr. Tubb's farm.

"William Marino, New York City, in whose name the supposed Shem ran at Havre de Grace on Oct. 3.

"J. Lebot, in whose name Aknahton ran on Sept. 17 in New York and who actually is Julius De Lott, alias J. De Blott."

Manders and Munn Worry Michigan Line

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—A long dummy scrimmage in the fieldhouse tonight showed that Coach Kipke is worried about his defense for the Minnesota running attack. Michigan's line will be given the hardest test of the season Saturday against the plunges of Jack Manders and Munn.

The line performed well against the Minnesota attack as demonstrated by the freshmen, although the Gopher lateral pass plays caused some difficulty.

Kipke later gave out a few new plays which were run in the moonlight with a ghost ball. Midsemester examinations prohibited afternoon practice. Passing has been stressed all week in the Wolverine camp.

GOPHER ENDS STAR

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 18.—[Special.]—Unwilling to take a chance with any more injuries to his regulars, Coach Fritz Crisler cut the Minnesota workout for the Michigan game to dummy scrimmage this afternoon, with the varsity getting a taste of the Wolverine passing attack.

Foster and Robinson, regular ends, did an exceptional job of knocking down passes tossed by the reserves.

With MacDougall out for the season, My Ubi is being groomed to move into the quarter back position in case anything happens to Pete Somers. Ubi spent much time at the new post tonight. Somers was on the sidelines and Swartz came up from the second team.

ZBYSZKO WANTS TO USE CARD GRID TEAM FOR DRILLS

Karol Zbyszko, the youthful wrestler, who meets Gus Sonnenberg, former world's heavyweight champion, in the feature match at the Chicago Stadium next Tuesday, is going to call on Ernie Nevers in particular and the Chicago Cardinal pro football team in general to aid him in devising a means of thwarting Gus' favorite hold, the flying tackle.

Karol has asked that arrangements be made for him to work out one day with the Cards, and that Nevers be sounded out to see if he will give Karol a pointer or two in dodging tackles.

"I've been pointing for Sonnenberg," writes Zbyszko, "And I believe I have solved his flying tackle. For the last several weeks I've been going out to a football field and learning the 'stiff arm.' Gridiron ball carriers elude tacklers with it, and I am positive it will stop Sonnenberg's tactics.

"I'd like in particular for a chance to meet Nevers and his fellow team members. I know he can show me something about using the stiff arm and other tricks that football players must have to evade a tackler."

Four other matches will support the Stadium's feature, with such performers as Karl Pojello, Nick Lutze, Count Zarynoff, Jack Sherry, Fred Meyers, Buck Weaver, John Maloney, and Joe Malowcsa appearing in the minor affairs.

BERWYN TO PLAY MUGLER.

The Berwyn Parrot football team will meet the Mugler A. C. unbeaten in 45 consecutive games over the last four years in a Midwest Football league game Sunday at Berwyn stadium, 59th street and Ridgeland avenue.

Henry, Missouri Football Coach, Enters Hospital

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Gwinn Henry, Missouri football coach, will be unable to resume his duties this season. Decision was made today to place Henry in a cast in an attempt to expedite recovery from an attack of sciatica. He will be in the hospital several weeks.

The Tiger coach entered the hospital Nov. 8, when he returned from Des Moines where, too ill to remain on the sidelines, he directed the Tigers first victory of the season, over Drake, from the press box. The following day he underwent a minor operation for infected sinuses, which physicians believed to be the cause of his illness.

Assistant coaches Jack Crangle and Harry Lansing will direct the Tigers' play against Kansas Saturday and at Kansas City and St. Louis in charity games against Temple university of Philadelphia, and the winner of the St. Louis-Washington Thanksgiving game, respectively.

AIRPLANE ATTACK ON WATER FOWL IRKS OFFICIALS

Report Pilots' Antics Over Federal Reserve.

BY BOB BECKER.

Airplane pilots who harass flocks of wild ducks are becoming increasingly unpopular along the Illinois river where, at this time of the year, big flocks of water fowl are resting on lakes and bayous.

Walter Peacock, State street merchant and well known sportsman, head of the Sportsmen's Conservation and Protective association, has just reported one pilot to the department of commerce because he dove at ducks in a game sanctuary under federal injunction. This is the second disturbance that has come to our attention involving an airplane and water fowl. Last year we heard of several deliberate dives at flocks of geese on a prairie close to Chicago.

Pilot Flys Over River.

"The procedure of this pilot was to dive close to the surface of the water where thousands of ducks were gathered and to glide along for some distance only about 30 feet above the water, then circle and repeat. This occurred on the morning of Nov. 12 over the game sanctuary, under federal injunction, belonging to Crane lake game preserve near Bath, Ill.

The pilot also flew over Stewart lake, Horn lake, and Sanganois lake, where Frederick C. Lincoln of the United States biological survey was working on a duck census. Mr. Lincoln was able to read the number on the wing of the plane.

Peacock adds that he has asked the department of commerce to take action against this and other planes which deliberately disturb waterfowl, especially when they are on waters set aside as game refuges under federal sanction.

Birds Are Plentiful.

Lincoln's presence in the Illinois river country is evidence of the fact that the biological survey is making a thorough check of the waterfowl situation this fall. Although the survey has had nothing to report so far, Peacock says that his "observation this year, which has extended from the Canadian border to the central part of Illinois, is that we have an abundance of waterfowl."

What we have seen of birds along the Illinois river and reports from various parts of the country are as favorable. Apparently there has been an excellent flight of pintails, better than anticipated. And we have more mallards than last year. But there seems to be a shortage in widgeon, gadwalls and shovelers.

ALLEN, WHITE LEAD IN POCKET BILLIARD PLAY

Bennie Allen increased his lead over Walter Franklin to 4 blocks to 1 and 496 points to 384, and Johnny Layton trailed Major White, 2 blocks to 3 and in points 390 to 418, at the end of five blocks of play in the special pocket billiard matches at Bensinger's Randolph street billiard room.

Allen defeated Franklin in the fifth block yesterday, 100 to 83, in 8 innings, having an unfinished run of 46 to Franklin's high run of 47. White defeated Layton in the fifth block, 100 to 71, in 13 innings, with a high run of 28 to Layton's 25.

Layton and Allen will end their exhibition work tomorrow night when the tenth and final blocks will be played.

Ogden Park Harriers Enter National Meet

The Ogden park cross country team will compete in the National A. A. U. championship meet at Ypsilanti, Mich., on Nov. 28. The Ogden park squad recently captured the Central A. A. U. track and field title.

Light Heavyweight Fight Meet Entries Close Dec. 1

Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, which has ordered an elimination tourney among light heavyweights, issued a warning to all prospective entrants yesterday that the lists will close at his office Dec. 1. The opening round of matches will be staged in the Chicago Stadium on Dec. 11.

The N. B. A. recently dethroned Maxie Rosenbloom and this tourney will help determine a new champion. Rosenbloom has agreed to meet the final winner, thus bringing about a match that will settle the undisputed title.

Pete Wistort, Chicago heavyweight, yesterday signed to meet Art Lasky of Minneapolis in a ten round bout at Minneapolis next Tuesday night. Wilbur Chevalier, Milwaukee featherweight, will fight Paul Wangley, Minneapolis, in 10 rounds on the same card.

Jackie Fields, former world welterweight champion, will be laid up two months with a broken left hand received in his bout with Jimmy Delmont in Pittsburgh last Monday night, physicians told him here yesterday. Fields will leave tonight for Los Angeles to remain until ready for the ring again.

Costas Vassis, middleweight champion of Greece, will be making his first start in America when he tackles Clyde Hull at White City on Monday night. The bout will be ten rounds on the Lee Marriner-Biff Bennett fight card which Mique Malloy has arranged.

George Holden of Geneva, runnerup to Scotty Sylvano in last year's Golden Gloves tournament, will meet Pete Verri of Chicago in the feature bout tonight at Community hall, St. Charles. Buddy Moore and James Fontana, both of Chicago, will battle in the semi-windup.

KWARIANI AND DUSEK MEET AT FRONTON NOV. 27

Rudy Dusek and Kola Kwariani will meet the night of Nov. 27 at the Rainbo fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

Kola incurred the wrath of Promoter Krone a few days ago when he failed to go through with his scheduled match against Dusek. He had an injured ear but forgot to advise of this detail. However, they've made up and Kwariani has promised to come here and stop the Omaha Bohemian's winning streak.

Heartsick

"I WONDER if I'm losing my husband's love? A few months ago I wouldn't have dreamed that he'd become careless about shaving. Surely he'd resent it if I neglected my appearance. Is it possible he doesn't realize how repulsive a growth of stubble can be? And if his beard is distasteful to me, I can just imagine what the people around the office think. Here he is going off to work, and he hasn't shaved since last night. He continually finds some excuse for neglect. He tells me he hasn't the time, or his face is too tender and he can't buy good razor blades. Well, maybe he's right. But even if it is a nuisance, I should think he'd care enough for me to shave more carefully and more often."

Today there's no excuse for stubble. A while ago close and frequent shaving may have been decidedly unpleasant—particularly so for men with tender skin. Now Gillette is offering a new and decidedly better blade that skims through beard without a trace of harshness or irritation. It is remarkably keen—especially made for sensitive faces. Learn how comfortable shaving can be. Buy a package of Gillette blades on our positive money-back guarantee. Try a blade or two. Prove to your own satisfaction that the new Gillette is a far finer and smoother-shaving blade, or return the package to your dealer and he'll refund the purchase price.

NORTH WESTERN OMITS DIVIDEND AFTER 54 YEARS

Both Preferred and Common Passed.

BY O. A. MATHER.

An unbroken dividend record of more than half a century was terminated yesterday when the directors of the Chicago and North Western railroad omitted dividends on both the preferred and common stocks.

For since 1877 has the road failed to pay at least 7 per cent on its preferred stock, while in several years it has paid more. And during those same times the common stock also received dividends, although at rates varying from 4 to 7 per cent.

The action of the North Western directors came simultaneously with a declaration by the Southern Pacific railroad that its common stock dividend, which was cut from 6 to 4 per cent, for directors declared a quarterly payment of $1 a share. The $6 rate had been in effect since 1908, when it was increased from the 5½ per cent paid in 1907.

The North Western common stock is placed on a $4 annual basis last week, although the road paid a quarterly return of only 25 cents last December, which made $4 paid during 1930. But the final payment last year was not classed as a "regular" dividend. With the payment of two quarterly dividends on both common and preferred stocks this year, the basis changed from quarterly to semiannual payments. Thus, in reality no dividends have been paid since the middle of this year.

Voting of Preferred Startling.

The suspension of dividends on the preferred is startling in view of the fact that there is only $22,295,120 of the preferred shares outstanding, as against $30,644,735 of the common. The preferred issue thus is but one fourth as large compared with the common, and the hitherto prevailing rate of 7 per cent quarterly would mean a payment on the preferred (quarterly) of only $668,853, or $787,830 semi-annual basis.

The preferred stock of the North Western in the old days, paying for years 7 per cent (1902 to 1919) and never off more than 7 per cent (1921), was regarded as a gilt-edged life stock, held for investment and considered on a par with the best bonds. The world's best investors held it. The rate was cut in high estate to a "passed dividend" condition is an illustration of the plight into which the railroads have fallen. Even in 1920, after the war and a siege of federal management, the payment was 6½ per cent, and this was adjusted by a 10½ per cent payment in 1924.

Earnings on Toboggan.

Omission of the North Western dividends and the reduction of the Southern Pacific common dividend followed deep declines in earnings of both roads. Net earnings of the North Western fell from the equivalent of $8.23 a share in 1929 to $4.28 in 1930, while this year they have incurred a further seven dollars. Similarly net earnings of Southern Pacific dropped from $12.74 per common share in 1929 to $8.24 a share in 1930, while it is estimated only about $5 a share will be earned this year.

STEEL HOLDS STEADY

In contrast to gloomy news from the railroads, reports from the steel industry were reassuring. While the steel mills did not carry further the moderate increase in operations shown for the last three weeks, still they held the gains and maintained production at 31 per cent of capacity. The Iron Age comments that this record was made without much support from building construction and the railroads, and with buying by the automobile industry less than had been expected.

"If the present average rate is merely maintained to the end of the month, the November output of steel ingots, on a daily basis, will show a gain of fully 10 per cent over October, breaking the regularly downward movement since last March," the publication continues. "Whether December, traditionally a month of restricted steel operations, will continue or even maintain this month's upward trend is still uncertain. Much depends on the volume of buying by the automobile industry, particularly by the Ford Motor company, whose long awaited orders for production of new models are expected before the end of this month."

Look to First '32 Quarter.

It is said the steel industry is beginning to appraise first quarter prospects somewhat more hopefully, regardless of developments during the remainder of this year. The postponement of a number of fairly definite projects until January, the probability of some rail buying by that time, seasonal expansion in tin plate requirements and the usual increase in needs of the motor car industry in the first months of every year are counted upon to bring at least a moderate upward trend early in 1932.

General Selling in Grain Markets Depresses Prices

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

General selling was under way in the grain markets yesterday with prices dropping sharply in the face of what the trade usually regarded as bullish news. Explanation for the selling movement, which developed in all grains and carried wheat off as much as 2⅝c and corn 1⅞c from Monday's finish, was not regarded as satisfactory by many traders.

A break of 2⅝@2¾c per bu in the Liverpool wheat market was responsible for a wave of selling early, and later a statement crediting Walter L. Beam, treasurer of the Stabilization corporation, with saying that the government holdings on Sept. 1 aggregated 194,000,000 bu was effective in undermining the confidence of the bulls. The manner in which the latter news was given to the trade, rather than the figures themselves, was said to have been responsible for the bearish construction placed upon it, although they were in excess of trade expectations.

Trade Is Surprised.

Officials of the Stabilization corporation refused to comment on the figures which were said to have been given out by Mr. Beam in an interview, and the trade was rather surprised in view of the secrecy which has surrounded the government operations. The original story was published in New York, but gave no data other than the bare figures, which were practically identical with those used by Arthur Sears Henning, the Washington correspondent of THE TRIBUNE, in a recent article on the farm board.

Buying against bids was effective in checking the decline in wheat futures, and a rally of around ½c from the inside figures came at the last, but the close was at net losses of 1⅞@2¼c, with December at 59½@59½c; March, 62½c; May, 63⅞@64c, and July, 64@64¼c. Winnipeg closed 1⅝@1¾c lower, with December quoted at 64½c in Canadian currency. Buenos Aires weakened sharply toward the last and finished 1⅝@2c lower, December being 49⅝c.

Foreign News Mixed.

Traders on either side of the wheat market had their choice of European news. The break in Liverpool was reported by Broomhall as having been due to selling on his estimate that the European wheat crop, exclusive of Russia, was 38,000,000 bu in excess of last year. However, the official returns to the United States department of agriculture of late have shown the European crop 25,000,000 bu or more in excess of last year. Thus, the explanation of the selling in Liverpool was not regarded as sufficient, especially as the Broomhall figures were identical with those of the department of agriculture after using the estimate on the Danubian crops made by Agricultural Commissioner Michael at Belgrade.

According to some of the closest observers of conditions the trade is paying too much attention to Broomhall's comments on Europe and not enough to the official and trade reports. J. P. Griffin, in commenting on this factor, which has been in evidence for a number of years, called attention to the fact that there is a pronounced tendency on the part of European interests to overemphasize the supply and belittle the demand. A Copenhagen cable to a St. Louis man, as wired to J. E. Bennett & Co., confirmed recent estimates of 30,000,000 to 50,000,000 bu wheat being unmillable in France and Germany due to heavy rains at and following harvest.

Expect Big Foreign Demand.

The entire surplus of the 1931 wheat crop in exporting countries will be insufficient to meet import requirements, and accumulated stocks will have to be drawn on before July 31, 1932, according to a report issued by the Canadian bureau of statistics. An Argentina estimate suggesting an exportable surplus of 96,000,000 bu with the possibility that the actual amount might vary 16,000,000 bu either way, depending on weather and frost damage, was received during the day. The official Argentina report claimed conditions in that country were generally favorable except in the Pampas where the crop had been damaged up to 50 per cent in some sections by frost. In Santa Fe lodging was reported.

Minneapolis Buys Cash Corn.

A Chicago handler yesterday sold No. 2 yellow corn to be shipped to Minneapolis yesterday, which the trade regarded as a most unusual situation and fully confirming an abnormally strong cash position. Reports from Lincoln, Neb., to Jackson Bros. quoted No. 2 yellow on track there as 45c, equal to 69c at Chicago, while Sullivan, Ill., sold No. 3 yellow to go to Cedar Rapids, Ia., at ⅞@1⅛c above what could have been secured here. Purchases were said to have been made in southern Missouri for shipment to eastern Iowa.

The reports regarding the cash position tended to temper bearish sentiment in the futures market, but the weakness in wheat caused a decline and the finish was at net losses of 1@1¼c, with December showing the most strength, closing at 44⅝c, while May was 49c and July 50⅝c. Buying against bids chocked the decline. The weakness in the stock market in New York had an effect on all grains during the day. Local shipping sales aggregated 130,000 bu, while purchases to arrive from the country were 57,000 bu.

Stop loss orders were uncovered in oats, and the close was ⅜@⅝c lower, with the December at 26⅝c; May, 28⅝@29c, and July, 28¼c. Rye weakened with wheat and closed 2⅛@2c lower, with December 49⅝c, May 55½c, and July 55⅝c.

TRUST HAS PLAN FOR STATEWIDE MODERNIZATION

Construction Body to Call on Governor.

BY AL CHASE.

Gov. Emmerson is to be asked to foster a state-wide modernization building program, involving many millions of dollars in reconstruction and thereby take up the slack in the present unemployment situation, it was decided yesterday by the directors of the new Rosenthal $50,000,000 Construction Investment trust, which held their initial meeting in the Builders building.

"Our first step forward since the formation of our construction trust," said Oscar W. Rosenthal, president, "was taken this afternoon when we decided to call on the governor to start such a modernization program as already is under way successfully in Indiana.

"We are to ask him to do this in the interest of the unemployed in the state of Illinois inasmuch as the Construction Investment trust believes that by relieving that unemployment in a practical way, which will be translated into purchasing power, the trust should do everything in its power to foster it. It will make funds available in adequate amounts to assist the public in having this work done."

Committee to Be Chosen.

A committee representing the construction industry as a whole will be selected within a few days and will visit Springfield and submit the Construction Investment trust's program to the governor.

Mr. Rosenthal was active in promoting the present vast modernization program now successfully under way in Indiana. "There the dole system is not used," he said. "Instead of raising a huge fund and distributing it they are supplying the needy with work, thus making the receiver the actual giver, for his work releases cash all along the line."

The proposed steps in getting the Illinois modernization program functioning will be for the governor to call a meeting to be attended by representatives from chambers of commerce, labor bodies, industrial organizations, clubs, civic bodies, etc., from all parts of the state.

Start Local Programs.

These representatives will have the program outlined to them and then will be instructed to go back to their home communities and organize a modernization program locally.

"There are 21,000,000 buildings in the United States," said President Rosenthal. "If an average of $200 was spent in modernization, the enormous total of $4,200,000,000 would be spent throughout the nation. This would wipe out unemployment completely and not only put the building industry back on its feet but these millions would be released for other purchases and help the entire financial situation all along the line."

RAIL CHIEFS, UNION HEADS CONFER TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 18.—As a culmination to two years of depression in which time railroad traffic has dropped to its lowest levels in a decade, a national conference of railway presidents and railway union heads will begin tomorrow in the board room of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. The first of its kind, the meeting will devote itself to discussion of employment, wages, operating rules and legislative aspects.

Management and union heads began arriving today in preparation for the meeting, the former group headed by Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, who is chairman of the committee of nine presidents who will confer with the labor leaders. Among officials of the latter group who had arrived were D. B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and S. N. Berry of the Order of Railway Conductors.

While both sides remained silent on the exact nature of the subjects to be discussed at the meeting, it is known that railroad managements seek a 10 per cent reduction in their annual labor cost. This, it was pointed out, might be accomplished in part by the revision of working rules.

Oppose Tax Increase for Commercial Motor Trucks

BY SCRUTATOR.

The National Industrial Traffic league, representing shippers from coast to coast, at its annual meeting in the Palmer house yesterday, voted to oppose any substantial increase in taxes for commercial motor vehicles.

This action was taken in the form of an indorsement of a report presented by the league's highway transportation committee, headed by C. E. Childs, traffic manager for the Omaha chamber of commerce.

A minority opposed to this stand melted away after a speech by R. C. Fulbright of Houston, Tex., chairman of a special committee which has been exchanging views with railroad executives, and the action was unanimous.

The special committee will report today the results of its conferences with railroad executives, but Mr. Fulbright made it known that his group would recommend that any federal legislation on the matter of motor vehicle taxation be opposed.

Federal Intervention.

"Federal intervention in these matters," he said, "should be restricted to the common carrier for hire operating in interstate traffic and to permissive provisions which would enable the states to handle the problem themselves.

"Taxation of commercial vehicles should not exceed a fair rate to cover their proportionate share of the cost of building and maintaining the highways that they use. It should not be undertaken in the spirit of penalizing one type of carrier as against another.

"We have talked with many of the leading railroad executives of the country and they agree that only a fair compensation should be exacted. Quite a number of them are already operating trucks themselves."

In the taxation report, approved by the league, the opinion is expressed that present taxes or motor vehicles are, on the whole, sufficient.

"The argument that improved highways are constructed primarily for use of pleasure vehicles is an obvious fallacy," says the league.

The public, it argues, is entitled to the full benefits of lowered freight transportation costs on improved highways whether the freight be transported in owner-operated vehicles or by commercial carriers.

25 Billion in Roads.

"Excessive taxation of motor freight carriers, whether private or commercial," the report continues, "is a tax upon transportation which must finally be borne by the public. Therefore, it is clearly in the public interest not to discourage or penalize transportation on the highways by excessive tax burdens.

"It is interesting to note that investment in highway transportation plant of twenty-five billion dollars is approximately the same as the book value of the railroads of the United States. The taxes paid by the railroads in the year 1929 totaled $419,170,000, less than half the total paid by motor vehicles."

Further discussion of highway transportation is slated for today when the special group that has been exchanging views with railroad executives makes its report. At yesterday's session R. H. Aishton, president of the American Railway association and chairman of the Association of Railroad Executives, was an interested listener.

A., T. & T. VOTES USUAL DIVIDEND OF $2.25 A SHARE

American Telephone and Telegraph company directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share, payable Jan. 15 to stock of record Dec. 19.

J. I. Case company declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock. Directors of the Pet Milk company voted to resume dividends on the common stock by declaring a payment of 25 cents a share. The common rate was omitted last May, previous to which 37½ cents a share had been paid quarterly.

Stone & Webster, Inc., directors have postponed consideration of the common dividend until the January meeting. It also was decided to change the dividend payment date from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15. During the year Stone & Webster has paid dividends aggregating $3 a share, not including the dividend of $1 paid Jan. 15 last, which was declared in the preceding November and applicable to last year.

Calls Charges of Radio Steal of R. K. O. 'Absurd'

New York, Nov. 18.—(AP)—R. B. Kahane, vice president of Radio-Keith-Orpheum corporation, today characterized as "absurd" charges that a proposed financing plan for the concern was a "steal" of R-K-O by the Radio Corporation of America. He said that if stockholders who are dissatisfied with the plan come forward with a better one R-K-O and RCA, which is underwriting the offering of $11,600,000 in debentures to shareholders, are ready to accept it. He said that unless consent of two-thirds of class A stockholders is obtained at a meeting Dec. 10 receivership looms. Shareholders of R-K-O stand to lose 75 per cent of their present holdings unless they take up their allotted amount of the debentures.

Cities Service Earnings Show Large Shrinkage

Cities Service company reported for the twelve months ended Oct. 31 net to reserve and common stocks of $17,433,354, compared with $42,879,023 for the preceding twelve months. The company reported that net earnings for the month of October exceeded those of September by more than $226,000.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 18.—From the looks of things, down around the New York Stock exchange, the old bear crowd is on the march again. Certainly some of them were at it today. The pounding they gave such trading favorites as New York Central, American Can, Pennsylvania, American Telephone, Anaconda, and the like sent the averages skooting to new lows for the current reaction and kept operations on the selling side throughout the list. The losses ran from 1 to 5 points or more.

New bottoms for the bear market were registered in spots. Wall street heard that a number of bear operators who have been out of the picture for several weeks were becoming increasingly active on the selling side once more. According to this gossip, much of yesterday's selling and that of the day before as well as today's was for bert account, which apparently means that the ban is not working so nicely as it is popularly supposed to be.

News None Too Good.

However, the news was none too reassuring today and some of the offerings no doubt came from holders growing more discouraged with the collapse of the latest bull movement and the continued lack of any worthwhile figures to support the output of prosperity talk from various sources. The collapse of plans for a worldwide agreement to curtail the output of copper most assuredly depressed the mining shares. Dividend news and prospects bore down on others. Weakness in the bond market, the acute drop in wheat, a further decline in silver, and the rather disappointing showing of midweek business statistics all served to contribute indigo to the atmosphere.

A 5 per cent drop in electric energy for the week—the fourth substantial decline in succession in that industry—and a dip in freight carloadings also clicked on the bear side of the market.

Prices began at moderately lower levels and gradually lost ground.

MAY ASK U. S. TO REPEAL EXCESS PROFIT CLAUSE

Say Potential Claim Is Impairing Credit.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

A potential claim of $300,000,000 in excess profits overhanging the railroads under the recapture clause of the transportation act, which is seen as seriously impairing their credit position, was one of the subjects considered yesterday by the National Industrial Traffic league, now holding its annual meeting at the Palmer house. Some three hundred members of the league, composed of traffic experts for chambers of commerce, shipping organizations, and large corporations, are attending the meeting.

The legislative committee, headed by R. C. Fulbright of Houston, Tex., recommends that congress repeal the recapture clause and that it refund an amount approximating $30,000,000 already collected from some of the smaller roads. Mr. Fulbright stated that it is likely the league and some of the roads will go before congress this winter with a request for a repeal of the clause.

Cites Shippers' Interest.

Mr. Fulbright pointed out that were a demand to be made on the roads now, many of them would be ruined. The $300,000,000 comprising the potential claim is said not to be in liquid form, but to be included in surplus, which means that it may be invested in real estate, equipment, rights of way, etc.

The shippers' interest in the subject is one of wishing the roads to be in a solvent condition so that there will not be the constant agitation for higher rates.

The legislative committee also favors voluntary consolidation of railroads with the consent of the interstate commerce commission, providing such consolidation would not unduly restrict present competition. The committee also recommends that the transportation act be amended to prohibit control of two or more roads being obtained by systems through the medium of holding companies. It is held that control of two or more roads by a holding company may defeat the purpose of the general scheme for the regulation of consolidations.

Another action desired by the committee is a revision of the ratemaking rules governing the railroads to permit of greater elasticity. It is held that rates charged during prosperous times, for example, might be out of line with those charged during lean periods. Consequently it was held that a system which will permit of more flexibility is desirable.

Right of Appeal.

The legislative committee recommending that shippers be given the same right of appeal to the courts against interstate commerce decisions as the railroads. The roads now have the right to appeal from any affirmative decision of the commerce body. However, the shippers do not ask this right in cases where the evidence has been substantiated, but this point is to be determined by the courts.

Delegation of minor cases to boards of employes of the interstate commerce commission is favored by the league. This is in line with the request of the interstate commerce commission to congress to permit this and is designed to relieve the commissioners of having to attend to trivial matters.

News and Gossip of Stock Marts

Ready for Rate Cut.

Wall street is looking for a downward adjustment in the present 75 cent dividend rate when directors of the United Corporation meet shortly. United Corporation placed its capital stock on the present dividend basis in connection with the acquisition of a substantial increase in Columbia Gas and Electric through an exchange of stock early in 1929.

Holding Company Control.

The October operating figures of the Public Service of New Jersey revealed the ability of the big utility to exercise constantly good control over expenditures. Gross revenues were off slightly from a year ago, but in spite of this surplus after charges showed a increase of almost $200,000, standing at $2,634,564. The same trend is revealed in the figures for the nine month period ended with October. Gross in that interval revealed a slight falling off from the previous operating period, yet surplus after charges showed an increase of more than $1,500,000 over that of the preceding twelve month period.

Merchants and Mfrs. Co. Reports 6 Months' Income

The report of Merchants and Manufacturers' Securities company and subsidiaries for the six months ended Sept. 30 shows net profit of $223,302 after all charges, including federal taxes and subsidiary preferred dividends, equal after parent company's preferred dividends to 66 cents a share on 316,997 shares of class A common stock. This compares with net profit of $92,703, or $1.32 a share, on the A stock in the corresponding period last year.

During the six month period the company charged against operations $50,000 for losses and repossessions and, in addition, charged $185,766 direct to the reserve for credit losses previously provided and which now stands at $302,023.

Top yesterday, $6.10; average, $5.40.
Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 8,000; hogs, 25,000; sheep, 12,000.

Top steers established a new high of $12.75 on a buoyant trade yesterday when only 10,000 of cattle were offered for sale, the second smallest Wednesday supply since the middle of September. Receipts of hogs and lambs also fell off a little and with all indications pointing to light supplies the remainder of the week, there was a better tone in all live stock markets at the close, the high point of the day.

Five of the leading markets report only 100,000 head in sight for today, against 132,000 last Thursday.

It is the general opinion among prominent men in the trade that the strong position of the market for top grades of cattle will eventually pull hogs and lambs into place and cut down the heretofore unheard of spread in prices. "Should hog producers in the corn belt show more nerve and hold down supplies at all points, the price would jump $1 within a month's time," Everett Brown, former president of the Chicago Live Stock exchange and a veteran hog trader, remarked.

According to packers the proportion of hogs being moved into consumption on the fresh meat trade in the last two months is the greatest they can recall and fresh pork has been selling relatively lower than cured meats. For instance, during October, fresh hams averaged $10.40 per hundred pounds less than a year ago, while smoked hams showed a loss of $5.00@5.60 for the same period. A smaller amount is being cured and frozen, indicating, traders believe, that packers have not much confidence in the immediate future demand for product, but are selling fresh meat for the quick turnover in that trade.

Supplies Fall Short.

Hog prices ruled steady to 10c higher yesterday, the extreme top and general average prices showing 5c gain at $4.70 and $4.55 respectively. Supplies were moderate for midweek and when only 25,000 were estimated for today against 46,510 last Thursday, the market accumulated strength rapidly and most of the hogs left at the close were being held off the market for today and Friday in hopes of a rise in prices. Relatively high prices at some of the western markets expected to drive shipping orders here for a day or two.

Medium weight hogs for March delivery were offered at $6.00 on the futures market yesterday and occasional bids of $5.50 were made. December and January contracts were bid $4.25@4.50. Light and mediums for today carried bids of $4.60 on the "to arrive" trade.

Feeling is mixed in the cattle trade lately, because of the record spread in prices. Plainer classes of cattle are hardly paying a fair price for the grain consumed, while big margins, sometimes as much as $4.00@5.00, are made by owners of highly finished steers. Many of the cattle selling at $11.00@12.00 on recent sessions cost $6.00@7.00 as feeders. The best cattle ruled strong to higher again yesterday, while the $6.00@10.00 kinds show losses of 50c@$1.00, compared with a week ago.

Best fat cows and heifers held up well again, but others weakened. Calves were fully steady at the lowest prices in many years, established earlier in the week. Country demand was narrow, but stockers and feeders were scarce and little change was noted in the trade.

Feeder Lambs in Demand.

Despite the fact that fat lambs established new low levels for the last 30 years earlier in the week, country demand for feeders expanded again yesterday and thin westerns went up to $4.85, the highest price paid for feeders since Nov. 2. There was a shortage of feeding lambs and some demand switched to light breeding ewes that sold up to $4.75 before the close.

Slaughter lambs strengthened toward the close and packers paid up-wards to $6.10 for fed westerns, the extreme top, which was paid by city butchers for natives earlier in the day.

GRANDI, HOOVER AGREE ON ARMS, NAVAL POLICIES

3 Power Sea Treaty Is Indorsed.

BULLETIN.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 20 (Fri...)—(AP)—Dino Grandi, foreig... minister of Italy, left Washingto... this morning at 2:58 o'clock (C. ... for New York aboard a specia... train, ending his four day visit t... the capital.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 19.—[Spe... cial.]—The visit of Signor Dino Gran... di, Italian minister of foreign affair... to the American capital came to a... end today with the official announce... ment that his conversations wit... President Hoover and Secretary ... State Henry L. Stimson "have es... tablished a sympathetic understand... ing" of the attitude of Italy and th... United States toward world problems.

The nearest approach to a comment ... contained in the announcement ... which was a joint statement by Sig... nor Grandi and Mr. Stimson, was the ... expression of the belief that the three ... power London naval treaty "should ... be completed" by the adherence of ... France and Italy and that the one ... year armaments truce, initiated by the ... Italian foreign minister, illuminates ... the opportunity for constructive ... achievement at the forthcoming Gene... va disarmament conference.

Look to Geneva Conference.

The inference from the statement ... that President Hoover and Signor ... Grandi agreed to exert their influence ... toward making a success of the ... Geneva conference and toward bring... ing about an agreement between ... France and Italy on the respective ... naval armaments of these nations ... which will make possible their ad... herence to the London treaty without ... reservations. It was the failure of ... France and Italy to agree at London ... on parity of naval strength that pre... vented their signature of the treaty.

Follows Laval's Visit.

They came to a close the visit ... of Mussolini's foreign minister which ... owed its conception to aspirations ... parity of another kind. It is well ... known in the inner official circles that ... Signor Grandi came to Washington ... chiefly because M. Laval, premier of ... France, had made President Hoover ... a visit. At once there arose a de... mand in Rome that Italy be accorded ... parity with France in the matter of ... visitations to Washington. Mr. Hoover ... and Mr. Stimson were only too glad ... to oblige and Signor Grandi came.

After Signor and Signora Grandi ... had paid a farewell call at the White ... House at 5 p. m. Mr. Stimson and ... Mr. Grandi issued their joint state... ment at a press conference at the ... state department. Mr. Stimson read ... the statement and thereafter he and ... Signor Grandi exchanged felicitations ... in which they expressed their affec... tion for each other and stressed the ... value of the "new diplomacy" repre... sented by these personal visits of the ... chief officials of nations to each other.

Text of Joint Statement.

The joint statement by the Italian ... minister for foreign affairs and the ... American secretary of state follows:

"Full advantage has been taken of ... the opportunity afforded by this visit ... for a frank and cordial exchange of ... views respecting the many problems ... of world importance in which the gov... ernments of Italy and the United ... States are equally interested.

"Realizing that restoration of eco... nomic stability and confidence within ... respective national boundaries ... can only find ultimate achievement ... through the further establishment of ... international financial stability and ... through a confidence that extends ... to include all nations, we have ... resolved to continue the efforts ... already initiated towards this end by ... candid discussion of the many allied ... and related international problems, ... the solution of which has become ... a recognized necessity. The discus... sions have embraced subjects of ... such importance as the present financial ... crisis, intergovernmental debts, ... the problems surrounding the limita... tion and the reduction of armaments, ... the stabilization of international ex... changes, and other vital economic ... questions.

Point to Armament Truce.

"We believe that the existing un... derstandings between the principal ... naval powers can and should be com... pleted and the general acceptance of ... the proposal, initiated by Signor Gran... di for a one year's armament truce ... is indicative of the great opportunity
